Sluggish Economy A Reality

Prediction Runs Into Cold Stares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sluggishness in the economy is no longer a projection or a theory but a reality borne out fully by the government's own statistics.

This was predicted by President Johnson's economic advisers two months ago but their next prediction — an upturn later in the year — has run into some cold stares from Congress.

And recent events including a decline in three important economic thermometers certainly didn't help the administration's case for its proposed 6 per cent surtax to take effect July 1.

The surtax request is based on the projection of an economic upturn during the second half of 1967.

The government reported in the past week the second substantial drop in industrial output in as many months and a 2 per cent decline in retail sales during February. It also disclosed a 15.1 per cent decline in housing starts for the same month, disrupting the substantial gains of the three previous months.

The accelerated economic pace predicted for the second half of the year was described by the Senate-House Economic Committee as an uncertain basis for policy. But it urged Congress to remain flexible on the tax question.

Some members of the House Ways and Means Committee expressed doubt about the administration's economic projections but Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler stood by them.

The committee and later the House approved reinstatement of the 7 per cent investment tax credit requested only nine days ago by the President and the Senate set hearings this week.

Officials denied, however, any attempt to pump-prime the economy despite the request to restore the tax credit and the administration's announced plans to pour more than a billion dollars into the economy.

The economy, they said, is now able to absorb the spending deferred as an anti-inflationary move last fall but some officials conceded it would have a mild stimulus on the economy.

Contestants Sought For Local Contest

The Miss Sedalia Entries Committee is inviting every resident of the Sedalia trade area to nominate a candidate for the local contest. The pageant, a preliminary elimination for the Miss America Contest, will be held May 5-6.

Pageant nominations may be made by writing to the Miss Sedalia Pageant Committee, in care of Judy Wolff, 2501 Margaret, or by filling out the entry blank printed elsewhere in this edition. In addition all local, civic and service clubs have been requested to nominate contestants of their own.

Each entry will receive a gift, with the finalists competing for numerous prizes and scholarships. Miss Sedalia will compete with other local winners in the Miss Missouri Pageant and could win the right to represent her state at Atlantic City in September.

Candidate qualifications are as follows:

Contestants must be a resident of the Sedalia trade area; must be single and never have been married; must be a high school graduate by September of this year; must be between 18 and 28 by Sept. 5, 1967; must possess and display in a maximum of three minutes, a talent presentation. This talent may be singing, dancing, playing a musical instrument, dramatic reading, art display, dress designing, creative poetry writing, or any of the fine arts. She may give a talk on the career she wishes to follow.

DOWN THE DRAIN — Clarence Williams, Sr., Route 5, of Williams Dairy Farm, watches as 500 gallons of milk begin to pour from a tank on his farm Saturday morning. Williams' action is in support of an NFO-sponsored withholding action on milk which seeks to obtain higher prices for farmers. Saturday was the third day that Williams dumped 500 gallons, or about 2,900 pounds, of milk. Pettis County NFO representatives said Williams is one of many NFO members taking part in the action in this area. (Democrat-Capital photo)

Over Vietnam Policies

Senate Republican Leaders Soft-Peddle Indifferences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders are soft-pedaling GOP differences over President Johnson's Vietnam policies that apparently run as deep as those Democrats air publicly almost daily.

When the GOP Policy Committee directed its staff last week to draft a study of Vietnam war policies, it was with the clear understanding that there would be no attempt to forge any party position on the issue.

The committee expects to have in about two weeks what Chairman Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, calls a "completely objective analysis."

The problem of Hickenlooper and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois at this point is to avoid advertising the same kind of party split that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., have made clear exists among the Democrats.

Although they can't prevent their colleagues' from embarking on individual excursions, Dirksen and Hickenlooper are not about to contribute to any public Republican ruckus on the issue.

Dirksen and Hickenlooper are classified as "hawks," as are a majority of the Senate's 36 Republicans.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York lately has swung away from this group to the stop-the-bombing side but Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey said he doubts this is the time to halt air strikes.

Sens. George D. Aiken of Vermont, dean of Republicans in the Senate, Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the assistant leader, John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon and Charles H. Percy of Illinois all are listed as "doves."

Veteran Senate Republicans who are likely to have places on the foreign policy drafting panel of the 1968 convention Platform Committee are at sea about the position their party's presidential candidate will take on Vietnam.

They know, of course, that former Vice President Richard M. Nixon is taking a generally hawkish stand on the war while criticizing President Johnson's conduct of it. They have no clear idea where Gov. George Romney of Michigan finally will land.

Illegal For Special Road District To Fix Private Roads

Attorney General Norman H. Anderson has ruled in an opinion issued to Byron L. Kinder, Cole County prosecuting attorney, that it is illegal for a special road district organized under Missouri law to repair or improve any private roads even though the cost of such repair may be paid for by the owner.

Anderson stated there are two previous opinions issued by his office that should be considered. The first held that a county court is not authorized to contract with a private person for the maintenance of a private road.

Anderson stated the second opinion holds that a township has no authority to use township machinery to do work for private individuals for hire.

Information Kit To Help Keep Record

Medicare beneficiaries who signed up for medical insurance protection can now obtain an information kit to help them keep a record of their doctor bills so they will know when they reach their yearly $50 deductible, C. Kent Charles, Social Security district manager in Sedalia, has anounced.

The kit includes a record-keeping folder and two leaflets which explain the two methods of payment for medical insurance claims, and what medical expenses count for the $50 deductible. The folder has pockets on the inside for holding doctor bills and space to write in the date and amount of each bill so that the beneficiary will know immediately when he reaches the $50 each year. After that, the medical insurance plan pays 80 per cent of the reasonable charges for covered expenses for the remainder of the year.

Charles said that all new medicare beneficiaries will receive the kit when they sign up for medical insurance. Those who already have medical insurance coverage should write, telephone, or visit the social security office to obtain this free kit. The office is located at 825 Thompson Blvd.

Also, people who need help in completing a medical insurance claim are urged to get in touch with the social security office. "We know that these claims—especially the first claim—can be confusing to people," Charles said, "and we will be glad to help in every way possible."

Studies Indicate State Must Look To Tax Hike

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Looking into the future is a precarious business, but all the studies indicate Missouri must face the possibility of a tax increase by 1969 or 1970.

It won't happen before then because Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has pledged he will not increase taxes during this four-year term. He is running for a second term in 1968 — although no formal announcement has been made.

But all the experts say he cannot make the same pledge during his second term.

This was brought out clearly this week in Senate debate on the so-called Heller plan to memorialize Congress to adopt some form of tax sharing with the states. Both houses adopted the memorial.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, an advocate of the Heller plan along with the governor, said that if Missouri is to share in the estimated $65 million that would be available under the tax sharing proposal, some form of state tax increase would be necessary.

As of now, the best guess is that the increase would come in the form of increased personal income taxes, increased liquor taxes or some other area where Missouri ranks among the lowest of the states.

According to a study by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Missouri's efforts to raise revenue locally are sixth lowest in the nation.

The governor argues, as he did in a speech at Atlanta this week, that the states should be given more leeway to study their problems and solve them, without federal pre-emption of most tax sources.

In that speech he cited the federal highway beautification requirements and Title 19 of the "Medicaid" law as two out-

Civilian Development Campaign Now Underway

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans to stress "the other war" in Vietnam — the civilian development campaign — in his two-day meeting at Guam with American and Vietnamese leaders.

This advance notice was given to newsmen as the President readied for take-off around midnight Saturday night on the 8,000-mile flight to his third Pacific strategy conference on the conflict in Southeast Asia.

White House aides figured the big presidential jet liner, with a refueling stop at Honolulu or Anchorage, would take 18 hours to reach the tiny American island in the Pacific.

Since Johnson is due back late Tuesday, U.S. time, his travel schedule gives him about the same amount of time in the air as the two days and one night he will have on the ground at Guam.

Before his take-off, the President had arranged to spend the day with the governors from around the nation gathered for a White House briefing and dinner.

Flying on to Guam with Johnson were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, presidential adviser Walt W. Rostow and other top aides.

Coming to Guam from Saigon were senior Americans headed by retiring Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander there. Lodge's successor, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and the new No. 2 man for the U.S. Embassy in Saigon, Eugene Locke, were arriving from Nepal and Pakistan.

Also to sit in on the first day of the conference were South Vietnamese leaders headed by the Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky.

There has been speculation that Johnson would decide at Guam on a major military move — such as stepping up attacks on North Vietnam, boosting the U.S. contingent in the South or elevating Westmoreland to a theater command similar to that of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in Europe in World War II.

But administration officials said Saturday there would be no major military decisions made or announced at Guam.

They specifically denied planning to set up a theater command. And they said Westmoreland is not expected to ask for more than the 470,000-man U.S. force goal in Vietnam. About 423,000 U.S. troops are there now with others en route.

The administration officials portrayed the Guam conference as another in the series of twice-a-year Johnson parleys with the

Members Of Congress To Get Vacation

Little Work Has Been Accomplished On LBJ's Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the 90th Congress head home Thursday for a 10-day Easter recess after the first 11 weeks of a session that may be the dullest and least productive since the late 1950s.

Despite a steady stream of presidential proposals in fields ranging from educational television to open housing, little has been accomplished so far by either branch and little is close to passage.

Congress has raised the debt limit to $336 billion and authorized spending an additional $4.5 billion in Vietnam, and the Senate has approved the historic Soviet-U.S. consular treaty. But most of the President's major proposals are buried in legislative committees.

Hearings on the alleged wrongdoing of two Democrats, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell of New York and Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, have provided the biggest congressional news of the past three months.

The overriding influence on the slow congressional pace has been the impact, economically and politically, of the Vietnam war, with a secondary factor the increased Republican strength in the House.

While President Johnson's messages indicate he has not interpreted last November's election results as a warning to slow down the pace of new domestic proposals, the leisurely pace on Capitol Hill indicates many congressmen feel this way.

The leadership seems disinclined to bring up measures unlikely to pass, and White House aides concede that a major purpose of the scope of Johnson's proposals is to create a record for the 1968 election, regardless of how Congress treats them.

Another factor is the Democratic leadership in both houses. Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts at 75 often seems out of touch with the newer generation of House members — more than half the House is new since 1960 — and Majority Leader Carl B. Albert of Oklahoma

Meeting With Governors

More Grants For States Are Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson told the nation's governors Saturday the next five years may bring a fourfold increase in federal financial grants to the states to $60 billion yearly. And he reportedly promised them more highway funds next year.

Johnson appealed to 49 governors of the states and territories for cooperation in solving the nation's problems but — according to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York — Said he didn't want from them any resolution on Vietnam policy.

Republican state executives who met by themselves Friday night had made it pretty clear they would try to avoid voicing anew support for the administration's Vietnam policies. Previous similar sessions had done so.

Rockefeller left the all-day sessions early to go back to Albany and said that by midafternoon there had been no discussion of Vietnam.

All the emphasis at the early sessions with 48 men and Gov. Lurleen Wallace of Alabama was on federal-state cooperation in solving the nation's problems — "birth pangs of fundamentally new process" in government, Johnson termed it.

In addition to Johnson, the governors heard from members of the Cabinet and other officials, and newsmen were told there were question-and-answer sessions with more than half the state executives taking part.

On the schedule Saturday night: a black-tie dinner at the executive mansion with musical entertainment later. That gave former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama his first opportunity of the day to attend, as his wife's escort.

After the night entertainment Johnson scheduled a midnight departure for Guam and a conference with U.S. and South Vietnamese leaders in the Southeast Asian war. At Saturday's luncheon the governors joined in a toast to the success of the President's mission to Guam.

Johnson told his luncheon guests that the nation faces many crises, but he said they "are the sort that a great nation should want to have."

In his opening talk to the governors Saturday morning, Johnson told them the day's sessions would expose them to current thinking and plans of his Cabinet.

Highway Caution Is Urged During Holy Week By Hockaday

Alarmed by the fact that 44 people were killed in Missouri during the eight-day period from Palm Sunday through Easter last year ,Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, has appealed to drivers and pedestrians to be extra cautious during this year's Holy Week.

"Drivers should be extra alert for pedestrians during this special week," Hockaday declared. "Many people will be walking to church services this week and on Easter Sunday. I urge motorists to be especially careful when driving near a church.

"Pedestrians must also take added precautions during this period. For example, they should carry or wear something white if walking to nighttime church services," he added.

Baptist Youth Congress Set For Sedalia

Two thousand Royal Ambassadors and their leaders will meet here in the Agriculture Building at the Missouri State Fair Ground, Friday and Saturday, March 24-25, for the 13th annual Royal Ambassador Congress. Royal Ambassadors are boys, ages nine-17, who belong to Pioneer, Crusader and Ambassador missionary organizations in Baptist churches affiliated with the Missouri Baptist Convention. The state director is Willis Griffin, associate in the Convention's Baptist Men's Department, Jefferson City.

The largest annual religious meeting of boys in the state, the Congress will draw attendance from 1,000 Royal Ambassador chapters in all parts of Missouri, with an enrollment of 10,000 boys.

The four-session meeting will begin at 2:55 p.m., Friday, March 24, and close at noon, Saturday. Program emphasis, built around the theme, "Ye Shall Be My Witnesses," will be on developing Christian concern for all people, acquiring knowledge of world needs, responding with personal action, and serving Christ with a pure life.

The featured speakers will be four foreign missionaries who left Missouri pastorates to enter missionary careers: Rev. Oswald J. Quick, missionary to Formosa and native of Hardin, Mo.; Dr. Kenneth Wolfe, missionary to Brazil and native of Kansas City; Dr. G. William Schweer, missionary to Indonesia and native of Independence; Rev. Raymond L. Shelton, missionary to Thailand and native of East St. Louis, Ill.

Two Bills Are Introduced By Rep. Joe Rains

Two bills were introduced the past week in the Missouri House of Representatives by Rep. Joe F. Rains, (D-Sedalia).

One bill has to do with the inspection of meat from animals slaughtered in Missouri. It calls for such meat, which is to be used for human consumption, to be inspected by the veterinary division of the Department of Agriculture.

This bill was co-signed by Reps. Bill Crigler, (D-Fayette) and Frank Wells, (D-Centerview).

The other bill was submitted in behalf of the State Parks Commission, which will repeal one section of Public Law 258 relating to the State Inter-Agency Council for Outdoor Recreation and enact, in lieu, two new sections.

This will make it possible for the State Park Board to have the right for planning and seek federal aid.

Co-signers of the bill were Rep. Ronald Reed, Jr., (D-St. Joseph), Rep. Jack J. Schramm, (D-University City) and Rep. Corley Thompson, Jr., (R-Webster Groves).

Both bills are to be assigned to committees this week by Speaker of the House James E. Godfrey for hearings.

Continues Protection For Mrs. Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Tom Steed said Saturday he favors continuing Secret Service protection for Mrs. John F. Kennedy in the wake of controversies surrounding the late president's family.

Steed, chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee that considers the Secret Service budget, noted Mrs. Kennedy is slated in November to lose the protection of two agents assigned to her since her husband's assassination in November 1963.

The Oklahoma Democrat said Mrs. Kennedy has been involved recently in controvery generated by William Manchester's book about the assassination and the investigation in New Orleans of an alleged conspiracy to kill Kennedy.

"Any time you keep the spotlight on people like this, you invite crackpot molestation," Steed said in an interview.

Old Flour Mill Is Destroyed In Fire

No injuries were reported.

The four-story building is owned by Cy Young and is used as office and warehouse by Thriftee Foods, a wholesale grocery.

Some of the walls collapsed, but firemen from Washington and several surrounding communities confined the blaze to the brick building.

US Destroyer Is Hit By Communist Fire

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. destroyer Stoddard was hit by a North Vietnamese shore battery and took a hole in her side above the waterline but there were no casualties, U.S. military headquarters reported today.

A spokesman said the ship was hit Friday while patrolling along the southern end of North Vietnam 25 miles northwest of Dong Hoi. He said the Stoddard returned the gunfire and silenced the Communist coastal battery. The hole on her starboarr side, 10 inches by 18 inches, was plugged and the ship continued "fully operational," the U.S. Command said.

The Stoddard was the third ship of the U.S. 7th Fleet to be damaged in recent weeks from North Vietnamese coastal guns.

Airplane Glue Fad Outlawed In Miami

City commissioners passed an ordinance Friday banning the sale to persons under 18 of model glue that gives off toxic vapors.

Model kits may contain only enough glue for construction of the model.

But Commissioner M. Athalie Range, who proposed the ordinance, said the teen-boppers already have a new way of getting high — inhaling vapors from cigarette lighters.

Describes Irish As 'Just Pure Gold'

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — An Italian butcher at a St. Louis supermarket described the Irish today as "just pure gold." He said that during the week of St. Patrick's Day, sales of corned beef zoomed.

"In an ordinary week we sell from 700 to 1,000 pounds of corned beef. So far this week we've sold over 32,000 pounds," the butcher said.

Manager Wounded During Holdup Effort

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A cafe manager was wounded in a holdup at her home Friday night as two bandits searched the house for money.

Miss Geraldine Logwood, 52, of 3006 North Ninth suffered a shotgun wound in the hip. She was reported in fair condition in a hospital.

Earl Sprague, 48, who lives in the same house, told police the bandit's shotgun apparently fired accidentally while the man was guarding Miss Logwood and Sprague in the living room.

The men fled after the shot, taking Sprague's billfold and $9. He said they overlooked $500 of the cafe's receipts in Miss Logwood's purse.

Ann Landers
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Why don't you get with it and knock off the nonsense about childbirth? If I read one more letter in your column from a mother who says having a baby is just like a little tummyache I think I will throw up.

Some women could give birth to an elephant and not feel a thing. Other women have a very rough time and it goes on and on and on — yes, even with the wonderful new sedatives and pain killers.

You should tell your readers the truth — that no two deliveries are the same; that every woman is different, physically, emotionally and psychologically; that her mother's approach to childbirth will have a definite effect on her attitude; that it can be a big help if she gets a good doctor. So enough of the hooey already, Ann Landers. Thank you — TWO FEET ON THE GROUND

Dear Feet: I would not dispute a single word of your letter. It is all true. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's unmarried sister moved to this country from overseas. Sara is a medical doctor. I was overjoyed when I learned she was coming and invited her to live with us.

After a few months Sara became withdrawn and uncommunicative. When she refused to leave her bed we wrote to a sister overseas and learned that she is mentally ill and has been for a long time.

Sara sleeps in our living room and is ruining our marriage. All she does is read medical books and write letters to President Johnson complaining about the hospitals in America and how they abuse patients and employes.

We are people of modest means and are deeply concerned about the huge bills she has run up all over town. (My husband vouched for her.)

Sara will not see a psychiatrist and insists there is nothing wrong with her. In the meantime she hasn't been out of her nightgown in six weeks and I am going crazy, What shall I do? — MARGARET

Dear Margaret: It is up to your husband to call in some doctors. If they decide his sister should be committed to a state mental hospital, and he refuses, give him a choice—you or his sister. And make it stick.

Dear Ann Landers: An aunt whom I dearly loved died several years ago. Her husband gave me her engagement ring and her wedding band because I was her favorite niece.

These two people had one of the most beautiful marriages I have ever witnessed. It would mean a great deal to me if I could use my aunt's ring for my own engagement and marriage. Some people feel it would be improper. I'd like your opinion—ENGAGED IN MIAMI

Dear Engaged: Since the wedding ring is a traditional part of the religious ceremony I feel it would be appropriate to use your aunt's wedding band and wear it thereafter provided of course that your husband-to-be agrees to the idea. The engagement ring is something different, however. Let your fiance make a selection in keeping with HIS taste and HIS financial bracket. You can wear your aunt's ring as heirloom jewelry, but not as a symbol of your beloved's betrothal.

Michelin Find Goof Food Is Very Expensive

PARIS (AP) — "Good food is expensive, alas."

The comment comes from one who knows, an inspector for the "Guide Michelin", France's gastronomic bible. Michelin inspectors — there are less than 20 of them — spend their days eating, and appraising the output of the country's restaurants.

The appearance, of a new edition of the red-backed tourist guide is the surest sign of spring in France.

It rates the top restaurants with stars. Three stars means "one of the best tables in France, well worth the journey." Two stars mark restaurants with "excellent cuisine, worth a detour." One star calls attention to "a good restaurant in its class."

As in recent years, 12 restaurants in France this year are considered worthy of three stars. Five are in Paris, and the rest in the provinces.

One restaurant, the Hotel De la Poste in Avallon, lost its third star, but the Auberge de L'Ill at Illhaeusern gained a star to join the prized top category.

Le Petit Bedon, a stylish and expensive restaurant in Paris, had two stars last year. This time it isn't even mentioned in the guide. "I can't tell you why but we think it was a very good reason," said a Michelin spokesman.

ROME—A class of Roman schoolgirls watch as Peter Rossow, 18-year-old son of U.S. Embassy counselor Robert Rossow, Jr., places a memorial wreath on the bronze statue of Julius Caesar here on the anniversary of Caesar's assassination. The homage to Caesar was the brainchild of Prof. John Roos and his Latin class at Culver Military Academy in Culver, Ind. Russow is a Culver graduate. At the base of the statue, located not far from where Caesar was killed more than 2,000 years ago, is another wreath placed earlier by an unknown Italian admirer. (UPI)

Pictures Of Red Activity In 'Truce'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has released about two dozen photographs which spokesmen say prove that North Vietnam took advantage of the recent lunar new year cease-fire to resupply their troops in South Vietnam.

The previously secret pictures, most taken from reconnaissance planes flying about 5,000 feet over North Vietnam, purportedly show tons of supplies moving from the north by truck and water craft.

But U.S. officials declined to describe what they called the North Vietnamese "logistical exploitation" as a violation of last month's six-day truce. Spokesmen estimated U.S. ships unloaded perhaps 100,000 tons of American supplies and equipment during the same period.

Defense Department spokesmen said the intelligence pictures indicate the North Vietnamese shipped south 23,000 tons of supplies aboard 1,400 water craft and 2,200 trucks during the cease-fire. They said this was 20 times the volume detected previously in similar periods.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold Brown defended U. S. bombing of North Vietnamese military installations, saying it forces the diversion of 300,000 persons from agriculture, industry and military service to repair the bomb damage.

"Our objective is to knock out military targets but to avoid damage to nonmilitary installations and injury to the enemy's civilian population," Brown told the Air Force Association convention in San Francisco.

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved Friday a $12,196,520,000 supplemental money bill for immediate use in the Vietnam war. The House approved the same amount Thursday by a 385-11 vote.

But the bill, which now goes to the Senate floor, was amended by the committee to nullify Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's announced plans to cut back airlift forces of the Air Force Reserve by eight groups and the Air National Guard by three wings.

If the bill receives Senate approval next week as expected, it would push defense appropriations for the current fiscal year to more than $72 billion.

In another Vietnam-related deveopment, Pentagon spokesmen said a backlog of 136,000 untrained volunteers in the Army Reserve and National Guard will be trimmed to 13,200 by June 30. They explained the backlog was caused by the need to train regular Army volunteers and draftees for regular duty.

Like Being Pardoned, Actor Says

By GENE HANDSAKER

Stone, 62, born 80 miles from the story's locale, Dodge City, Kan., has played its sympathetic, crusty Doc Adams since the Western series came to television 12 years ago, with several years on radio.

When CBS announced Feb. 21 that the show had been canceled for next fall, said Stone: "Amanda (Blake, who plays Kitty) came unglued, crying so they couldn't keep makeup on her. Jim (Arness, who's Marshal Dillon) was stunned. All I could say was 'Well, I'll be d---d'."

Stone, a handsome, younger-looking man without his makeup as Doc, got his first real haircut in 12 years, figuring he wouldn't need his shaggy hair any longer.

"It'll grow out enough by the time we start shooting again," he predicted after the series was reinstated March 7.

CBS said cancellation had caused a "surprise reaction of press and our affiliated stations."

"There was an avalanche of angry, sorrowful mail," said Stone. "People sent me 25 or 30 newspaper columns, all in violent protest. One columnist wrote, 'Gunsmoke is dead. Long live the reruns.' A resolution was introduced in the Kansas State Legislature."

Stone's role as Doc Adams, in which he said he's perfectly happy to continue, climaxes a 45-year acting career that included some 150 movies.

The protests that followed temporary cancellation of the series "give you a warm feeling," he said. "Almost make you want to run for senator or something."

Really, though, he has no such ambitions. He'll just go on playing Doc Adams for at least another year.

Today In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission is conducting a nationwide search for unlicensed and illegally operated citizens band radio stations.

Curtis B. Plummer, chief of the Foeld Engineering Bureau, the FCC's enforcement arm, said Friday inspectors eventually will conduct raids in every metropolitan area of the nation in an attempt to still theillegal broadcasters.

The crackdown began Thursday night in what the FCC called the largest coordinated raid in its 33-year history. More than 20 persons were involved in 1 2different illegal operations, a spokesman said.

Inspectors found all stations connected with Thursday's raids violating some aspect of FCC rules — in most instances, the requirement to identify themselves properly. Violators are subject to a year in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Plummer said the FCC had received complaints in the Washington area of interference on citizens band frequencies used by small businessmen.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee has decided not to act immediately on a proposal to povide group meals for about 100,000 needy children.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman said the pilot program would enable the government in the first year to provide group food services for children in public or private nonprofit day-care centers, settlement houses and private nonprofit preschool activities.

After meeting in executive session Friday, the committee decided the proposal needs further study and said it may schedule more hearings.

World News In Brief

PARIS (AP) — Construction of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council provisional headquarters building at Eyere, just outside Brussels, Belgium, begins Monday and the building is to be ready for the next full-scale NATO ministerial session in December.

The full-scale meetings include foreign, finance and defense ministers of the member states. The annual spring session, scheduled for Luxembourg this year, includes only the foreign ministers.

A permanent headquarters for the NATO Council is to be built in the Brussels area within several years. The move from Paris was approved last December, following President Charles de Gaulle's eviction of NATO troops from France.

CAIRO (AP) — Youssef Sebai, secretary-general of the Afro-Asian Solidarity Organization, said today Communist China has left the organization because AAPSO insisted on neutrality in the Chinese-Soviet ideological dispute.

Sebai told a reporter, "We have always wanted to stay out of the Soviet-Chinese ideological split, but China often attempted to drag us in.

"When we insisted on neutrality on this issue and on fair play, Peking decided to quit the organization."

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — A magistrate today ordered 17 men charged with plotting to overthrow the government of this central African nation to appear in court again April 1.

All 17 are natives of Buganda Kingdom, whose ruler, Sir Edward Mutesa fled the country last May after unsuccessfully challenging President Milton Obote. Buganda Kingdom is the largest of four Uganda provinces.

The men are accused of plotting to kill Obote and his ministers, and to take over the army headquarters and other important public buildings with the help of forces from neighboring Kenya.

MUAR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysian Prime Minister Abdul Rahman said today there was a possibility that this country might establish diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

Malaysian-Russian relations are something of a paradox. There is a strong anti-Communist feeling in this country which once fought a 12-year war with Communist insurgents, yet the Soviet Union is Malaysia's biggest importer of natural rubber, this nation's most important export.

Rowing Trip Ends After 15 Miles

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A retired truckdriver and his son began a 3,200-mile row to England in a 16-foot dory Friday. After 15 miles and 6½ hours they turned back.

"I just want to go home and hide under a rug," Lewis C. Mills, 54, said after coming ashore.

Mills and his son, Lewis Jr., 21, climbed aboard a Coast Guard rescue boat as they entered Gloucester harbor on their return trip and their boat was towed ashore.

"The seas weren't too rough," Mills said. "The trouble was that we were loaded too heavy and we started taking in water.

"It was freezing in the boat faster than we could bail it out," he said.

Temperatures were in the teens during the day and the Weather Bureau had issued small craft warnings.

Mills said he and his son got as far as Thatcher's Island after leaving the harbor in the morning.

"Then we were in one spot for four hours and I finally said, 'The hell with it' and we started back."

Mills said he and his son might try again "when it gets warmer. If we both go together, I'll have to sell the dory and get a bigger boat. Maybe I'll go alone and be able to use the dory."

Someone asked him if he intended to have a stiff drink when he returned to his house.

"Yeah, I'm going to get a big belt when I get home — from my wife," he said.

People In The News

ELGIN, Scotland (AP) — Plagued by first-night nerves and a pistol that kept slipping out of his belt, Prince Charles made his stage debut Friday night as the pirate king in Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta "The Pirates of Penzance."

Charles, 18, sang a strong bass in a comedy trio and won an encore before an invited audience at Gordonstoun School. He seemed to relax as the evening went on.

A member of the local amateur drama group said the prince had a beautiful speaking voice, sang pleasantly, acted well but appeared a bit self-conscious. Charles' mother, Queen Elizabeth II, will see tonight's performance.

NEW YORK (AP) — Charlotte Ford Niarchos flew to Juarez, Mexico, Friday to file a petition of divorce from Stavros Niarchos, 58, a shipping magnate.

The 26-year-old heiress to the Ford automotive fortune charged incompatibility in the petition and sought custody of their one-year-old daughter, Elena Anna.

The divorce degree was expected to be granted in a couple of days. The court record indicated the Niarchos' signed a separation agreement last week in New York.

NEW YORK (AP) — Composer Marvin David Levy, 34, whose first full-length opera was staged Friday night at the Metropolitan Opera House, was honored earlier in the day by the city.

Mayor John V. Lindsay gave Levy a scroll which said his works "have contributed with brilliant eloquence to our cultural life."

His opera, "Mourning Becomes Electra," is based on Eugene O'Neill's play.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Prof. Claude Bissell of the University of Toronto has been named Harvard's first visiting professor of Canadian studies.

The professorship was made possible by $600,000 in contributions from 86 Canadian and 45 U.S. corporations and from individuals in the two nations.

Girl Lifted Safely Out Of Deep Well

VOTAW, Tex. (AP) — Tiny Theresa Fregia was lifted to safety in a bold, precision-like rescue early today, 8 hours and 55 minutes after she tumbled 28 feet into an abandoned water well.

The 2-year-old girl was sobbing and smeared with red clay as rescue worker Ransom Bill of Houston brought her from the chilly depths of the narrow well at 2:25 a.m.

A loud cheer went up from more than 300 workmen who had labored for hours to save the child.

Theresa was placed on a stretcher, put in an ambulance and rushed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Beaumont.

Darlene Wolf, nursing supervisor of the emergency room, said the girl appeared to be "in good condition when she was brought in. There were a few abrasions on her tummy."

She said Theresa would undergo a complete examination by a pediatrician.

A giant drilling rig from Houston reached the scene in this small southeastTexas town at 1 a.m. and workers began sinking a parallel shaft next to the 10-inch diameter well in which she was trapped.

The massive machine bored a hole 30 inches across. When its head reached a level slightly below that of the girl, Bill was lowered by rope at 2:20 a.m.

He called for a shovel and a sledge hammer and chiseled through the old concrete wall casing of the well.

"Theresa, stay still! Don't move!" neighbors and relatives shouted to the girl at that point.

"I said, 'Honey, I'm going to pull now,'" Bill said. "She threw her little arms around me and said something. I think she said 'daddy,'" Bill related.

Then he yelled up to be pulled out by the rope.

The brown-eyed, brown-haired child was heard to cry "I'm cold, I'm cold. I want my mommy" Friday night as the force of more than 300 men strove frantically to save her.

Theresa's grandmother, Opal Allemange, said the girl fell into the well about 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Logan Compton, 51, of Milan was killed.

The injured are Jack Compton, 22; Jerry Compton, 26, and David Quigley, 23, all of Milan.

The patrol said the men were blasting trees from a pasture. One of the charges didn't go off, and the men went to investigate. It exploded.

RFK Says He'll Campaign For Johnson In '68

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy ays he looks forward to campaigning for President Johnson in 1968.

Kennedy, asked by newsmen Friday about reports of his strained relationship with the President, described Johnson as "an outstanding president."

"I have great admiration for what the President has done here in the United States and in our relationships with countries overseas," said the New York Democrat. "I think it's natural that there should be some differences.

"There are always differences between people in political life. I have great respect for him and I think we agree on by far the largest percentage of major issues facing this country. I think the ones we disagree on are most emphasized.

"He has been an outstanding President of the United States and I look forward to campaigning for him in 1968."

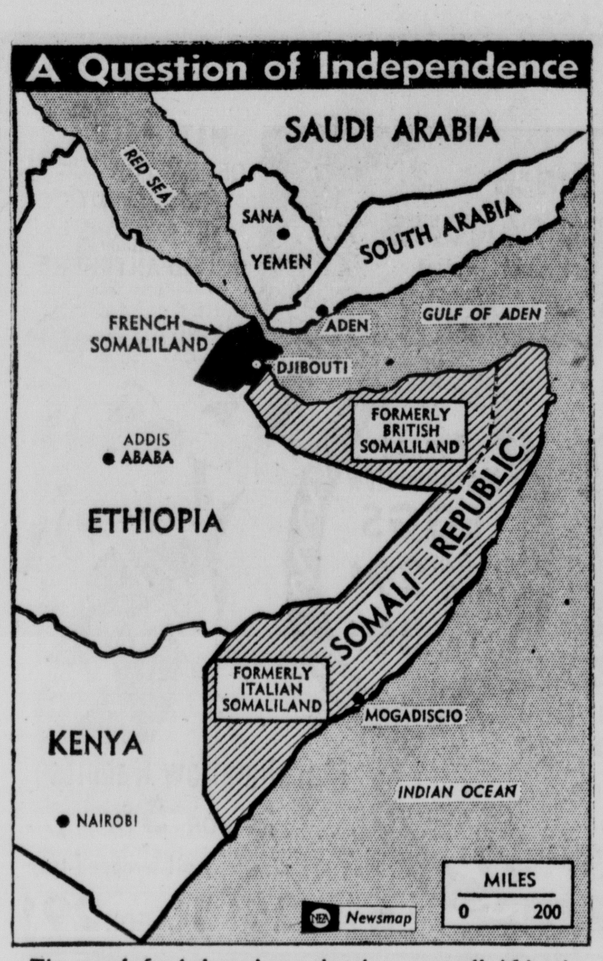
A Question of Independence



The search for independence that has swept all Africa in the past decade has reached French Somaliland, prompting the call for the March 19 vote on whether or not to join neighboring Somali Republic. Somali Republic was previously divided into two parts—protectorates of Britain and Italy. The Italian protectorate later became a sovereign state under United Nations trusteeship and, in 1960, the two united as a republic.

Mel Ferrer Is Audrey's Boss Now

The arrangement, he says, works fine: "We help and complement each other. There's no question about who's boss."

Tempermentally, he said, she's actually the steadier of the two.

Ferrer's superiority in the Hollywood hierarchy is as producer, for the first time, of a movie in which his wife is merely the feminine star.

"Keeping the same hours and driving to and from the studio together are ideal," he said. "But we don't abuse the privilege. This is only the fifth time we've worked together."

They costarred in "Ondine," on Broadway shortly before their marriage in 1954; in "Mayerling" on television and in "War and Peace," on film in Italy. He directed her in "Green Mansions" at MGM.

As he spoke, between takes, the slim Miss Hepburn played a taut scene from "Wait Until Dark," adapted from the Broadway play. In preparation for her role as a blind girl terrorized by hoodlums, she donned an eye mask and worked with instructors at schools for the blind in Switzerland and New York.

Promptly at 4:30 on the set an airhorn signaled a break for tea — an innovation of indulgent producer Ferrar.

"It's a chance to tell a few gags and let off steam," he said.

The working hours are 10 to 7 instead of the usual 9 to 6.

"It's brutal to get up at 5:30 ever morning," said Ferrer, "and a later lunch avoids conflict with the 'Camelot' people (also working on the Warner Bros. lot). And there's less freeway traffic, so the crew has more time with their families."

Mel has directed four films and two stage plays the latter including "Cyrano de Bergerac" starring the other Ferrer, Jose, not a relative. He has appeared in 17 movies and produced two recently in Europe.

Is production his field from now on?

"I don't know," he said. "I enjoy putting the elements together, seeing that everybody is working at maximum capacity. I'd like to go on, but there's no telling."

He added with satisfaction: "We're a day and a half ahead of schedule and $60,000 ahead on budget."

Big Fund Goal Set By Orchestra Group

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced plans to raise $5.5 million in cities where the orchestra tours.

The money would be used for musicians' salaries, the refurbishing of Symphony Hall, including the installation of public elevators, and the reduction of annual deficits.

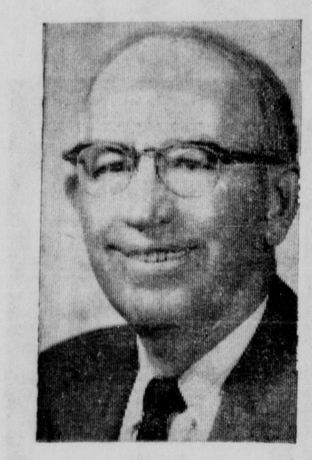
Turns Back Pages

Superintendent 40 Years Announces His Retirement

By Hazel Lang

The retirement of Dr. C. F. Scotten as county superintendent of Pettis County Schools after 40 years in that office, turns back the pages to the enthusiastic young man who defeated the candidate, T. R. Luckett, who had previously defeated Dr. Scotten's father, R. M. Scotten, and his brother, O. M. Scotten.

"I will visit the schools often and devote my entire time and energy for better schools to serve to the best interest of the boys and girls of Pettis County," the Sedalia Democrat of April 6, 1927, quoted him as saying upon his election.



C. F. Scotten

Luckett had held the office of county superintendent for 20 years. Before him G. L. Coleman had been county superintendent for 28 years, after defeating George W. Driskell.

Prior to Driskell's administration the office was called commissioner of schools and that title was held 12 years by R. M. Scotten to whom goes the credit for having established the office of county superintendent of schools in Pettis County.

Luckett won over Coleman in 1907 and then came the long list of Scotten defeats by Luckett in 1911, 1917 and 1923, when R. M. Scotten was the opposing candidate, and then in 1915, O. M. Scotten.

His Hat in the Ring

But the next election was a different Scotten and a different story. Foster, who had been teaching at Aullville, Stover and Nelson, came back to Sedalia to manage the Scotten Brothers' Grocery. Another election for county superintendent came up so he decided to throw his hat in the ring against Luckett and he won.

By this time he was married, for in 1924 he married Maude Embrey. With all the teachers during those 40 years, there was only one, he said, he couldn't supervise, and she was Mrs. Scotten who taught 11 years.

Dr. Scotten received his BS degree from Warrensburg; and his Master's and Doctor's degrees from the University of Missouri. He was the only county superintendent with a Doctor's degree.

Considered an outstanding county superintendent by the State Department of Education he was invited several times to go into the State Department but refused because he would rather serve Pettis county as superintendent. However, he was a candidate one year for State Superintendent of Schools.

During his years as county superintendent he has written a number of text books for elementary grades and a number of articles for professional magazines.

Long List of Transitions

Many things happened during the past 40 years, and one his wife recalls was the story of the teacher who gave him such a big welcome when he arrived to visit her school. "Oh, I'm so glad you came" she exclaimed breathlessly, and he was really flattered until he found the reason. There was a black snake in the school house and she was afraid of it. He drove up just when she didn't know what to do, so he killed it.

There have been many transitions in 40 years, Dr. Scotten said reminiscing about them. The State Course of Study replaced the local Course of Study prepared by the county superintendent; the introduction of spellers based on research which reduced the number of words and planned procedure for learning words; the workshop type of teachers meetings replacing monthly Saturday meetings, which brought about the de-centralizing of teachers into study groups to provide in-service training of teachers.

There was the increase in college hours to degrees or near degrees from teachers of high school training only or from 30 to 60 or more college hours. There was an increase in salary from $60 to $100 with depression years as low as $30 to $50 to $400 or more monthly. The school term was lengthened, too, from seven or eight months to nine months; receipt of State Aid to supplement local taxes from none to $100 to a large portion.

In Days of Mud Roads

From dirt roads to all-weather roads made things easier. When he started as county superintendent there was a need for tire chains because of mud roads. Dr. Scotten said that he walked to many schools after leaving his car stuck on the roadside. The cars, too, changed, from canvas closed to glass enclosed, from cloth to turret or hard topped cars, and from non-heated to heated cars.

During the years gas heaters replaced upright cast iron or horizontal drum type wood or coal burners in the school rooms and from the commercial type pictures for room decorations to teacher and pupil prepared decorations. They instituted talent programs of pupils in addition to local school programs.

The lighting was changed from cross-lighted school to left and back of the children; and modern pit type toilets replaced non-pit outdoor toilets. Hot lunches were provided for the children by cooks rather than cold lunches prepared by parents, also making it possible for the county superintendent to eat warm lunch rather than a cold lunch along the roadside.

Transportation of pupils at first was for high school students, and later also elementary with payment of tuition and transportation by district rather than by parents, from make-shift vehicles to modern, heated and sanitary busses, State Highway Patrol inspection annually and employment of bus drivers.

Reduction of School Districts

There has been a change from operating small enrollment rural schools to the closing of these schools and the transporting of them to other schools. Reduction of school districts in the county from 80 to less than 15 due to consolidation, reorganization and annexation.

Modern mathematics has been introduced and from a few PTA units to all schools with PTA. From pupil records of teacher's term report to a card for 12 year period prepared in the office of the County School Superintendent; from small numbers of books in local school library in isolated cases to the use of thousands of books from the Boonslick Regional Library delivered by bookmobile.

A County Board of Education has been established to study the educational needs of the county and make plans for reorganization. Electing of County Board of Education by popular vote rather than by member (directors) of school boards; preparation of school budgets for schools under the supervision of the County School Superintendent by the joint effort of the school clerk and county superintendent, audit of school finances, the receipts and expenditures of all schools in the county, the change from operating of rural schools of consolidated districts to the closing of them and the transportation of both grade and high school, from no administrative organization to a well established Pettis-Benton County School Activity Association.

From 50 teachers for County Teacher Examination to approximately five, from teacher and state prepared tests to standard achievement tests; placement of teachers and school employees on a retirement plan, general introduction of free text books which Dr. Scotten's first letter to school board members advocated. From many school discipline problems and many cases of corporal punishment to practically none.

Another change is the appointment of state superintendent or commissioner of education instead of by election.

Dr. Scotten said in the 40 years he has used eight automobiles in his work, all Fords, and has employed eight secretaries. Miss Marjorie Rector was secretary 21 years and Miss Karen Steele, his present secretary, for four years.

During the 40 years, Dr. Scotten said, he has gone from no grandchildren to five, Greg, Brent, Cindy, Steve and Tye Page, children of his daughter, Judy and her husband, James Page. And, he continued, I have changed from a young man to an old man.

What are Foster Scotten's future plans? Meeting the requests of Maudie, his wife; more hours with the grandchildren; assisting in the operation of his farm, and some time devoted to writing.

Nazi Chief Gets Cool Reception

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi Party, received a cool reception from audiences at two appearances in Kansas Thursday.

He gave an hour-long talk before about 2,000 persons in the arena of Weber Hall on the Kansas State University campus Thursday night; and earlier in the day he spoke to 1,850 at Fort Hays State College at Hays.

At both places, there was little or no applause as he castigated communists, Negroes and Jews.

Several people left the audience shortly after he started speaking in Manhattan.

Police protection was set up for Rockwell, who was hanged in effigy on the Kansas State campus Wednesday night. The student newspaper said an anonymous telephone caller threatened to kill Rockwell "because my grandparents were killed in a concentration camp."

There were no incidents, however.

At Hays, his audience gasped when he said: "After I'm president 15 minutes there won't be any Red China — I'm going to push the button."

He blamed the civil rights movement on communists and said:

"Those who are trying to help the Negro are engaged in a Castro-Mao-communist revolution."

He termed communism a "Yiddish operation" and said: "I'm the only guy in the country that goes around criticizing Jews, and they don't want me to be alive."

Man Injured As Car Smashes Into Truck

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (AP) — William D. Wilson, in his early 20s, was injured Thursday when his car smashed into a truck as he was fleeing officers.

The truck's driver, John Henson of Springfield, Mo., was killed.

Wilson had been arrested in connection with the fatal shooting Wednesday night of Henry E. Gastineau, 57, a Frisco Railroad employe living about 10 miles southeast of West Plains. He had been shot once in the head with a rifle.

Sheriff Brack Pace said a rifle was found in the trunk of Wilson's car after he was stopped by the Missouri Highway Patrol on U.S. 63 between West Plains and Pomona. During questioning, Wilson was asked to show how to start his car, which had a complex wiring system. The sheriff said he started the car and drove away.

The highway patrol said Wilson sped to West Plains and north on U.S. 63. Officers said while passing a car on a hill Wilson ran head-on into the truck driven by Henson.

Association Supports Bill To Increase Pay

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Good Roads and Streets Association announced its support today of a bill to increase the pay of the chief engineer of the State Highway Commission and take off salary limits of ther department emoyes.

Henry Danuser of Fulton, president, also said his organization's board has reaffirmed its support for an increase in the state gasoline tax, for self-sustained toll roads, for bond issues or any other method of building more and better roads and streets.

Accidents

A one-car accident, which occurred at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, 1.7 miles west of Sedalia on 16th Street Road, sent three persons to Bothwell Hospital with injuries.

The accident occurred, according to Trooper Pete Stohr, when a 1958 Ford station wagon, driven west on 16th by Elizabeth DeMois, 52, Route 3, came upon a car which had stopped on the pavement with its lights out. Stohr said that to avoid a collision, she swerved and lost control, causing the car to overturn several times before stopping on its wheels in a freshly plowed field.

Bruce Dawson, who told Trooper Stohr he had avoided a collision with the stopped car a few minutes earlier, returned to the scene. Dawson told Stohr the DeMois car was a short distance behind him when he came upon the stopped car. He said he narrowly averted the collision.

Taken to Bothwell Hospital in a McLaughlin ambulance were Elizabeth DeMois; her husband, Ira Frank DeMois, 62; their son, Ira Dennis DeMois, 10; and a friend of the DeMois boy, John Dale Billingsley, 10, 411 South Babcock.

Mrs. DeMois suffered a laceration on her hand; DeMois suffered a fractured left knee; and Billingsley received a severe bruise and cut over his right eye. The DeMois boy was reportedly uninjured.

DeMois and Billingsley were admitted to the hospital. The injured were treated by Dr. A. R. Maddox.

Art Erickson

Erickson Will Show Travel Film

Art Erickson will personally present and narrate his film, "Windjammer to Australia," on the Rotary Club-sponsored Travel and Adventure series at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Smith-Cotton High School auditorium.

Erickson has traveled extensively in North America, Europe, Africa, India, Australia and the South Pacific. With a long standing interest in photography and a real love for the outdoors, he is well suited for the rigorous life of travel-adventure filming. He is a resident of Birmingham, Mich. His methods of travel have been less than conventional on his trips to all points of the globe. He has worked as a member of a crew aboard a windjammer, on a tramp steamer, immigrant ships, Land Rover and even hitch-hiking.

"Windjammer to Australia" is a journey reaching halfway around the world from the little known islands of the Pacific to the "out-back" areas of Australia. Erickson will take his audience island-hopping across the Pacific aboard the famous brigantine "Yankee" one of the last of the sailing ships. The strange isolated Galapagos, where arctic wildlife survives in equatorial regions; Pitcairn Island, where the descendants of the Bounty Mutiny have lived since 1790; the Society Islands, the Cooks, Tokelaus, Solomons and many other areas are included in the film.

Arriving in Australia, he travelled 14,000 miles by Land Rover along the Eastern Coast and into the dry, barren interior. It is the home of a hardy people, many interesting forms of wildlife, and the strange, nomadic Aborigine.

Entertaining and educational, admittance to this full-color, motion picture, travelogue program will be by season ticket, or single admission may be purchased a the door on Tuesday evening.

standing examples of the way the federal government requires states to meet federal standards or lose federal grants.

"For many years" he said, "we have been drawing closer to a 'big brother' concept of government — a concept that adds more and more controls over intimate portions of our lives. . .

"We are being asked to accept the theory that all ills in our society must be cured by government far removed because you and I — and all our fellow citizens — are indifferent or incapable of applying the equally time honored American tradition of lifting ourselves by our own boot-straps."

At another point he said:

"I believe that the Heller plan would aid all the states because under the present grants in aid from the federal government, we have only a small portion of the money we send to Washington trickling back, narrowly restricted by mandates of time and procedure fashioned and forwarded from Washington. . . Four Major Goals Set For Iidia

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan set forth four major goals of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's new government today in a speech boycotted by nearly 200 opposition members of Parliament.

The unprecedented snub by all opposition parties except the right-wing Swatantra was to protest the imposition of president's rule, a kind of federal control, in Rajasthan State following riots there.

Shortly after the president's address, a member of the Hindu Communal Jan Sangh party in the lower house of Parliament brought a no-confidence motion against Mrs. Gandhi's five-day-old government as a result of her handling of the Rajasthan crisis.

Debate on the motion was to begin immediately at the prime minister's request. "Let us start the debate right away," she said.

If passed, the motion would lead to the resignation of Mrs. Gandhi's government. But this was considered unlikely since her ruling Congress party has a 20-seat majority in the lower house of parliament.

The no-confidence motion was the fifth presented to Parliament in 20 years of Indian self-rule. Mrs. Gandhi, beginning a full five-year term as prime minister, has defeated two no-confidence motions in her 14 months in office since the death of Lal Bahadur Shastri.

President's rule was placed on Rajasthan Monday in the first major decision of Mrs. Gandhi's new Cabinet. Nine persons were killed and nearly 200 were injured in Jaipur, capital of the desert state, March 7 when police fired on a stone-throwing mob.

Melees had broken out after that he had asked the Congress the state governor announced that he had asked the Congress party, which failed to win a majority in the State Assembly in last month's elections, to form a government. Opposition leaders say they should be given a chance to rule.

Radhakrishnan said the new government's four goals are to end food assistance from other nations by 1971, to halt inflation, to reach an adequate rate of economic growth so that foreign aid can be ended by 1976 and to reduce the birth rate through family planning.

N.Y. Plans Canceled By Powell

BIMINI, Bahamas (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell has canceled his plan to go to New York Sunday, but he says reluctance to trigger civil commotion, not fear of arrest, led him to remain in voluntary exile.

"I want to go back but not if it means violence and bloodshed, and my people tell me it would mean violence and bloodshed," Powell told newsmen Friday.

An aide said Powell, 59, probably would stay on Bimini, his fishing and relaxing spot off the Florida coast, at least until April 4 when a court hearing in Washington is set on the Harlem preacher-politician's suit to regain the congressional seat he held for 22 years before the House excluded him.

In New York a sheriff has a warrant for Powell's arrest on a criminal contempt charge stemming from a libel suit he lost. Powell, who could get up to 10 months in jail, has said that if he is arrested "the people in Harlem" would not let him lie in jail.

Powell is a candidate in an April 11 special election called to fill the 18th District seat from which Congress excluded the Democrat. His Republican opponent is Lucille Pickette Williams, whom Powell calls "a fine lady."

Powell had said he would preach in Harlem's Abyssinian Baptist church, of which he is pastor, Palm Sunday on the topic "If a Man Falls, Shall He Not Rise Again?"

Streaking Salukis Crush Marquette For NIT Honors

Bob Lloyd Sets A New Tourney Scoring Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Walt Frazier touched off a Southern Illinois point explosion midway in the second half and the streaking Salukis crushed Marquette 71-56 Saturday for the National Invitational Tournament championship.

Bob Lloyd poured in 44 points, broke a tournament scoring record and led Rutgers to a 93-76 victory over Marshall in the game for third place.

Southern Illinois, the nation's No. 1 college-division team, overcame an 11-point halftime deficit and surged to its 19th straight victory in taking the NIT crown on its first trip to the 30-year-old postseason basketball classic.

Frazier, the Salukis' 6-foot-3 Little All-America whose 21 points topped all scorers in the final game hit a free throw and a jump shot with less than 13 minutes remaining and SIU, which had trailed 34-23 at the half, outscored the Warriors 24-4 in the next 6½ minutes.

Moments after the game, Frazier, a junior, was voted the most valuable player in the tournament by sportswriters covering the prestigious event.

Ralph Johnson, who scored all his seven points after halftime, and Roger Bechtold, one of the Salukis' smooth reserves, teamed with Frazier in an 14-2 binge that sent SIU ahead 49-44 with 6:50 remaining. It was the Salukis' first lead since the second minute of the game.

After Brian Brunkhorst drove for a Marquette basket, the Salukis reeled off 10 straight points for a 59-46 bulge and coolly riddled the Warriors' full-court press in the final minutes to complete their four-game tourney sweep and finish the season with a 24-2 record.

The Warriors broke ahead early in the first half behind the deadly jump shooting of Bob Wolf. Wolf missed his first two shots, then made five in a row. He dropped in his first two attempts in the second half for a run of seven straight.

Clarence Smith scored 13 for the Salukis, Dick Garrett added 12 and Bechtold 10. Jim Burke, Wolf's backcourt partner, hit 15 for the Warriors, who finished 21-9 for the season.

Another Title Defense For Cassius Clay

NEW YORK (AP) — In his usual atmosphere of personal crisis, heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay makes his seventh title defense within a year and his ninth in all Wednesday night when he takes on 34-year-old Zora Folley at Madison Square Garden.

The Army draft again seems to be closing in on the all-conquering 25-year-old champion. But that's the way it was about a year ago and he's had six lucrative title defenses since.

Clay, who now bills himself from Houston, Tex., is a 5-1 favorite, with little betting reported, over the No. 1 contender, a scientific and cautious boxer, from Chandler, Ariz.

The 15-rounder will be telecast nationally but New York will be blacked out. Fight time is 10:30 p.m. EST.

"I'm grateful to the champion for giving me the chance," said Folley, a father of eight who is getting his first crack at the title. "I was No. 1 for years and never came close to getting a shot.

"I think I have a real good chance to win by either a knockout or a decision. I've got experience and he makes mistakes. I plan to take advantage of them."

"Zora is the best boxer among the contenders and deserves his chance," said Clay. "But I am the greatest and he'll go when I'm ready."

"Somewhere between the seventh and 11th round," predicted Angelo Dundee, Clay's trainer. Dundee usually has been close to the target.

Folley, a pro 13½ years, has compiled an impressive 74-7-5 won-lost-draw record, including 40 knockouts. But he has been stopped five times. Clay's record is 28-0, including 22 knockouts, in 6½ years.

The champion will have decided advantages in age, height, weight, reach and speed.

Clay stands 6-foot-3, weighs about 210, and has an 80-inch reach. Folley's measurements are 6-0½, 200 and 77.

Jones Negotiates His Own Contract

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — In this, the first year professional football rookies have not benefited immensely from the war between the two leagues, Michigan State's Clint Jones may be unique among the new men joining the pro ranks.

Jones, drafted second Tuesday by the Minnesota Vikings, who considered him the finest college running back available, negotiated his own contract because he wanted to eliminate the middle man — the agent who takes about 15 per cent when it's over.

"I'm happy, and I don't have to share the money I got with an agent," Jones said, after he and Vikings General Manager Jim Finks reached agreement on Thursday.

Terms of Jones' contract were not disclosed by either side. Twin Cities newsmen estimated the fleet halfback received about a $40,000 bonus and a $20,000 first-year salary. But a Vikings spokesman said Saturday those figures were very conservative, and hinted that Jones' total package may have been considerably closer to $100,000.

Sports Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

IT may be chilly or even cold outside, but it didn't freeze up the minds of these qualified Little Leaguers or the young men who plan to participate in Little League. That was proven Saturday when an estimated 800 youngsters turned out to get their physical examination.

The annual examination date arrived sooner than we realized and the report from officials indicated there was a big influx of young boys with the desire to play baseball. They arrived at the National Guard Armory with all the necessary papers to "hit the line" for their examination and they were a happy lot at that.

Thanks to the crew of doctors on hand to conduct the examinations, they were run through without a hitch. The doctors who took turns in examing the boys were Dr. C. Gordon Stauffacher, Dr. A. J. Campbell, Dr. John Lamy, Dr. Elliott Braverman, Dr. A. L. Lowe and Dr. John Brazos.

The truth is, in spite of the work connected with the examinations, I believe the doctors had as much fun with these youngsters as the youngsters had with the doctors. Many didn't know what to expect, some thinking the worst, but when it was all over they were ready to head for the ball parks.

A problem has arisen by the report of so many youngsters — but the problem is to be solved. President Dean Edwards of Little League said Saturday night that in spite of the increase of more than 100 boys, "We are going to make arrangements for more teams and see that every boy gets an opportunity to play. It is going to be difficult due to the need of managers, coaches and others to control the program, but we'll get it done some way or another."

Maj. Russell Rhodes supervised the opening of the Armory where the examinations took place. Officials expressed their appreciation to him as well as to the crew of doctors.

President Edwards announced a call for a meeting at the Missouri State Bank, at 7:30 p. m. Monday. He also said there were some openings for managerships in both the "B" and "C" leagues and men who would like to take over a team are invited to attend this meeting.

REMARKS of George Ray, non-pro commissioner of Missouri's National Baseball Congress, indicated he is hoping some Sedalia merchants will get together and sponsor a city team for Sedalia this year. In a recent talk to the Sedalia Lions Club, he pointed out the interest in baseball could be built if a town team could be organized and given the proper backing.

There is little doubt such a team would be a drawing card for the annual Missouri State Tournament, and create interest among the younger players.

Sedalia should be able to field a real ball club. There is plenty of talent which has played with the Ban Johnson and the Babe Ruth Leagues, Connie Mack, and others for a good strong club.

Age is creeping up on some of the boys who have tried, with success, to have a team in the tournament, but another year added on, and on, and on is slowing them up. I know that most of these fellows, although they would like to play ball, realize their days are numbered as far as the diamond is concerned. But they are ready and willing to take these graduates from these various younger organizations and coach and train them for a strong town club.

The cost is expensive in one sense, but is good publicity for Sedalia. The pot would probably have to be in the neighborhood of $1,500 to $1,700 as new uniforms would have to be bought, as well as other equipment.

It has been done in the past and could be done in the future and give the various merchants some good advertising.

SELECTION of Jim Whitney of Hubbard High School, a member of the Smith-Cotton Tigers, for the All-District basketball team, and that of Larry Bell, were both unanimous when chosen by the district sportswriters and sportscasters. A real honor for both boys.

Whitney and Bell, who are both seniors at Hubbard, had the right to play with the Smith-Cotton team due to the annexation of Hubbard to Smith-Cotton a couple of years ago.

They were both highly recommended, not only by the various members of the sports association, but also by some of the coaches of teams against which the Tigers played this past season.

Number Of New Faces

Pro Wrestling Shifts To Wednesday Night This Week

Pro wrestling shifts to Wednesday night this week, with a four-event Convention Hall card that will feature a number of new faces.

A double main event is scheduled, both clashes to go the best of three - falls distance.

In one of them, Sonny Myers, struggling to regain his mastery as Central States champ, will be in action against stocky Bob Brown, the 245-pound Montreal mauler.

In the other, Earl Maynard, who has won a large following in the Midlands, will go against Tiny Mills, a 270-pound hefty who is back in this area to make his bid for lofty ring recognition.

Others who'll be on hand in their 1967 bows are Steve Bolas and Bobby Duncum. Bolas, a scrappy 230-pounder, has appeared here in other seasons, but for Duncum, a 233-pounder from Amarillo, Tex., this will mark his first area start.

Bolas' task will be to try to offset the blistering speed of the clever Puerto Rican, Victor Rivera. For Duncum, a rough debut is promised. He is pitted against the Pear, a powerful, aggressive battler who has made headway in the area roughing ranks the last several weeks.

Myers figures he has a score to settle with Brown. When he last wrestled Brown's team partner, Bob Geigel, Brown interrupted the action and tried to lend Geigel a helping hand. He caught Myers from behind and allowed Geigel to break the feared sleeper, Myers' usual clinching device.

LEADS IN FISHING CONTEST — Marvin Howard, of the Howard Construction Co., recently spent a vacation in Florida during which time he enjoyed some deep sea fishing. During his trip he caught a 384-pound Blue Marlin which was listed as the top catch in the Miami, Fla., Metropolitan Fishing Tournament. As late as the past week, Howard's catch was still in the lead. Howard is shown with his big catch and three other fish he caught. Howard is on the left, and Capt. Socko Gorenflo (right) guided the charter boat Seabird out of the Holiday Isle Docks, Isamorada. Another Missourian is a leader in the Marlin class, the White Marlin, a 107 pounder caught by Edith Ferguson of Malden, Mo. Howard's picture with his catches also appeared in the Miami Herald.

Johnson's Two-Hit Double Boosts Cards

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Alex Johnson hit a two-run double and scored one run as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Houston Astros 6-2 Saturday in an exhibition game.

Four rookie Cardinal pitchers and veteran Hal Woodeshick limited Houston to four hits.

Houston moved to within a run of the Cardinals at 3-2 when Ron Brand got the Astros' first hit, a pinch double off Mike Torrez in the sixth inning.

Johnson scored the Cardinals' final run on an error and an infield out after knocking in two St. Louis runners in the eighth.

The U.S. was third with 148 points followed by Switzerland with 123 and Canada with 80.

Killy won all three of the men's events and took Saturday's downhill in a time of 2:08.58. Gerhard Nenning of Austria was second in 2:08.82, and Hans Peter Rohr of Switzerland was third in 2:08.99.

Or Be Suspended

University Must Fire By Tuesday

CHICAGO (AP) — The Big Ten faculty representatives Saturday gave the University of Illinois until next Tuesday to fire three coaches involved in the Illini's $21,000 slush fund scandal, or be indefinitely suspended from the conference.

The faculty representatives earlier in the day heard a three-hour final appeal by Dr. David Henry, Illinois president.

But in announcing the deadline for firing the coaches, the faculty men said Illinois "did not sufficiently show cause" under provisions of the Big Ten code why the three involved coaches should not be dismissed.

Dr. Henry, who has steadfastly backed the three coaches — head football Coach Pete Elliott, head basketball Coach Harry Combes and assistant basketball Coach Howie Braun — made a crisp "no comment" to newsmen as the faculty group's decision was announced.

The action was the final conference deliberation on the slush fund scandal which was exposed by Dr. Henry last December 16 upon information given by Mel Brewer, then assistant athletic director.

Marcus Plant, Michigan's faculty representative and also president of NCAA, made the announcement at a crowded news conference. Plant said:

"Having weighed carefully the seriousness of the infractions involved and all of the information of record, including that furnished by the University of Illinois, the faculty representatives have decided that the University of Illinois did not sufficiently show cause under the provisions of the Big Ten Code.

"Therefore, if after March 21 (Tuesday) Coaches Peter Elliott, Harry Combes and Howard Braun, or any one of them, be retained in positions in the coaching of any sport in the intercollegiate athletic program or in the directions or administration of intercollegiate athletics at the University of Illinois, the membership of the University of Illinois in Intercollegiate Conference of Faculty Representatives (Big Ten) shall be suspended indefinitely as of that date.

"In taking this action the faculty representatives are mindful of the honored position of the University of Illinois in the long history of the conference and are hopeful that this association will continue."

Plant proclaimed the suspension as follows:

"During a period of membership suspension, if it should exist, the status of the University of Illinois would be the same as any other non-conference institution. As against termination, suspension carries with it the possibility of reinstatement."

The three coaches could remain in the Physical Education Department but could not have any connection on the intercollegiate staff.

Plant said if Illinois retains the coaches, it could petition for reinstatement, but that such a petition would have a matter of restudy and review by faculty representatives. However, the university would be under suspension while the petition was being reviewed.

Sikes' Score Baffles His Challengers

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Hometown favorite Dan Sikes shot a birdie-studded 70 Saturday despite raw, gusty winds that baffled his challengers and grabbed a three stroke lead in the third round of the $100,000 Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament.

Trying for his first tournament title in two years, Jacksonville's only touring pro birdied five of the first eight holes in a blazing start on the par-72 Deerwood Club course of which he is a member.

Sikes faltered on the back nine, however, and lost half of an early six-stroke margin. The 36-year-old lawyer took a double-bogey six on the 10th hole when he drove into a lake on a costly gamble with the wind. He also bogeyed the 16th and 17th holes.

His 54-hole total of 206 was 10 strokes under par and three shots better than the 209 built up by Gay Brewer Jr., 1966 Jacksonville runner-up who had an erratic 71. The Dallas, Tex., veteran salvaged a sub - par round and held second place despite a slump in which he bogeyed the 8th, 9th and 10th holes.

"The wind was terrific," Brewer said. "I didn't mind the cold, but the wind was even worse than it was in the opening round."

Deadlocked at third with 210 totals were a pair of Californians, muscular Bob Goalby and slender Chuck Courtney.

Goalby, who scored a hole-in-one in the second round, turned in a 71 and Courtney shrugged off the wind and shot a 69, one of only three sub - 70 scores turned in.

Temperatures in the 50s and winds gusting up to 25 miles an hour spoiled the day for most of the golfers, with only nine players breaking par.

900 Spectators Watch

Coaches, Faculty Beat Out Chiefs

The coaches and faculty members of Smith-Cotton High School and Sacred Heart High School were the winners over the Kansas City Chiefs football-basketball team Saturday night. It was a thriller as the game ended 55-54 among cheers from more than 900 basketball fans.

Prior to the feature game, the 'Thins" and the "Fats" cage teams, comprised of members of he Sedalia Lions Club, which sponsored the night of entertainment, put on an exhibition game. The "Thins", using for their gym suits, costumes of the Lions Fashion Show, worked hard to try to over power the "Fats".

After about a half-hour of entertainment, the game came to a conclusion with the teams each having 18 points and nobody knowing how they got them. Later the "old gentlemen" were seen treking out of the gymnasium accompanied by their wives, making such remarks as, "I'm going home to a hot tub and an alcohol rub down."

Actually the Chiefs, who are members of Kansas City's pro football champions of the American Football League, were on tour, playing exhibition basketball just to "keep in condition", as Fred Arbanas explained. "We are having fun traveling the Central area of the United States keeping in good physical condition and at the same time accomplishing goodwill among sports fans. Some of us did play college basketball, and we have combined our talents for sports entertainment in basketball," he said.

Figure it out, the "big gun" was Dave Hill, 6' 6", 290 pound offensive tackle on the football team. Hill hit the basket 14 times for field goals and eight on the free throw line to gather in 36 of the 54 Chiefs points. Hill had a ball during the game, enjoying every minute of it.

Foster McGuire was the number one man in the scoring department for the Sedalians, collecting nine field goals and three free throws for a total 21 points.

It was a thriller from the start to the finish. The Sedalians jumped to an early lead of 14 to 11 in the opening quarter and at one point in the second period had a spread of ten points, only to see it fade away in the final minutes of the half. However, at intermission time, the locals had a two point edge of 27-25.

Early in the first quarter, the Chiefs moved ahead and had a score of 32-29 for a short time, then the locals picked up to score 17 to 14 in the period and lead the game 44-39. In the final period it was a nip-and-tuck scoring spree up to the last two minutes when the Sedalians moved ahead by a point as Earl Finley rushed to drop in a goal. Just at the six point time of the final quarter, Fred Williamson fouled Finley and he dropped in both charity tosses for a three point lead. The clock started and as the clock ticked two seconds Hill tossed one in from the outside and the time ran out as the ball swished the net to give the Chiefs 54 points.

Bart Starr Wins His NFL Passing Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers won his third National Football League passing title in five years last season.

Figures released by the NFL Saturday showed Starr first in three of the four categories used in compiling the passing champion.

Starr, who led the Packers to the NFL title and a victory over the Kansas City Chiefs in the post-season Super Bowl, was first in completion percentage with 62.2 percentage of interceptions with 1.2 and average yards gained per attempt with 8.99.

He was seventh in the other category - total touchdowns - with 14. The leader was Cleveland's Frank Ryan, who threw 29 TD passes.

Sonny Jurgenson of Washington set an NFL record with 254 completions, 12 more than the mark set by John Brodie of San Francisco in 1965. Jurgensen finished second to Starr in the over-all standings.

Kansas Rides Jo Jo White's 22 Points

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Kansas rode Jo Jo White's 22 points, ball-hawking, stealing and passing to a 70-68 victory over Louisville's Missouri Valley champs Saturday night for third place in the NCAA Midwest regional basketball playoff.

Houston met Southern Methodist for the championships in the second game.

The defense and rebounding of high-leaping Vernon Vanoy and the deadly outside shooting of Bill Harmon also were big factors for Kansas.

But it was White, a smooth 6-foot-3 junior, who made the big plays for the Big Eight champions. Kansas, ranked No. 3 nationally, finished 23-4 for the season. Louisville wound up 23-5 and ranked second nationally.

Louisville led 63-61 with seven minutes left, but White tied with a 25-footer. Vanoy put the Jayhawks ahead 64-63 with a free throw, and White popped from the side to make it 66-63 with 5:10 left.

Two quick goals by Butch Beard and Fred Holden put Louisville back in front 67-66 with 4:10 to go. Harmon's shot from the corner put Kansas ahead to stay 68-67.

Then came the clincher. White leaped high to tip a Louisville pass to Harmon, broke down court, took Harmon's pass for a layup for a 70-67 lead with :46 left. Holden's free throw with 39 seconds left gave the Cardinals a chance, and Louisville fired four shots in the closing moments, all missing.

Beard led the losers with 17 points and All-America Westley Unseld scored 16.

Conigliaro Suffers Broken Shoulder

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Boston Red Sox slugger Tony Conigliaro suffered a broken left shoulder blade Saturday when he was hit by a pitch during batting practice.

Johnny Wyatt, a hard-throwing relief pitcher, hit Conigliaro on the back of the left shoulder while the club was taking hitting practice prior to an exhibition game with the Detroit Tigers in nearby Lakeland.

Early indications were that the 1965 American League home run champion would be sidelined for two weeks. The injury was described as a hairline fracture by Red Sox trainer Buddy LeRoux.

Conigliaro was scheduled to fly to Boston Saturday night for further examination. If the Boston diagnosis also indicates a minor fracture, Conigliaro will return to Florida for treatments at the Red Sox training camp.

Missouri Cash Farm Income Up For Year

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Missouri cash farm income for 1966 was $1,506,984,000, up 11 per cent from the income in 1965.

In making this annual report, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said realized income per farm for the year was $3,878, nearly $600 higher than the previous.

Sixty per cent of the cash receipts for the 1966, as well as 1965, was from sales of livestock and livestock products. More than 30 per cent came from sale of crop products.

Income from livestock and livestock products in 1966 added up to $911,125,000, while that for crops was $418,125,000. Receipts were up for soybeans and wheat but down for cotton lint.

Government payments to farmers set a new record high of $139,023,000, up 16 per cent from 1965. Cotton payments were up from $2,083,000 in 1965 to $19,809,000 last year.

Baby's Body Found In A Garbage Dump

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Garbage collectors found the body of a new-born baby in a sack at the city dump Friday morning. The white male child was wrapped in some towels.

The sack containing the body apparently was among items picked up by collectors on their morning rounds, police said.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP) — Roscoe Pace never could get his antique wall clock to work until a sonic boom shook the house. The weight fell off the clock, and the pendulum started to swing. Place put the weight back and the clock kept perfect time for two months.

Then along came another sonic boom, and the clock quit — hasn't run since, no matter what manner of coaxing.

Two Virtues Pay Off

ROVIGO, Italy (AP) — Patience and persistence paid off fourfold for Luigi Gierlli, a miler, whose horse died from "Bellicose causes" in a February 1965 Allied air raid was he was delivering grain along a Po River bank for Italian troops.

A court last Friday agreed to his claim for government compensation and, allowing for inflation, awarded him $166, four times the amount he asked.

Many Applications

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish courts receive about $25,000 applications a year from the under-aged for permission to marry and they approve very few, the paper Express reported.

A 1965 family code bars marriage for men under 21 and girls under 18 unless a court finds "the good of the prospective family or social interest" will be served. The paper said "not even pregnancy is automatically" a decisive factor.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Bulletin

The Pettis County Sheriff's Department received a call from the Sheriff's office in Marshall, Saline County, about 10:20 p.m. Saturday, notifying them of a shooting north of Sedalia near U.S. Highway 65 in Pettis County.

According to Deputy Sheriff Jack Couts, who left for the area, he talked with the sheriff's deputies in Saline County and they indicated the shooting took place at the trailer home of a subject identified as Gene Johnson. According to the information, three men approached the trailer apparently with the intent to break in.

It was said when Johnson stepped outside, the trio started to run and one suddenly stopped and turned around as if he were drawing a gun and with this manuever, Johnson fired at him with his shotgun. The man fell.

The other two went to his side, picked him up, and dragged him off to a car and disappeared.

A check at Bothwell Hospital late Saturday indicated no wounded person had been brought there.

Charles also singled twice. Joe Nossek and Ramon Webster got three hits each for the A's.

Bothwell Friendship Club Plans Picnic

The Bothwell Friendship Club met March 15 at the home of Mrs. Les Sprinkles.

Mrs. Charles Wise read the Easter Story from Mark, Chapter 16. A short business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Vernon Horn. It was decided for each to bring their old Christmas cards to the next meeting to be sent to India. Mrs. Bishop Ream gave a Friendship recipe.

A picnic and hike were planned for March 27.

A flower and seed sale will be held at the next meeting April 19 at the home of Mrs. Lucy Swope.

Large Deer In Pool

However, he had to forego it Friday.

Lovick said he found a large deer frolicking in the water.

He called the Humane Society for assistance, then went back to see if his guest was still swimming.

Lovick watched in amazement as the young buck clambered out, shook himself like a dog and plunged in again. But before the animal-catcher arrived, the deer left the pool, walked casually through the neighborhood and back into the nearby foothills.

Demonstrators Are Freed After Apology

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Three civil rights demonstrators were released from jail Friday after apologizing to Circuit Judge Michale Scott who had found them in contempt of his court.

A total of 15 persons were sentenced in connection with a 1963 civil rights demonstration at a St. Louis bank. All but one, a pregnant woman, have been jailed. She is scheduled for jailing in June.

Released Friday were Benjamin Goins, Kenneth Lee and Ronald Glenn. They apologized to Judge Scott and were freed after hearing a lecture on the "majesty of the law."

Glenn, Lee and Goins were among six jailed Thursday after their appeals to the U.S. Supreme Court were rejected.

Eight others were jailed March 8 for contempt.

May Use Cameras To Patrol Beach Areas

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Police are considering using television cameras to watch beaches for objectionable activities.

This shoreline city has many secluded coves and the cost of patroling them is estimated at $42,000 a year.

Police Chief Harry Labrow said Friday that closed-circuit TV cameras would enable one man at the station to keep tabs on what's going on.

Two manufacturers are making a cost study, the chief said.

First Man To Trial

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A three- judge panel ruled in a preliminary hearing Friday that wealthy retired business leader Clay L. Shaw should become the first man to stand trial concerning the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

In ordering the trial for Shaw on a charge of conspiracy to murder the iresident, Judge Bernard J. Bagert said at the conclusion of the four-day hearing, "This court finds sufficient evidence has been presented to establish probable cause that a crime has been committed."

The ruling came on Shaw's 54th birthday.

The decision was a first-round victory for gun-toting Jim Garrison, his town's 6-foot-6 district attorney. Garrison startled the world a month ago with a satement that he had "solved" the Kennedy assassination, would make arrests, and would obtain convictions.

Garrison, unorthodox and controversial in his five years as district attorney, took an unusual step in asking for the preliminary hearing — a tactic usually resorted to by defense lawyers.

The next step:

"I will file a bill of information," Garrison drawled to newsmen shortly after the panel announced its unanimous decision. He would not say when the action would be taken.

Arraignment and trial came afterward. No dates were set.

"The district attorney selects the date and time a person will be tried," said Judge Bagert, who had asked two of his fellow Criminal District Court judges to sit with him at the preliminary hearing because of its importance.

"The state has six years to prove this case," said defense attorney William Wegmann, in his impassioned plea to the court to throw out the charges.

After the decision, Bill Gurvich, chief investigator for Garrison's office, told newsmen: "We won. If we had needed more goods we would have brought them in."

Perry Raymond Russo, 25, was Garrison's star witness. Russo, a Baton Rouge insurance salesman, told the court he was present in the New Orleans apartment of David W. Ferrie in mid-September 1963 and heard Lee Harvey Oswald, Shaw and Ferrie plotting to assassinate Kennedy.

The plan, Russo testified, involved "triangulation of crossfire," diversionary shooting, a possible flight to Mexico and Cuba, the sacrificing of one man as a scapegoat to permit the others to escape.

Of the three alleged conspirators, only Shaw, who stepped down as managing director of the International Trade Mart here 16 months ago, is alive. Oswald was shot fatally by Jack Ruby, in the Dallas police station two days after the Nov. 22, 1963 assassination of Kennedy.

Ferrie, former airlines pilot with a homosexual record, was found dead in bed last Feb. 22. The coroner ruled his death resulted from natural causes — an aneurysm of a blood vessel in the brain.

Shaw, a rugged 6-foot-2, gray-haired man with erect military bearing, was calm and stoic when the decision was read.

Deepening lines in his face and bloodshot eyes, however, showed the strain he has been under since his arrest March 1.

When arrested, Shaw called Garrison's charge "fantastic." He denied having any part in a conspiracy and said, "I am completely innocent of any such charges."

The Warren Commission found that Oswald was the assassin of Kennedy, but the New Orleans judges refused to admit the commission's report as evidence in the hearing.

"This report is fraught with hearsay. Hearsay four or five times removed," Judge Bagert said Wednesday in announcing the 2-1 vote on rejecting the commission's findings.

Garrison produced two witnesses who linked Shaw and Oswald, New Orleans born ex-Marine who defected to the Soviet Union, then returned after three years.

Oswald, the Warren report documented, was in New Orleans from early April 1963 until Sept. 25, 1963.

Vernon Bundy, 29, an admitted narcotics addict, walked over to Shaw in court Friday and put his hand over the accused's head, identifying him as the man he saw with Oswald here on the Lake Pontchartrain seawall.

Neither Bundy nor Russo testified before the Warren Commission. They were not questioned by federal agents in the case, either.

U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsay Clark said Shaw was investigated by the FBI and cleared of any part in the assassination. Shaw said earlier this month he was not aware of any FBI probe of his activities.

Ferrie gave a statement to the FBI shortly after the assassination. Garrison had arrested him briefly three days after the slaying in Dallas.

The Warren Commission said it had found no evidence that Oswald was involved with any person or group in a conspiracy, but it noted: "Because of the difficulty of proving negatives to a certainty the possibility of others being involved. . .cannot be established categorically."

The court released Shaw on his present $10,000 bond which Shaw posted several hours after his March 1 arrest by Garrison.

Russo said he knew Oswald as "Leon Oswald" and Shaw as "Clem Bertrand."

Russo admitted he had been hypnotized three times while being interrogated by Garrison's aides.

Dr. Esmond Fatter, a physician and hypnosis expert, testified Friday he had given Russo a post-hypnotic suggestion "to present the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth and to be calm, cool and collected."

Shaw's attorneys filed more than 50 formal exceptions during the hearing, laying the groundwork for possible appeals. The exhaustive testimony on hypnotism and use of sodium pentothal — the so-called truth serum — drew a continuing stream of defense objections.

Such testimony, argued defense attorney F. Irving Dymond, would not be permitted in a trial. He said the prosecution was trying "to slip it in the back door" by getting it into the record of the preliminary hearing.

Transcript of the preliminary hearing automatically goes into the trial record and cannot be blocked by the defense.

Two Freight Trains Smashed Near Wichita

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Two freight train wrecks occurred in the Wichita area Friday, destroying a large amount of merchandise, but no one was jured.

The most spectacular mishap was at the edge of Kechi 10 miles northeast of Wichita where 30 cars of a Rock Island train piled up and exploded in flames.

The cars carried oil drums, new cars, tires, furniture, air conditioners and breakfast foods. The blaze started a grass fire which spread a half-mile along the tracks.

About 50 cars of an eastbound Santa Fe train derailed near Argonia about 40 miles southwest of Wichita. Those cars were loaded with fertilizer and chemicals.

Dee Ellison

Andrew Alexander

Chris Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Chapman, 701 West Broadway; Dee Ellison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ellison, 2236 West Third; and Andrew Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Alexander, 637 East 18th Street, have been selected as nominees for the National Council of Teachers of English Awards. All three are students at Smith - Cotton High School.

According to Mrs. Helen Mitchell, teacher of Language Arts III at Smith-Cotton, the purpose of these awards is to grant public recognition to some of the best high school English students in the United States. This year will mark the tenth consecutive year that the NCTA has sponsored this program. Although the awards carry no direct cash value, they have helped many winners and runners-up gain scholarship aid. In addition, almost without exception, the winners and runners-up have been admitted to one of the colleges of their choice.

Each finalist will receive a scroll plus recommendations to college and universities that they be considered for scholarship aid if their financial situation warrants such aid. A certificate of recognition will be given to each department of English from which an award winner or runner-up is selected.

Miss Chapman, Miss Ellison, and Alexander were selected from the S-C Junior Class to participate in this contest. They will be required to write an autobiography and various compositions. Also, they will take examinations to determine the stability of their literary background.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday Morning, March 19, 1967 — In Combination With The Sedalia Capital

Press Secretary Likes Job

EDITOR'S NOTE G— Even President Johnson calls it "the hell department," but Liz Carpenter likes it. That's her job in the White House as press secretary to Lady Bird. Liz says it's a matter of "dogs, daughters and delphinium," but actually she's a promoter of the Johnson product.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maybe you can lure Jack Valenti away from the White House, or Bill Moyers, but not Liz Carpenter.

Liz who? Mary Elizabeth Carpenter, press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson. She likes her job despite the occasional presidential flaps which send her scurrying to the tranquilizer bottle.

Liz Carpenter has been with the Johnsons since the early days, and she aims to stay. "I can't think of a job that would be more rewarding," she says. "I'm here until I go out at the end of a boot, because I'm inspired and thrilled to be here."

The $20,000-a-year press secretary, public relations expert and adviser to the First Lady is a fifth-generation Texan. Born in Salado, Mary Elizabeth Sutherland Carpenter is the wife of newsman-columnist Leslie Carpenter, a fellow Texan whom she met while they attended the University of Texas.

They have known the Johnsons more than 20 years. When Liz and Les were married in Washington Cathedral in 1944, Rep. and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson were among the guests.

Gray-haired, 5-foot-2, and a bustling organizer, Liz extends her enthusiastic energies to job and family, which includes son, Scott, 20, and daughter, Christy, 17. She worries about not spending enough time with her family and once sent Johnson a note observing that she was taking the day off "to do what only a mother can do."

What makes her job such a busy one:

A White House check recently o n incoming calls placed Liz among the top three, handling more than 100 calls a day. Her office receives as many as 3,500 letters a week. They range from beautification to queries about White House furnishings. A large number are what she dubs, "Please call this to the President's attention" letters that pour in for Mrs. Johnson.

Liz tries to maintain a good relationship with the press. She says she never forgets "I was a newspaperwoman myself." She worked for a news service — United Press in Philadelphia — and for Texas newspapers before joining husband Les in their Washington "Carpenter News Bureau" that serves a string of newspapers from Boston to Austin, Tex. Asked if she ever covered Johnson, Liz replied: "I'll say — about 18 years as congressman and senator." Then she went to work for him as vice president.

She is the first professional newspaperwoman to serve as press secretary to a First Lady. She moved into the post from another unique job — the first woman executive assistant to a vice president — Johnson. In that job she did everything from helping write Johnson speeches to planning his trips abroad and office routine.

In her White House role, Liz has handled Johnson family news including Luci's wedding and Lynda's romances. Her press problems have included advising Mrs. Johnson on how to handle campaign hecklers.

Wit and warm-heartedness have helped Liz through many a tight spot. If turned away with a quip, reporters may be frustrated but they usually laugh with her.

Travelers on 1964 whistle-stop train and plane campaign trips remember her advice to those who might be left behind: "Just take out residency, register and vote," or, "Just plant a tree and vote democratic."

Campaign time involves considerable air travel with the First Lady — a type of travel Liz would rather do without. She's a "frightened flier" who usually clutches the hand of the person nearest her at the slightest air turbulence.

In a more relaxed moment, she described her White House role as "helping Mrs. Johnson help the President." Liz said her domain is "dogs, daughters and delphinium."

But her role obviously is more than that.

It was Liz for example, who hastily scribbled for Johnson the first public words he said on his return to Washington from Dallas after the assassination of John F. Kennedy — "This is a sad time for all people ... I asked for your help — and God's ..."

Liz is basically a promoter of the Johnson product. She suffered at times from a tendency to oversell.

Asked in a recent interview what was the best thing about her job, Liz replied: "Well, I guess Mrs. Johnson. She's made every woman realize they have an obligation to participate in community affairs" in addition to a family role.

In Asia, when pressed for information about gifts being showered on the Johnsons, a subject she didn't want to get into, Liz was finally urged just to say what had been the biggest gift.

"Asian good will," she said.

Liz sometimes finds herself in the doghouse — never more solidly established there, she says, than last summer during preparations for Luci's wedding to Patrick J. Nugent. Johnson thought there was "too much wedding news."

But when it was all over, the Johnsons congratulated Liz. The President told her, "You went through hell. But then, you're in the hell department."

Liz quips, "He gave me the dogs (the Johnsons' beagles were often in the news) early in the game, and I'm usually in the doghouse."

Her doghouse residency sometimes is triggered by the lady reporters who cover the White House. Sometimes they let go with a blast in her direction if they don't get the information they want, or if they feel they have been treated unfairly.

Whether it's during one of these flareups or in happier circumstances, Liz says she hates "not to say anything. I really am on the side of the person getting the story, because I've been there."

Here's a look at Liz's white house operation:

She holds briefings only when she has something special to announce. She often serves tea and cookies in front of the library fireplace while dispensing news. She handles most routine press queries by phone. Her office issues numerous press releases about Mrs. Johnson's activities.

Liz's domain is a three-room suite in the East Wing of the White House, carpeted in sapphire blue. She runs a five-woman staff "like a city room," handing out assignments for the week. Altogether a staff of 20, including social secretaries, personal secretaries and people on beautification projects serve the First Lady.

Liz talks on the phone or confers with Mrs. Johnson at least once a day, sometimes three times. They usually talk between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. when Johnson is normally tied up in his office. While everyone is on a first-name basis with Liz, she refers to her boss as Mrs. Johnson. "I used to call her Lady Bird, but I just feel a lot more comfortable calling her 'Mrs. Johnsons out of respect for the office," Liz explains.

Liz attends weekly West Wing staff meetings with presidential aide Robert Kintner, a former television executive, to keep up with the President's doings. Facing a press problem for the First Family, Liz tries to prepare a solution — "one or more" — for her bosses to choose from. If it's a tough problem — like how to handle the announcement of Luci's conversion to Catholicism — "I run it past people whose judgment I respect." and one such is Clark Clifford, a lawyer and unofficial presidential adviser.

Liz and the President's press secretary frequently find they run into a jurisdictional confusion over who is to handle an overlapping family news event. The President is usually the arbiter for who handles what, however.

The Rev. Gene Anglin performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums and cathedral candelabra holding lighted candles entwined with foliage.

Mrs. Jerry Jobe played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Miss Susie Taylor, Winston, who sang "Because" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white peau de soie. The fitted bodice was styled with a semi-scooped neckline accented with appliqued roses and long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists. The controlled A-line skirt was finished at the hemline with appliqued roses also. The chapel length train was fastened at the waist and accented with a soft bow. The bride's dress was made by Mrs. Dwight Strother, sister of the bride. Her crown of lace petals, outlined with tiny pearls, secured the full finger tip length veil of silk illusion. She carried two white Japette orchids and yellow pom pons with white velvet ivy atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Stefan DeLong was matron of honor. She wore a floor length yellow peau de soie gown styled with fitted bodice with modified scoop neckline and back. Her bouquet was a yellow chrysanthemum with green background. She wore a yellow bow with a short veil as a headpiece.

Miss Rhonda Sue Kirchoff, niece of the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald K. Kirchoff California, was flower girl. She carried a lace basket of petals.

Master Keith Gillilan, nephew of the groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Gillilan, Kansas City, served as ring bearer. He carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

The bride's mother chose a navy double knit dress with black accessories. The groom's mother selected a navy suit with black accessories. Both wore corsages of white spider chrysanthemums.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church basement. The bride's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth over yellow, centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The table was decorated with yellow candles and small yellow chrysanthemums and greenery. Music Club Hears Young Musicians

Members of Helen G. Steele Music Club and guests were given an opportunity to hear four talented young Sedalians they had enjoyed in musical appearance through their high school days at Smith - Cotton, and who now have the advanced musical training and polish of college. The group, Diana Gray, soprano and Tom Trout, baritone, from Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg and Michael M. Rooks, tenor and W. Michael Jonson, pianist, from Central Methodist College, Fayette, were introduced by Mrs. Shelby Hunter, as were their accompanists, Vicki Ulrey, CMSC, and Michael Foerstel, Central Methodist College.

Mike Rooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Rooks, 314 South Park, a Sophomore, who has a tenor voice of high quality was the first young artist presented for the evening.

He sang: Beau Soir by Debussy; Die Lotus Blume, Op. 25, No. 7, Rob Schumann; Nur Wer de Sehnsucht Kennt, by Tschaikowsky; O Fair to See, by Finzi which included Oh Fair to See, No. 2, As I Lay in the Early Sun, No. 3 and Harvest, No. 6.

A brilliant performance was given by Mike Jonson, pianist, who played Sonata in D Minor, Longo 366, by D. Scarlatti; Berceuse, Opus 57, by Chopin; Eutde un sospiri by Liszt. Superbly played, too, was Variations in C minor, by Beethovan, which Jonson explained was written just before the composer's death and into which he had perhaps put many emotions he felt during that time.

Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neville Jonson, 1631 West Seventh. He is a Senior at Central Methodist, and plans to continue his studies in the field of piano and music history and literature at an eastern university with graduate studies following his graduation this spring.

Lovely blonde Diana Gray, with a voice just as lovely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gray, 506 South Park, wore a floor length formal of white brocaded satin, the low neckline edged with pearls.

Diana, a soprano, is a Sophomore at CMSC.

Her selections included: "Mimi" from "La Boheme" by Puccini; No. V from "I Hate Music" by Leonard Bernstein (a cycle of five kid songs); "Strongly Founded" recitative, Mozart, and Aria from "Cosi Fan Tutte" (Women Are Like That.)

The rich baritone voice of Tom Trout delighted the audience as he sang "Pari Siamo" recitative from "Rigoletto" by Verdi; the "Lone Dog" and "I Would Like a Word With all you Lovely Women" from "Cosi Fan Tutte" by Mozart.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Trout, 2600 East 12th, and is also a Sophomore at CMSC.

A perfect closing for the program was the singing of two love songs by Diana Gray and Tom Trout who have been singing together through high school and now college, making many appearances as they accompany Warren C. Lovinger, president of CMSC on speaking engagements.

Their voices blend beautifully and they sang as their duets, "Sleepers Awake" by Bach and "La ci darem la mano" (Nay, bid me not Resign Love,) from "Don Giovanni" Mozart.

Presiding was Mrs. L. H. Hodges, president of Helen G. Steele Music Club, who introduced the parents of the young artists; Mrs. Geraldine Schrader, their music director at Smith-Cotton, and others.

Mrs. Calfin Otten, program chairman, presented the Otterville High School Home Economics department, under the direction of Mrs. Daune Broadersen, who presented a fashion show.

The freshman girls modeled their one-piece jumpers which they made during the fall in home economics classes. The following girls modeled: Beverly Allee, Debra Bremer, Karen Burnett, Debra Corson, Kathy Gerke, Phyllis Hassler, Shirley Meyer, Virginia Peoples, Candace Todd and Joan Young.

The junior and senior girls modeled their lined jackets, coats or suits in a spring fashion presentation. Those modeling from this class were: Delores Geiser, Sharon Gochenour, Cherryl Griffith, Kathy Kruse, Yavonne Otten, Mary Thomas and Patrica Young. Suzette Burnett accompanied the show by playing piano selections.

The freshman class received the attendance award.

Attended Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Veille, Rose Mary Lee, Margaret Richards and Ramona Zimmerschied of Fine Arts Studio, attended the annual Missouri Professional Photographers Association Convention March 12, 13, and 14 at the Gateway Hotel in St. Louis.

House Hits Deadline For Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House finally hit its deadline for the introduction of new business, and when the last-minute barrage ended 876 new bills and 57 proposals to amend the constitution had been introduced.

This may not be a record, but it shows someone wants to do something.

One of the reasons for the mass of bills is reapportionment.

With 67 new districts and many of the representatives coming to the Capitol on a specific mandate, you can be sure they would put a bill in to comply with the platforms they used in their campaigns.

But the old pros still run th show.

As one Capitol reporter commented: "If you know the road through the Legislature, you will find it is well paved."

The new legislators have made their presence known in more ways than introducing bills that will proably not get anywhere.

Most of them seem to be willing to jump up and debate, and most of them seem to be doing their home work.

It appears the old style of politicking — getting together in an office or a hotel room and having a couple of drinks and settling things before they come on the floor—may be coming to an end.

That well paved road will be just a little rougher if the trend continues.

An example came up Thursday in House debate about affording school teachers a 30-minute lunch break.

Rep. George Parker, a freshman Republican representative from Columbia, tuned up on his favorite theme — let local government take care of its own problems. He argued there is no need for the Legislature to become involved in local problems.

Rep. Ray James, a freshman Republican from Kansas City, came back:

"As the former chairman of the Youth for Goldwater Club in Kansas City, and a former school teacher, I must support this bill."

The bill was moved forward with amendments. The striking thing was the demonstration of independence by new members from the same party.

The same thing has happened on the Democratic side of the aisle.

As the 1967 Legislature continues and the House gets down to debate on its 876 bills, more is going to be heard from these freshmen, and the effects of reapportionment will become more obvious.

Californian Given Testimonial Dinner

A testimonial dinner was give on March 7 at the White Eagle Restaurant in California honoring Walter Eitzen in recognition of the 60th anniversary of his election to the board of directors of the Farmers and Traders Bank in California. The dinner was given by the board of directors and employees of the bank.

He first started working with the bank as a clerk. He was elected to the board of directors on March 5, 1907 and served as vice-president of the board for many years and last year was elected chairman of the board, a new office created for him after the death of the bank president, Henry Kuhn.

Following the dinner, Harold Firedmeyer, vice president of the bank and arrangement chairman, made the introductions. Special recognition was given three of the guests, Mrs. T. A. Harvey, Mrs. J. T. Lee and Mrs. T. E. Heyssel widows of former bank officials

John Kibbee gave an address and in closing introduced a resolution giving honor and respect to Eitzen for his 60 years of service to the bank. The resolution was then signed by everyone present and given to Mr. Eitzen.

Paul Kuester, president of the bank, spoke briefly and read a copy of the letter notifying Mr. Eitzen of his selection to the board replacing G. A. Burkhart. He presented Mr. Eitzen a barometer-thermometer, a momento of the occasion.

Phi Phi Plans Scavenger Hunt

Phi Phi Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, met Mar. 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Miss Dorothy Maples, LaMonte, for pledge training and regular meeting.

Plans were completed for the March social to be a scavenger hunt party Mar. 14, at the home of Judy Talbot, sponsor.

It was voted to adopt a needy family as their major service for the year.

The next regular meeting will be March 22 at the home of Peggy Brown.

Sees Credit Needs Are Not Heeded

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Fred V. Heinkel of the Mid-Continent Farmers Association says the federal government is tending to ignore credit needs of farmers at a time when such needs are increasing.

Heinkel, an adviser to the administration on farm matters, points particularly to funds for farm loans by the Farmers Home Administration. This agency makes, for the most part, supervised loans to farmers and to non-farm rural residents unable to obtain credit elsewhere.

Heinkel criticized farm loan operations in the latest issue of the monthly magazine, The Missouri Farmer, published jointly by the association and the Missouri Farmers Association.

"There is occasion for concern because the need for more (supervised) farm credit is being ignored," he said. "This is important to all farmers — not just those who borrow from the Farmers Home Administration —because the amount of money which that agency pumps into your community makes a difference in the competition for farm loans there."

Heinkel said the administration asked Congress for increased loan funds for non-farm rural lending operations, but not for farmers.

"Money appropriated by Congress for farm loans should be increased significantly," he said.

AP SPOTLIGHT
China
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

After a year of politicalconvulsion and seven months of what the outside world saw as incredible mass madness, Communist China faces its moment of truth.

Mao Tse-tung's regime appears to have made at least a tactical retreat. It has paused for breath in the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. But it warns that the next 60 days will be the most critical of all in the "struggle to seize power from the handful of people in authority in the Communist party who have taken to the capitalist road."

By the Chinese own accounts, hardly one of the 23 provinces and five so-called autonomous regions has escaped damage. Domestic broadcasts from major cities reflect continuing confusion, civil strife and official desperation. They warn constantly that "counterrevolutionaries" are plotting counterattacks.

Someone in authority — perhaps Premier Chou En-lai with the support of Mao himself — is cautiously trying to apply brakes. There are signs that Mao's forces, having established at least tenuous authority in many provinces, now seek some sort of compromise which might minimize serious dangers to agriculture and a threat of starvation for millions.

Mao's cultural revolution, with roots reaching back at least nine years to a time of opposition to his internal and external policies, began in earnest last May with the purge of Peng Chen, then No. 7 man in the Politburo and the powerful mayor o fPeking.

The movement became violent in August, when an order of the Communist party Central Committee sent teen-age Red Guards, millions strong, into city streets. They were told to destroy "the four olds" — old customs, ideas, habits and culture.

Freed from school and from studying anything but "Mao Tse-tung's thoughts," the Red Guards were given a license for unbridled cruelty to suspected enemies of their leader Mao.

Mao's cultural revolution was an attempt to impose the chairman's austere ideology.

Behind Mao were those who saw constant revolution in austerity as essential for a distant dream of communism. Opposing him were entrenched bureaucrats, provincial and city party leaders, for whom constant revolution was a threat. They sought nation- building and perhaps a more rational approach to realizing China's nationalist dreams of world power.

The bureaucracy was built by men like Peng Chen, architect and boss of the Young Communist League; Liu Shao-chi, president of the country who shaped and commanded the trade union [illegible] Tong Hsiao-ping, the party general secretary re[illegible] the functioning of a farflung apparatus.

These — along with some army officers who resented nonprofessional interference by politicians — made up a tough opposition.

Slowly, now the Maoist forces seem moving in, re-establishing power where it was challenged in the provinces.

Admittedly the information is one-sided. It all comes from domestic broadcasts from Peking and the provinces. Evidently all access to information and propaganda is in Maoist hands and the opposition lacks a public voice.

But if even part of what the broadcasts say is true, China is in trouble. Here is the picture given by the domestic transmissions:

Where Maoists succeed in "seizing power," enormous mass rallies still interfere with orderly government and production. A vast new "rectification campaign" has been ordered to re-educate those who opposed Mao. Rallies produce florid pledges to Mao.

One example from a Kiangsi Province rally:

"Chairman Mao, our dearest, dearest, dearest great leader, the reddest, reddest, reddest sun in our hearts, great leader, teacher, commander and helmsman, our dearest, dearest red commander in chief: we loyally wish you eternal life."

Mao's children — the Hung Wei Ping (Red Guards) and Tsaofan (Revolutionary Rebels) — still rampage against the "handful of people in authority."

The cultural revolution remains a picture of utter confusion compounded. Some organizations supposed to have been pro-Mao proved to be anti-Mao. Many were "suppressed" and broken up by army action. When "culprits were "unmasked" in areas under Maoist control, they were beaten and paraded in the streets.

In troubled Manchuria, broadcasts speak of a "great January revolution" and 100 days of "arduous battle" in which the enemy was routed. "Class enemies" included "the Red Flag Army, the Combat Preparedness Army. . . and other vermin."

In Tsinghai Province, the "18 Aug. Red Guard fight detachment" turned out to be "counterrevolutionary, along with all its branches." The Sining army garrison moved in but broadcasts said the chief culprits remained at large, still putting up posters to confuse issues, still plotting counterattack.

There have been all manner of pro-Mao and anti-Mao organizations.

Some of the pro-Mao: the Mao Tse-tung's Thought Red Workers Combat Regiment; the Tiger and Leopard Chasing Combat Detachment for Defending Mao Tse- tung's Thought; the Revolutionary Rebels Dare-to-Die Column.

Some anti-Mao: the Red Flag Army (Shantung); the Army of Demoralized Soldiers; the Aug. 1 Army (Sinkiang); the All-China Organization of Rebel Armies for the Destruction of Capitalism."

To Maoists, all anti-Maoists have "dog's heads." All "dog's heads must be bashed in." Often, the "handful" in the party are called "filthy swine" who plot to undermine Mao.

In one province, "the handful of swine" was accused of undermining hog production. Others undertook "black measures of increasing wages and welfare benefits." That is "economism," which means bribing workers and peasants with better pay and condutions.

The cultural revolution has wrecked the former party structure at province and city levels.

It also has raised the specter of agricultural crisis. Officials warn of famine in some areas. Hohan, Mao's native province and the nation's breadbasket has been in uproar and production has been damaged. Shensi Province is warned of a famine threat. Hupeh of the danger of drought.

Education was halted completely for nine months — a setback for the long-cherished Red Chinese "march on science." Only now are students trickling back to primary schools.

The central government has been hurt. Premier Chou was quoted as complaining the purge had taken 8 of his 15 deputy premiers. He was pictured as dismayed at the death of a government minister after 40 days of manhandling by the Red Guards.

There is evidence of conflict within the army's command structure. Reports quoting Peking wall posters told of mutinies and defections in Honan, Inner Mongolia, Tibet and Sinkiang. Somewhere in Northwest China, Ho Lung, former army marshal and vice premier, is reported holed up with troops and probably support from his protege Wang En-mao, Sinkiang military commander.

The cultural revolution has generated tension in areas bordering the SovietUnion, raising a possibility of secession movements in areas vital to China's nuclear program. Sinkiang, site of the nuclear tests, has reported widespread fighting. This province's people are 70 per cent non-Chinese. Soviet propaganda floods in across the border, detailing alleged abuse of the indigenous people by Chinese authorities. The Russians, always interested in Sinkiang's store of natural wealth, are all the more interested in the light of China's nuclear program and Peking's deep hostility to Moscow.

Again and again in the provinces, statements obviously dictated by Peking say the next two months will be most critical in the "power seizure struggle." The "handful of swime" in the party will not be reconciled to defeat, Maoists are warned. Counterattacks must be expected.

Mao's "closest comrade-in-arms," Defense Minister Lin Piao, has made no public appearances lately, but he remains much in evidence in propaganda.

Mao forces seem to have control — often tenuous — in probably 20 of the 28 provinces and autonomous regions. Internal propaganda indicates the situation is serious for Maoists in Sinkiang, Tibet, Kirn and Heilungkiang in Manchuria, Kwangtung, Szechwan and Yunnan.

Shantung and its chief port, Tsingtao, were scenes of the bloodiest fighting. Violent battles have been reported in Honan, in Manchuria, in Kwangtung in southeast China. In Tibet, Chang Kuo- hua, party boss and military commander, according to Peking reports used his troops to chase out a Red Guard invasion.

In Inner Mongolia, the fiery Ulanfu, purged as vice premier in Peking seems still in control.

There have been reports of border clashes with the Russians along the 4,150 miles of frontier from Sinkiang to Manchuria. There have been armed clashes of pro-Mao and anti-Mao forces, with many killed, in a number of provinces — by Peking's own admission.

In the city of Canton, workers used their tools as weapons against Maoists.

Mao's regime seems to have the loyalty of the bulk of the army. All propaganda is keyed to the idea that "the PLA is the foundation of proletearian revolution." The PLA — People's Liberation Army — is also a powerful weapon for re-establishing control.

There seems now to be an effort to slow down the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution before the damage becomes irreparable.

Androids Are Here To Hep Man

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

AZUSA, Calif. (AP)—The age of the android has dawned.

Androids are automatons fashioned in human form—long forecast in science fiction.

Man's progress toward duplicating himself took a spectacular step forward this week with a demonstration in an electronics laboratory of a lifelike, life-size dummy that breathes, has a heartbeat and pulse, blinks its eyes, opens its jaws to disclose teeth, tongue and vocal cords, and even responds to drugs the way a man would.

The 6-foot-2, 195-pound android was created in skin-colored, skin-textured plastic to speed up the teaching of anesthesiology and thus help relieve a shortage of physicians threatening to become critical as the population expands.

The dummy has been dubbed "Sim One," meaning it is the first of a progressively complex series of simulators planned to train doctors and aides in health services ranging from first aid to fractures.

Sim One is instrumented only in head and chest but one of its creators, Dr. Stephen Abrahamson of the University of California School of Medicine, predicts a fully functional "whole unconscious form" in seven years.

"The future is unlimited," Abrahamson said at a news briefing at the Aerojet-General Corp. laboratory where Sim One was created. "The second generation of Sims will be able to bleed and sweat and will be shaped to simulate different ages of each sex. The third generation, which we hope to evolve within several years, will be even better than cadavers for training medical students."

Will they be able to walk and talk?

"They could—that would be a comparatively simple task," said Don Carter of Sierra Engineering Co., which made Sim One and also makes Sierra Sam and Sierra Sue, dummies used in auto and plane crash research.

"But there is no requirement so far for an ambulatory patient. They have talked about asking us to build in a groan, and the second generation will shed tears and bleed at the mouth if the student is too rough."

The three-year project to build Sim One cost $272,130 under a grant from the U.S. Office of Education. The manikin accounted for $100,000 of this. The rest went into research to hook it up with a computer which calculates its responses to drugs injected by catether and to mixed anesthetic gases forced into its plastic bronchial tubes.

LONDON (AP) — High British officials say despite a financial offer from the West German government, the British government will cut its 59,000-man army in Germany unless the United States makes substantial purchases in Britain to offset the British loss in foreign exchange.

Diplomats reported Thursday night that the Bonn government has offered to make special military and civilian purchases in Britain to offset $113.4 million — about half — of the foreign exchange costs of Britain's Rhine army.

Britain demands that her foreign exchange outgo for the troops be covered completely. But officials are hopeful that the gap will be reduced, if not closed, by a special new U.S. spending program.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A night club stripper who called herself "Caroline de Monaco" has changed her name and her act following a protest from Monaco's honorary consul in Beirut.

The consul objected to the stripper using the same name as a young daughter of Prince Rainier and Princess Grace. Lebanese authorities told the entertainer to change her billing and get a new routine.

TOKYO (AP) — The United Church of Japan, the country's largest Protestant organization, said today it will confess its sin in supporting Japanese militarists in World War II and will ask forgiveness.

A written confession will be sent to churches in Korea, Formosa, the Philippines and Thailand on Easter, March 26, the anniversary of the United Church's 1944 message to Asian Christians urging cooperation with Japan to win the war.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Nineteen persons died in a fire today in the north Formosa city of Keelung, Taipei's port. The fire destroyed a four-story building and badly damaged an adjoining one.

Four other persons were seriously injured.

LONDON (AP) — The British government Wednesday night forbade the sale of the empty oil pipeline between Rhodesia and the port of Beira, in Portuguese Mozambique.

Operation of the 180-mile pipeline was halted in December 1965 as part of the campaign to overturn the unilateral declaration of independence by the white minority government of the British colony.

The pipeline is reported on the market, and the British are concerned that it might be bought by international interests that would flout the oil blockade against Rhodesia.

The order barring its sale was issued to the Lonrho company, a British firm which controls 62 per cent of the Portuguese corporation that owns the pipeline. Lonrho claims it has no authority to prevent any sale since five of the nine directors of the pipeline company are Portuguese.

TUNIS (AP) — A French heart specialist attending President Habib Bourguiba said today the 63-year-old president should have a rapid and complete recovery from the heart attack he suffered Tuesday night.

The doctor, Prof. Francis Lenegre, examined Bourguiba for the second time and reported his constitution is robust and his morale high.

Lenegre said he was returning to Paris, leaving Bourguiba in the care of his personal physicians.

A bulletin issued Wednesday said Bourguiba must have a period of complete rest.

BRAGANCA, Portugal (AP) — Portuguese Air Force Lt. Antonio Marcolino was stunting his T6 training plane over his father's house Wednesday when he hit a tree.

LBJ To Get All Funds For Viet War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted overwhelmingly to give President Johnson nearly all the extra money he's asked for the Vietnam war.

By a 385-11 margin, the House passed Thursday and sent to the Senate a $12.19-billion emergency appropriation bill for defense. That was only $79.3 million less than Johnson asked.

The House action came as Johnson signed an authorization bill passed earlier by Congress covering $4.59 billion of the sum voted Thursday for Vietnam fighting.

Before approving the appropriation bill, the House crushed 123 to 2 an amendment that would have put it in opposition to a land invasion of North Vietnam.

Final Senate approval of the emergency appropriation would boost to about $71 billion the amount allocated to defense during the current fiscal year. Johnson is asking about $72 billion for defense for the year starting July 1.

In the Senate, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield suggested that the United States work through the United Nations Security Council to bring nations involved in the war to the peace table for talks.

Mansfield said a Security Council invitation should go to all nations "deeply involved" in the Vietnam struggle, including non-U.N. members North Vietnam and Communist China.

The Montanan said he's hopeful that secret diplomacy eventually will lead to peace talks, but added: "In my judgment, if there is to be peace in Vietnam, the need remains for a direct confrontation of views between all of the principals."

Driver Says Milk Truck Gun Target

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The driver of a bulk milk truck reported someone fired a bullet into the truck's tank Thursday, the first day of a milk withholding action by farmers.

Hurse Smith, manager of the Kraft Foods plant at Mountain Grove, Mo., said the bullet from a high power rifle struck the middle of the tank, resulting the loss of nearly half the load of milk.

Roy Coffman, driver of the truck, said the shot was fired near Dawson, which is about 10 miles north of Mountain Grove.

Smith said from 5 to 8 per cent of their normal daily supply was withheld Thursday.

Leaders of the National Farmers Organization said they expect more farmers to join in the milk dumping drive to protest low prices.

The NFO says the price of about nine cents a quart paid to farmers is comparable to that of 15 years ago.

A dairyman in Lawrence County said he dumped $268 worth of milk Thursday. Another, in Christian County, said he threw away about 3,300 pounds of milk — about 400 gallons.

In Laclede County, farmers brought their milk to the Wallace Hill farm, about five miles north of Lebanon, and dumped it. NFO officials declined to estimate how much milk or how many farmers were involved.

Rhea Hackler of Springfield, national NFO director and president of the organization's Missouri board, said more farmers would join the dumping move today.

"It looks like we're starting a good, solid business action and that's what we intend for it to be," Hackler said.

Milk deliveries in Kansas City were reported normal Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of Labor James J. Reynolds contends "there is no other answer" than a strike by public employes if they are unable to get a fair share of the nation's expanding wealth.

In a speech before the founding convention of the AFL-CIO Council of Scientific, Professional and Cultural Employes Thursday, Reynolds said public service workers "must forego some of the freedoms" of employes of private firms because of the nature of their work.

But, he added, this same reasoning applies to employers who have a larger responsibility to solve their employes' problems and complaints. Reynolds also urged the newly formed organization to seek a way to fulfill the needs of public employes without strikes.

The Senate has passed without objection President Johnson's plan to provide famine-threatened India with an additional 3 million tons of food grains this year. The measure now goes back to the House for consideration of a minor change in language.

Rep. James G. O'Hara of Michigan was elected chairman of the Democratic study group which includes more than 100 liberal House members.

The new deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs is Richard Fryklund, military writer for the Evening Star in Washington.

Former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown was named to head a 12-member presidential commission to review federal criminal laws.

The Agency for International Development has created an advisory council of businessmen to help stimulate private investment in underdeveloped countries.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart denies he is making a "malicious assault on a noble profession" by pressing for a federal ban on doctors owning drugstores and selling certain items they prescribe.

Instead, the Michigan Democrat said Thursday, "We are concerned — as we are obligated to be — for the anticompetitive effects of doctor-merchants on the market place.

"It is well documented that the consumer pays less where competition exists. Competition can't exist where a doctor is the exclusive purchasing agent for his patients."

Humphrey, predicting a Soviet attempt to orbit a large manned space platform this year to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Russian revolution and the 10th anniversary of their first Sputnik.

New Theory On Snowman Is Advanced

By DELIP BOSE

DARJEELING, India (AP) — Did the Abominable Snowman of the Himalayas suffer from a lack of love life, gradually decreasing in numbers until he, like the dinosaur, faded into extinction?

This is a theory now advanced by Nawang Gombu, the only man ever to climb Mt. Everest twice.

Gombu is convinced the Abominable Snowman, or Yeti, as he is called by mountainfolk, actually existed. In fact, Gombu believes he heard the shrill, tiger-like scream of the Yeti when he was a child, living on the Tibetan slopes of Mt. Everest.

The veteran Sherpa mountain guide says he was a child attending Rongbuk Monastery when he had what he believes was his only encounter with the Yeti.

It was one holiday period, Gombu recalls, and he and some friends were gathering dry yak dung, used as cookstove fuel, near the monastery. Suddenly they heard a long, piercing scream.

Frightened nearly out of their wits, the children ran crying to the monastery and told the abbot of their experience. The old man told them it was merely the call of the Yeti, the legendary apeman of the Himalayas.

The lama then held special prayer sessions to calm the boys, but Gombu remembers that it was two full days before he could think about the scream without shuddering. Gombu, of course, had seen numerous drawings supposedly representing the Yeti, in his Tibetan text books at the monastery.

During his last visit to the Everest region, in 1965, Gombu traveled through hill settlements, asking the older people whether they had ever seen a Yeti. All of them believe in the Snowman's existence, Gombu relates, but no one, even one man nearly 100 years old, had ever seen the Yeti.

Several told of having heard the Yeti's scream.

Gombu said during a talk with newsmen that he felt the Yeti lived in the mountains at about 18,000 feet, where he could forage for plant growth.

But the Sherpa feels that with all of the mountain expeditions of recent years one of them would have discovered a Yeti if the creature still lived. He points out that communications are better in the mountain region, and on the other side of the border Communist Chinese troops are on patrol, yet there have never been any substantiated reports of a Yeti being seen.

Therefore, Gombu concludes, the Yeti has gone the way of the dinosaur.

Gombu was a member of the 1963 American expedition which conquered the 29,028-foot Everest, and one of the four men in the Indian team which reached the summit in 1965. He thus became the only man to climb the mountain twice.

HER HANDS FREE for other traveling tasks, this member of an African company of singers, dancers and musicians balances some of her luggage on her head on arrival in London for a performance.

Preserve Library As Historical Mark

LONDON (AP) — London's Karl Marx Memorial Library is to be preserved as a historical monument despite objections from citizens groups.

The run - down, 230-year-old building at Clerkenwell Green has been saved through a preservation order confirmed by the Ministry of Housing and Local Government.

Local groups felt the building was an eyesore that could be torn down and the site turned into a park and playground.

Marx worked in the building that houses many of his original writings. Lenin worked there for a time. The building also has been used as headquarters radical political groups.

The Greater London Council, which overrode local objections, is to see that the library's trustees renovate the building and make it more attractive.

Communists Will Meet In Carlsbad

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Europe's rich and titled used to nurse their ulcers at Carlsbad. Next month Communist leaders will meet there seeking the cure for a multiplicity of ailments plaguing their movement.

The Communist chieftains will gather at Carlsbad — now called by its Czechoslovak name, Karlovy Vary — for what is billed as a conference on European security.

It will be much more than that.

It is widely regarded as prelude to the world Communist congress long sought by the Soviet party to deal with such vexing problems as China's anti-Soviet belligerence and a growing trend to independence of action in some European Communist countries.

Soviet and East European Communist leaders have a lot of explaining to do to leaders who are not in a ruling position in other countries. They must explain the whys and wherefores of increased East-West trade, the multiplying bilateral contacts between Communist and West European governments, the overtures toward mutual East-West reduction of military forces, the approaches to a treaty to brake the spread of nuclear weapons.

They must examine such problems as salvaging an appearance of unity on the question of divided Germany. They will make a stab at adjusting party lines to shifting loyalties and pressures that Stalin never dreamed of.

They will continue to be plagued by lack of unity. Communist parties from Romania, Albania, Yugoslavia, the Netherlands and Scandinavia boycotted a preparatory session in Warsaw last month. Most are expected to shun Karlovy Vary too.

Albania is pro-Chinese. Yugoslavia and Romania have been resisting the Soviet lead. Dutch and Scandinavian parties have been splintered by the Moscow-Peking feud.

Communist Eastern Europe is emerging into a northern tier of countries actively resisting West German overtures and a southern tier — former allies of the Reich — actively thinking about exchanging ambassadors with Bonn.

Karlovy Vary is near the headwaters of the Elbe. This river divides the two Germanys and is symbolic to German, Polish, Czechoslovak and Soviet Communists as the western demarcation line of Red rule and, in their eyes, of European security.

The span is also in the Sudetland, annexed by Hitler under the 1938 Munich agreement and still subject of dispute between Czechoslovakia and West Germany.

After signs of wavering, Czechoslovakia has moved closer to Poland and East Germany, forming with them a sub bloc to resist the new Bonn government's overtures to the East.

People In The News

NEW YORK (AP) — "Are we kissing cousins?" Mayor John V. Lindsay asked pretty Joan Lindsay, an Irish airlines stewardess from Dublin.

"I'd certainly like to think so," replied the blue- eyed Miss Lindsay.

Miss Lindsay had come to City Hall Thursday to present Mayor Lindsay with a bowl of Shamrocks, a plaque bearing the coat of arms of the Lindsay clan and a flag of the city of Dublin.

The idea was to remind New Yorkers — as if they needed to be reminded — that today is St. Patrick's Day. The mayor told Miss Lindsay his mother was "part Irish, part Dutch."

On hand to photograph the occasion was another Lindsay — Associated Press photographer John C. Lindsay. Photographer Lindsay confessed that he had no Irish blood in his veins. He said his ancestors were Scottish.

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. is donating a car to carry Ralph Nader around Detroit, despite Nader's criticism of GM, and his book, "Unsafe At Any Speed," which spurred new federal auto-safety standards.

Nader will be in the motor city to speak at the University of Detroit's engineering college.

Engineering students, admitting they were too "chicken" to call an auto maker and ask for a courtesy car for their speaker, wrote to a problem-solving column in the Detroit Free Press.

The newspaper made the call and got a car "complete with safety stuff like shoulder harnesses, head restraints, disc brakes, traffic hazard flasher switch, freeway lane-changer signal, padded instrument panel and energy-absorbing steering column."

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Actor Marlon Brando is planning a benefit movie to help relieve famine in drought- stricken Bihar State. He called for volunteer help from around the world to produce the film.

Brando returned from a five-day tour of the eastern India state Thursday. He said nobody outside Bihar could imagine the condition of its inhabitants.

Houstonia MW Meets

The M.W. Circle of the Houstonia Methodist Church met March 7 with Mrs. Earl Gregory. Twenty members attended.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Jack Nagel giving the devotional from the Guidepost with an article by Catherine Marshall. The business meeting followed. Plans were discussed for an Easter breakfast. Mrs. C. F. Wicker continued the study book on "The Keepers of the Poor."

A silent auction was held with the circle making about $23.

More Shells Aimed At US War Planes

Aboard Carrier Kitty Hawk, Gulf of Tonkin (AP) — The admiral who directs the U.S. Navy's carrier strikes against North Vietnam said today the Communists are throwing up more antiaircraft fire than ever before.

Rear Adm. David C. Richardson also said the North Vietnamese are digging more and more underground storage areas to protect their war supplies from the American planes.

Richardson, commander of the 7th Fleet's Task Force 77, said in an interview: "The quantities of flak our pilots are getting are heavier than ever — about one-third heavier than last summer would be my guess."

In one recent raid, he continued, "We had 15 to 30 tons of ammunition fired at us in a matter of a couple of minutes. I suppose that every North Vietnamese over 4 feet high has a gun and is shooting at us."

U.S. intelligence officers estimate the North Vietnamese have some 6,000 antiaircraft sites spread around the country.

Task Force 77 is built around five aircraft carriers with 400 warplanes and includes 25 cruisers, destroyers and other ships. Usually, three of the carriers at one time are on "Yankee Station," in the Gulf of Tonkin 100 to 150 miles off the North Vietnamese coast.

Carrier bombers so far have concentrated their attacks largely on railroads, boxcars, barges and trucks to cut the flow of supplies and men to the South.

"We highlight transportation," Richardson said. "Once you take out his (North Vietnamese) transport, its gone.

"But they adapt themselves to what we're doing. They build bypass bridges and roads. And they have an endless capacity for repairs.

"But repair requires a lot of effort, doesn't it?"

As for the North Vietnamese "going underground," Richardson said: "It's picked up a great deal. It is a response to our attacks, and it's not at all surprising. They are storing their high- priority materials — ammunition and fuel."

Venezuelan, Cuban Verbal War Hotter

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The war of words between the Venezuelan Communist party and Fidel Castro is getting hotter. The Venezuelans say the Cuban prime minister can't tell them what to do.

"We categorically reject Castro's pretension that it is he and only he who decides what is revolutionary and what is not revolutionary in Latin America," the party said Thursday in a statement signed by the seven members of its politburo.

In a stinging speech in Havana Monday, Castro accused the party of siding with the Venezuelan government by blaming Castroite terrorists for the assassination of Julio Iribarren Borges, brother of Venezuela's foreign minister.

Castro called the pro-Soviet leaders of the party traitors, cowards and rightists. He said he had "in an act of virtual treason abandoned the armed struggle."

Cuba, Castro said, will "back in any country those who, without calling themselves Communists, act as such rather than those who call themselves Communists and do not fulfill their duty."

"We tell Fidel Castro that the descendants of Simon Bolivar do not tolerate from anyone the insolent and provocative language he used in his speech," the Venezuelan Communist party replied.

Iribarren Borges was shot March 3 and pamphlets of the Armed Forces of National Liberation, a Castroite terrorist group, were scattered near the body. Elias Manuit Camero, head of the FALN, said in Havana last week his organization had killed Iribarren Borges because he was a police agent.

The Venezuelan government charged Cuba with helping in the murder and said it will accuse Cuba of aggression before the United Nations. Government sources said Venezuela may ask the United States to exert pressure to halt British economic aid to Cuba.

A government spokesman said Venezuela also will as kthe Organization of American States to condemn Cuba. The OAS expelled Cuba four years ago after finding Castro's government had supplied arms to Venezuelan terrorists.

Consider Wescoe As President Of Minnesota U.

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Dr. W. Clarke Wescoe, chancellor of the University of Kansas, is reported to be one of two men under consideration as president of the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Wescoe, 46, would not comment on the reports Thursday night. At a dinner party at the River Club in Kansas City, he said:

"I have been in Minnesota. That's about all I can say at this time."

Late Thursday night, Dr. Charles W. Mayo, chairman of the board of regents at Minnesota, said Dr. Wescoe is one of the men being considered. Other sources indicated that Dr. Robben Fleming, 50, chancellor of the University of Wisconsin, is the other man being considered.

The job at Minnesota became available when Dr. O Meredith Wilson resigned as president, effective July 1, to become director of the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Palo Alto, Calif.

Dr. Mayo said that Dr. Wescoe was under consideration "but not number one."

Returns To High Wire At Age 62

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm going back on the high wire because a friend asked me to, and because—well, I like to hear the applause as much as anyone."

This was how Karl Wallenda explained why he is returning to circus performing at the age of 62. He will again be part of the famed "Flying Wallendas" during the engagement here of the Dobritch International Circus. But then he plans to retire once more.

"My friend Walter Cronkite accused me of being another Sarah Bernhardt; she made farewell tours for 13 years," laughed Karl, the wiry, German-born scion of the aerialist family.

After 40-odd years on the high wire, Karl quit the act last fall. He explained: "My daughter Carla and her husband and brother-in law could do everything that I could do, and I felt I wasn't being useful any more. Besides, I was getting older and perhaps I wasn't as alert as I used to be."

His manner belies that. Returning to the circus at the request of owner Al Dobritch, Wallenda seems as sharp as ever.

"After you get over 30 feet in height, you lose the perspective and it doesn't matter how high you are," he remarked, almost convincingly.

Karl was born into the circus; six generations of Wallendas have thrilled audiences in Germany and the United States. Karl "wanted to be somebody," and he pushed the act to new frontiers of danger, bringing it to the U.S. bigtime in the 1920s. The most important development in the act came at Madison Square Garden on April 5, 1928.

"We had always worked at 60-70 feet, with a net," he said. "But when we came into the Garden, we couldn't rig the wire high enough to make it seem dangerous. So I removed the net, and I haven't worked with one since. And I have had only one major accident in 40 years."

The accident happened five years ago in Detroit. The Wallendas were performing their most hazardous stunt, the three-decker pyramid. Four men stood on the wire with poles on their shoulder. Two other men stood on the poles, and above them a girl balanced on a chair atop a pole.

Something went wrong. The pyramid collapsed and fell to the arena floor. Two in-laws were killed instantly, and Karl's son was paralyzed. Karl himself suffered severe injuries, but he was back in the act three months later.

"You have to exist, you have to survive," he philosophized.

Killed By Truck

BRIDGETON, Mo. (AP)— A man was killed Thursday night while crossing a street here was identified by the highway patrol as Douglas Morse, 40, of Shawnee Mission, Kan.

Lloyds Bank Robbed

LONDON (AP) — A man walked into Lloyds Bank Thursday, held up his finger and thumb, and asked a woman cashier: "How much would a wad of 5 pound notes like this be worth?"

The woman showed him a bundle of fivers and replied: "About 1,500 pounds ($4,200)." The man grabbed the bundle and ran away.

Washington Capsules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Looking for ways to hold the price of silver steady, the Treasury wants permission to stop redeeming "silver certificate" paper money with silver.

Until a few years ago, the standard type of paper money printed by the government was the silver certificate, which bore the promise that it could be traded in for silver at any time. Bills issued now are all federal reserve notes, which make no such guarantee.

Under proposed legislation sent to Congress Wednesday, holders of silver certificates who wanted to trade them in for silver would be given one year to do so. When that deadline had passed, the United States would have removed all silver backing for its paper money.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has had to leave behind military-related investments valued at hundreds of millions of dollars in the pullout of American troops from France.

The withdrawal, demanded by French President Charles de Gaulle, was completed Tuesday. Units from other nations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization also are being evicted.

"Although it is clear that the U.S. taxpayer is out of pocket some hundreds of millions of dollars as a consequence of President De Gaulle's action," a staff memorandum of the House Foreign Affairs Committee reported Wednesday, "it does not follow that France has taken over assets which are currently worth what was paid for them."

The memorandum pegs the value of Defense Department investment in military installations in France at $550.2 million, credits the U.S. government with contributing $362.5 million to installations jointly financed by NATO nations, and reports that the State Department put $4 million into the Paris headquarters of NATO, another jointly financed project.

Key figures in President Johnson's party for the Vietnam strategy conference on Guam with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and U.S. military commander Gen. William C. Westmoreland are Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and Walt W. Rostow, chief presidential assistant on national security affairs. The meeting is the President's third Pacific journey in little over a year. In February 1966 he met with South Vietnamese Premier Ky in Honolulu. Last October's summit conference in Manila brought him together with heads of all six allies involved in the Vietnamese struggle. Guam, an American Pacific bastion since the Spanish-American war, is the home base of B52 bombers that have been the heavyweight mainstays of the air war against North Vietnam.

May Spur US Efforts

Humphrey Feels Reds Will Launch Big Space Platform

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey expressed belief today the Soviets will try to rocket a very large manned space platform into orbit this year to celebrate the Soviet Union's 50th anniversary.

Many U. S. space enthusiasts feel such a move would give an indirect boost to the American man in space program facing budget cuts from a Congress more concerned about money for war, schools and slums than for space.

Some of the program's supporters in Congress, the space agency and industry feel a Soviet spectacular will help whet a dulled American public and congressional interest in the race to the moon, and beyond — perhaps to Mars, as urged by some space and industry officials.

The Soviets have not openly ventured a manned space flight since March 1965, said Humphrey in an interview. "They are pretending they aren't in the space race, but they are, and they want to beat us."

James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, expressed belief "they are developing a capability to produce another very dramatic advance in space."

Humphrey, chairman of the President's Space Council, noted that October is the 50th anniversary of the Russian revolution and the 10th anniversary of Sputnik 1, the Soviet satellite that opened the space sprint.

"I cannot imagine the Soviets letting two such dates pass without trying at least to come up with some spectacular in space," Humphrey added.

Humphrey said he thought the Soviets "will try to put in orbit a very large space platform or a module that will accommodate several persons."

An administration space aide put the odds at 2 to 1 the Soviets "will try something big, not only to celebrate the anniversaries but to try to kill off the international impact of a U.S. moon landing."

NASA officials hold to the belief the United States will be able to land men on the moon and return them safely before 1970 despite the setback from the Apollo spacecraft fire that killed three astronauts.

But a sharp cut in the budget, they contend, would increase the risks and further reduce the chances of meeting the moon deadline.

Although NASA officials describe their $5-billion budget as "austere," the project's critics see the congressional tug of war over funds as their opportunity to chop the appropriations.

"I think we have the best chance we've had" to make a deep cut, said Sen. William E. Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee. "I think there is a growing feeling that this is a nonessential program and is a drain of manpower that takes energies away from other areas."

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert, who serves on the House Science and Astronautics Committee now considering the space authorization, said "the program will be lucky to get by without cuts."

"But," he added, "I wouldn't think Congress would do anything to jeopardize landing on the moon before the Russians — at least I hope not."

Webb acknowledges he expects a congressional fight over the budget authorization, and an industry representative characterized the space mood in Congress as "growing weariness."

There were these other red warning lights flickering at Capitol Hill's mission control.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield — "I think the budget can be cut. I don't think we should indulge in a race to the moon with the Russians or anyone else."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen — "Does it really make any difference whether we get to the moon this year, or next year, or the following year?"

Rep. Chet Holifield, a Democrat from the space industry capital, California, and deputy chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee — "I am getting colder and colder on this space business as we go along."

But, cautioned Holifield, those who would like to flag down the space drive are facing "A juggernaut of vested interest" — NASA, the big industries, small businesses, merchants, scientists, workers, universities, states and communities who have shared in the $23-billion moon action since 1961.

More than 800 communities distributed among all 50 states had installations with prime NASA contracts in 1966.

However the man to the moon project has already passed its budget peak. NASA's associate administrator, George E. Mueller, said the number of people employed in the manned programs has dropped from a peak of 300,000 to 225,000 and will be 215,000 by year's end.

"This," he added, "represents a significant economic impact upon the aerospace industry."

To put the program back on the upswing, some space drumbeaters want a new national goal announced for after the moon, such as "Mars by 1975."

Two NASA planners, Edward Z. Gray, director of manned missions program, and Franklin P. Dixon, director of planetary mission studies, contend the United States should send men to loop around Mars as early as 1975, to take advantage of the planet's position then.

Humphrey indicated that although NASA and industry would like it the other way, "We're not going to make a target date of Mars by 1965."

The United States, he said, intends to concentrate on the scientific rather than the spectacular goals. Whether missions will be manned or unmanned "depends on what we are looking for."

Senate Space Committee Chairman Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M. said, "I want to get the man to the moon done. I'm not worried about getting men to Mars now."

Planetary trips are desirable goals, he added, "but Mars, Venus and Jupiter have been up there a good many years. We can wait another year or so."

Shamrocks Wilted Enroute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The case of the wilting shamrocks posed a problem for sons and daughters of the Emerald Isle this St. Patrick's Day.

A colleen at Aer Lingus, Irish International Airlines, confided that instead of having bushels of potted shamrocks straight from the Old Sod to distribute among its friends and prospective customers, the company has been forced to buy American-grown plants.

The reason: The U.S. Agriculture Department takes a dim view of the importation of plants with soil attached. It feels that if Irish insects and pests got mixed with American insects and pests, U.S. agriculture might be dealt a blow.

"We flew some over without soil," the colleen said, but added sadly, "they wilted."

"The thing to do," he said, "is to encase them in plastic to preserve the moisture, and then keep them in the refrigerator until you're ready to present them."

The ambassador brought over a splendid vase of waterford cut glass to hold the shamrocks for the annual White House ceremony.

Etched on the vase is a portrait of "Meagher of the Sword."

Thomas Francis Meagher (1823-1867) had two careers — as Irish revolutionary and American soldier. He led an attempted revolution against British rule in 1848, was condemned to life imprisonment, but escaped to New York. He became a lawyer, editor of Irish journals and a much-decorated brigadier-general of "Fighting Irish" in the U.S. Civil War.

Princess Fools Zoo Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — A round the clock maternity watch of the National Zoo's ranking lioness has flopped. She isn't pregnant.

The lioness, Princess, was mated four months ago to Caesar. Simultaneously, the National Zoo initiated a program to televise zoo births and create a library of animal birth on video tape.

Princess was a natural for the pilot program. She is 14 years old and has had 24 cubs. She's familiar with the lying-in den and her keepers.

Last week the 105-day period of gestation was almost up. Zoo officials organized. Thirty three friends of the zoo — including Mrs. Nicholas Katzenbach, wife of the undersecretary of state — volunteered for a 24-hour watch in the lion house.

They sat in a nearby office with a television monitor beamed on Princess. At the first indication of labor pains, the volunteer was to flick on a recording device, then notify the zoo police who would call the zoo veterinarian.

Some of the volunteers thought it was a little spooky sitting in the lion house at night. They read. Some played crossword puzzles. There were two false alarms over labor pains.

"Just when it seemed the most peaceful at night," said Mrs. Peter Grogan, "one of the cats roared." She and Lydia Katzenbach shared a 4 a.m. to 6 a.m. watch.

"I spent part of the time playing with Dennis and petting two chetahs," said Warren J. Illiff, 30, an airline executive. Dennis is an orangutan.

"She's just a mishapen lion," he said. "She's not pregnant."

Sanctity of the Stomach

Under Missouri law any person under the age of 21 years who purchases, or attempts to purchase, or has in his possession, any intoxicating liquor is guilty of a misdemeanor.

This restraint hasn't registered universally among teen agers. Some of them believe that the law only applies to whisky and not to beer. Ordinarily one does not refer to beer as a liquor. This probably accounts for the misunderstanding.

Whisky is a distilled alcoholic liquor; so is gin and vodka. Then what about beer? Beer is a liquor, too; fermented but undistilled, brewed from malt. The law refers to "any intoxicating liquor," which includes not only those mentioned above but other beverages potent enough to create a buzz.

So application of the words "intoxicating liquor" is a broad one applying to minors who purchase or even attempt to purchase it, or have it in possession.

A significant point of law came up recently in connection with the word "possession" of liquor. Attorney General Norman H. Anderson issued to the Prosecuting Attorney of Clinton county a ruling that liquor consumed by a minor does not come within the meaning of the word "possession" under Missouri law; that no Missouri Supreme Court case was found interpreting this section, although there are cases defining "possession" as used in liquor laws during the era of prohibition.

One case established that because a person was intoxicated did not mean he was in possession of intoxicants, although he may have drained the bottle and threw it away before the police caught up with him.

In another state, a court decided that "liquor in one's stomach does not constitute possession within the meaning of the law . . . "

There are some peculiar twists to interpretation of our laws by high courts these modern times, but in the main they are for protection of citizens' privileges.

Since it has been determined that liquor in a person's stomach does not mean he has possession of it, what about the law's application in other instances?

As an example consider the man who stole a diamond ring and was apprehended by the police. Before they laid hands on him he swallowed the ring. Then he could not be arrested for possession of stolen property, or could he? That's a point about which someone else will have to ask the attorney general.

Insofar as concerns the juveniles who drink the booze and throw the container away, they may not in their stomach have possession of the liquor; but one thing is certain, the liquor has possession of them.

LBJ Plans Pan-American Conference

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Now that a final decision has been made on the Pan American Summit Conference, President Johnson is putting a lot of care into its preparation.

Only a few diplomats know it, but the conference was almost sidetracked. When the rumor got circulated in Latin America that it was LBJ who chiefly wanted the conference "for political reasons," Johnson instructed Secretary of State Rusk to give Latin American countries a chance to postpone the meeting.

Accordingly, at the recent Buenos Aires meeting of Foreign Ministers, Rusk gave the Foreign Ministers several openings to postpone or even drop the whole thing. There were no takers.

Now that the conference is definitely set for April 12-14, LBJ is going all out to make it a success. He has invited all Pan American Ambassadors in Washington, plus all the OAS Ambassadors, plus the Latin American Ambassador to the U.N., to come to his ranch April 1 and 2 for a Texas barbecue by Walter Jetton, the famous Texas barbecue expert.

LBJ is turning the hangar on the ranch into a reception room, and will later take the 50 diplomats with their wives to San Antonio, one of the most important Spanish-American cities in the southwest. There they will stay all night and inspect the San Antonio river which once flowed through the city dump, but which the late Mayor Maury Maverick, with the help of a young Congressman from Texas, Lyndon Johnson, turned into a beautiful park where San Antonians boat on Sunday.

Morse's Buggy Whip

The President also called 40 Senate and House leaders to the White House for a confidential briefing on plans for the Summit Conference. He asked them to back a resolution giving him authority to negotiate for a common market for Latin America use the inter-American Development Bank to promote Pan American economic integration, and increase assistance under the Alliance for Progress for Health, Education and Farm Modernization.

"I have the executive power to do this," he told Congressional leaders, "But I want your cooperation and authorization in advance.

"I want Wayne Morse to lay aside that buggy whip he's been using on me," he added, referring to the Oregon Senator's scorching speeches on Vietnam, "and help push this program."

"I don't own a buggy whip anymore, Mr. President," replied the Senator from Oregon, "But when you, our leader, recognize in advance our right of 'advice and consent,' I want to commend you. We are now in on the take-off, not the crash-landing."

Morse and Sen Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, recalled that they had been at Bogota and the last Punta Del Este Conference where the Alliance for Progress was bred and later born. It was agreed there that aid was to be on a self-help basis.

"I am at your service to command, Mr. President," said Morse. "I will see that on this resolution you get a hearing with dispatch."

Later on the Senate floor, Morse, who is Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Latin America, defended Johnson's resolution on the Summit Conference against charges that it is similar to the Tonkin Bay resolution, now used by the White House to justify the Vietnam war.

"In my judgment," said Morse, "it is altogether different than the Tonkin Bay resolution. This is not a program that gives the President of the United States any precommitment in regard to the exercise of military authority.

"President Johnson had made a practice of conferring with members of Congress many, many times requesting their advice on Foreign policy. This is another example."

Note — If Latin American Presidents had any doubt about the fact that the North American President means business at the Summit Conference it should be dispelled by the message he subsequently sent to Congress outlining such Pan American goals as:

Building one million new homes every year; increasing farm production 6 per cent annually; building several hundred thousand classrooms every year; training 175,000 new doctors; eliminating trade barriers; building new Pan American roads, communications and hydroelectric plant.

Merry-Go-Round

Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, the new and able envoy to South Vietnam, says that the greatest piece of negotiating he ever performed was to persuade his wife to marry him. Bunker met Carol Laise when he was Ambassasor to India and she was Ambassador to Nepal. It took several years of diplomatic negotiation, says the Ambassador, to consumate the treaty. . . In passing, Bunker also managed to negotiate peace between the warring factions in the Dominican Republic. . . When Mrs. June Franklin, a negro member of the Iowa Legislature, was invited to the White House for a State dinner in honor of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, all the Democratic legislators pitched in to raise money for Mrs. Franklin's trip to Washington. Not to be outdone, the Republican legislators also decided to raise money so both Mr. and Mrs. Franklin went to the White House dinner courtesy of their friends in the Iowa Legislature.

Car Symbol and Goal in East Germany

KARL MARX SADT, East Germany (AP) — In East Germany the automobile is a symbol for the party and a goal for the people.

The ability to deliver a good, cheap car would symbolize Communist success in their centrally run economy. For the people, possession of a car is something tangible to show for hard work since World War II.

Against this background, the appearance of an American car of the low-priced field becomes a focal point in this area.

Whenever an American correspondent stops in East Germany his car provokes conversations with workers, passersby and officials.

Two questions are always asked:

"How fast does it go?"

"How much does it cost?"

And usually these are added:

"Can the average worker afford one?"

"How much does the average worker in the United States make?"

Given such information, East Germans react variously.

A young worker in Karl Marx Stadt — formerly Chemnitz — where the car drew night and day attention while parked in a lot, said: "I have put a down payment on a Wartburg (made in East Germany). They cannot even tell me when I can expect to get it."

In Rostock, a group of construction workers, including their foreman, stood around the American car and measured it with a carpenter's rule.

When the visitor came out of a harbor warehouse, accompanied by a local Communist functionary, the worker asked to see the engine, interior and trunk. The functionary said there was no time.

Replied the foreman: "Come on, Willi. Let him show us. How often do we get the chance to see something like this here?"

Cars made in East Germany are the Trabant, with three models, and the bigger Wartburg, with five. The Trabant starts at 7,800 marks and the Wartburg is 15,000-17,000.

The dollar value is difficult to compute. The East German tourist rate is 4.2 marks to the dollar. West Berlin banks quote a rate of 11.8 east marks to the dollar.

Automobile prices are manipulated in order to keep demand in line with supply, which is limited by a shortage of materials.

The average wage in East Germany is about 550 marks a month. Tax in the price of a Wartburg may run as high as 10,000 marks.

About 660,000 cars were licensed in East Germany at the end of 1965, with well over two million motor bikes and scooters of various types. The population is 17 million.

This sensitivity is heightened by the appearance not only of an occasional American car but of West German cars in far greater numbers. This makes for an all-German postwar comparison and the Communist output, despite allowances for the disadvantages resulting from division, suffers from the comparison.

Maundy Thursday

No longer the custom of washing the feet
For different the life is today,
And even then in that moment so fleet
He was merely showing the way;
'Twas a symbol of humbleness He tried to explain
In His greatness this task did He do,
When the Master stopped with a towel and a pan,
For it would not be long now He knew;
He asked not that they gather in places and pray
Or even about Him should weep,
He was only saying as a shepherd would say,
That they should take care of His sheep;
For He loved the poor and the destitute,
And He loved the sick and the old,
Even the sinner and prostitute
Did Jesus take into His fold;
And so on that Thursday He told them how
He wanted His work carried on
And asked if they would be willing now
To help others when He was gone;
The washing of feet was a symbol of course,
As they sat 'round the table there,
He felt the men He had picked were a source
Through which would continue His care;
When comes Maundy Thursday let's all look about
The last of this Lenten season,
And let, in our hearts, there be no doubt
But really be sure of the reason;
What of His diciples did He expect
What would He have us do?
To treat everyone with love and respect
And not just perhaps a select few;
To comfort, to lift, to clothe and to feed,
To forget our own selfish pride
Maundy Thursday awakens us to the need
For this did He give as their guide;
As the dark clouds gathered around Him that night
Left He the instructions to follow
And no matter what ritual we may recite,
Without the true meaning life's hollow;
The thing Christ stressed that night to His men
Was to treat everyone as a brother,
And let us review His message again
What He said was to do for each other.

". . . And so—the story BEHIND the story on recent events in Red China is that NOBODY knows what the story is!"

C.I.A. Functions

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Senator Eugene McCarthy (D.-Minn.), in a speech before the Women's National Press Club, said, "Americans don't make very good spies, and some government opinions are that James Bond is dead."

Seriously disussing the Central Intelligence Agency, he raised three questions regarding its organization: What does it do? Does it do it well: and by what authority does it function?

Regarding what it does, the C.I.A. has been active in the field of foreign policy, and it has performed some acts with executive approval regarding Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala and South Vietnam. The C.I.A. has now acknowledged that it provided funds to students groups, and it has been charged with funding labor organizations and even the press. One of the Agency's purposes is to fight communism, and it has various ways of doing it. The Senator quoted Britain's Lord Cromwell who defended his actions: "If you are satisfied that the objectives are good, then there is no reason to question the methods."

Is the C.I.A. doing its job well? The Senator said, "In a free society one makes mistakes on the side of trust, but we must be careful not to sacrifice our goals. Secret Service applies to a special kind of sacrifice and Americans do not like to stay underground for long."

The Senator felt that some of the organizations aided by the C.I.A. could have done their work just as well or even better if it had been done openly. He said that the Peace Corps has been affected by the student organization, but the publicity created will not cause the Peace Corps any permanent damage. The National Student Association fought communism in this country without help from the C.I.A., and it could have done so on an international front. The Senator does not believe the C.I.A. will become a political football, but he says the Foreign Relation's Committee of the Senate should have a clear division of the agency's functions, and only those functions which endanger the security of the United States should be secret.

When to Pre-empt At Four Level

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The opening bid of four is even more pre-emptive than the bid of three. It also should be a substantially better hand. This is because, somehow or other, three-level preempts are seldom doubled while four level preempts frequently are.

Opening lead—♦ A

Thus when we open with a four bid we don't have 10 tricks in our own hand but we do have a hand that is almost surely going to make eight tricks by itself and that has some compensating values.

In first or second seat we would open four spades irrespective of vulnerability with: Spades — A K Q 10 8 7 6, H — 2, D — Q J 10 2, C — 2. We would not open four spades with: Spades — A K A J 10 9 8, H — 3 2, D—7 6, C—8 4.

The first hand is likely to make four spades if partner can give us one trick. The latter won't make four spades unless partner can give us three.

We have another rule for four-level pre-empts. We never have more than one ace and if our partner has passed, we do not ever have solid trumps and a void suit.

Today's hand shows the advantage of this hard and fast rule. South had a normal four-spade opening. North looked over his big hand and decided that South might well hold two aces. Therefore, North bid four no - trump. When South bid five diamonds to show one ace, North signed off at five spades but they were one trick too high.

West opened the ace of diamonds and shifted to the queen of hearts. East took two heart tricks and game and rubber had been thrown out the window.

French May Lose Last Territory

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland (AP) — If posters win an election, the French are on their way out of their last colonial territory in Africa.

The issue will be decided Sunday in a referendum. The people will vote yes or no on two issues:

Whether to take limited independence under French control, or take the road to absolute independence.

In this sweltering capital there is hardly a road, house or tree that does not bear the word "non" (no).

Even the walls of the Arabic-styled French governor's palace haven't escaped the painters' brush.

African taxi drivers greet each other with the cry, "Non, non, non" as they drive along the dusty streets. In the market a goat has "non" whitewashed on its flank.

Mosque walls bear the words "non" and "go home Frenchman."

French Somaliland has been French for a century. It is an impoverished 9,000-square-mile territory at the southern end of the Red Sea. Its only asset is the port of Djibouti.

Both its neighbors, Ethiopia and Somalia, lay claim to French Somaliland. Forty per cent of Ethiopia's exports are sent by rail from Addis Ababa to Djibouti. Nearly all of Ethiopia's oil shipments must come through this port. Ethiopia is worried that this link may be threatened.

The Republic of Somalia maintains that most of the 115,000 inhabitants of French Somaliland belong to the Somali racial group and that the territory should unite with its independent neighbor.

Both Ethiopia and Somalia have been engaged in a bitter border dispute for years, often resulting in armed clashes.

Few of Somalialand's aspiring politicians believe they could form a black independent government. They know that if the French pull out and sever all aid, greater unemployment and hunger are likely.

Of Somaliland's population of 115,000, some 85,000 are considered French nationals. The other 30,000 are classified as foreigners. These are mainly Somalis from the neighboring republic who live in border areas. Thousands have been deported to Somalia.

The French government has warned that France will move out if the Somalis vote for independence. All technical, financial and military aid will be cut off.

Conspirators Keep Trying To Mount Cuban Invasion

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—This subtropical metropolis, a favorite refuge of winter sun-worshipers and Cuban exiles, has conspirators the way an old barn has mice.

In 1963-65 alone, U.S. authorities shortstopped no fewer than 23 expeditions bent on mini-invasions of Fidel Castro land. Nobody knows how many others got through the net.

One of the most ambitious plots involved 80 anti-Castroites who planned to take over Haiti last November and go on from there. A top man split with the leader and talked. The enterprise had to be postponed and gagsters began calling it the "Bay of Piglets."

Undaunted, the plotters bided their time until Jan. 2, when the helter-skelter invasion force began marshaling in the Florida Keys. At this point U.S. customs agents moved in and arrested everybody in sight.

Earlier, an anti-Castro dreamer assembled a $25,000 invasion arsenal in a truck and left it in a downtown parking lot. Curses. Truck and cargo were grabbed by the gendarmes.

Inept planning and a shortage of funds are not the only roadblocks for the busy conspirators. They also have to contend with five federal agencies, including Customs, Coast Guard, Immigration, Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency. For a plotter, it's something like a bullfight supervised by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Still Castro's Cuba lies there, only 150 miles from Miami and only 90 from Key West, as a constant temptation to the revolutionaries. Exiles claim that in 1966 they staged six aerial harassments from "bases somewhere in the Caribbean"—generally translated as "the Florida Keys."

Biggest of these, they claim, were bombings of the Cuban north coast chemical and sugar installations. One of their raiding planes, they say, was shot down over Cuba in mid-November and three of their men were captured after landing on the eastern tip of the island the following month.

The anti-Castro exile factions in Miami are divided into "activist" and "propaganda" groups.

The most noisily busy of the activist factions at the moment is MIRR, for Insurrectional Movement of Revolutionary Recuperaton. The others are Commandos L, Brigade 2506, Los Pinos Nuevos and 30th of November, all operating under RECE, or Cuban Representation in Exile; and the 2nd Front of Escambray, Alpha 66, CORE, or Committee of Revolutionary Orientation in Exile, and the Cuban Nationalist Association.

The purely propaganda groups are Revolutionary Unity and FORDC for Cuban Revolutionary Workers Front.

Boss of the MIRR is a short, intense medical doctor, Orlando Bosch, 40, who has been picked up twice while apparently preparing anti-Castro maneuvers.

The plot to strike at Haiti, topple dictator Francois Papa Doc Duvalier and use the island republic as a base against Cuba had its genesis in Miami more than a year ago. Its architect was Rolando Masferrer, 47, lawyer, honor graduate of Havana University and a terror to Castro's followers in the final years of dictator Fulgencio Batista's rule.

The Rev. Jean Baptiste Georges, an exiled Haitian priest in his early 40s, was a key figure in the operation. He was to be president of the country if the invasion succeeded.

The Haitian invasion force under Masferrer counted about 80 men and, according to its leader, was equipped with some $100,000 worth of weapons and ammunition.

U.S. customs agents placed its actual value and battle worth at far less. "With that equipment," said one, "they could not successfully have invaded Burdine's." Burdine's is a large Miami department store.

The equipment included 140 rifles, about a dozen machine guns, two rocket launchers and about 72,000 rounds of assorted ammunition. There also were two small vessels.

By mid-November, 1966, the "invasion" was known to practically anyone in Miami who regularly tunes in to refugee chit-chat along Flagler Street or Southwest 8th in "Little Havana."

The scheme began coming apart on Nov. 23 when Napoleon Vilaboa, 29, a former Cuban rebel army officer, abandoned the little army. He told newsmen he had agreed to be chief of military operations on the understanding the operation had CIA support. He and Masferrer had an argument, he said, and he quit.

The invasion finally foundered Jan. 2 when U.S. customs agents moved in and arrested some 75 men. Masferrer told reporters that "paid U.S. informers" scotched his plan. He, Father Georges and others are awaiting trial on charges of conspiring to invade Haiti, and to export arms without license.

The failures of Bosch, Masferrer and other Cuban exiles have aroused little reaction among their compatriots in the Miami area. Indignation with U.S. policy seems matched by criticism of the quality of leadership among the current crop of activists.

Manolo Reyes, 41, a Cuban exile who has become one of the leading television personalities in the city, sums it up:

"There are undesirables and misfits in all societies and certainly among us Cubans here. There are people who prey on our natural anxieties, like the plotters. But the worst of Cuban exiles, I believe, is better than any Castro Communist."

Civilian Bonus Pay Continues Overseas

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. civilians working for Defense Department agencies in Vietnam will continue to receive a 25 per cent pay bonus while American servicemen there lose a cost of living allowance.

This bonus, called a "post differential," is an incentive payment to Civil Service employes who volunteer for duty in certain overseas locations where there is an element of hardship.

"This differential pay is not being stopped," the Pentagon said. "It is required under employment agreements."

The question was raised with the Defense Department after it announced last week plans to halt on May 1 a cost of living allowance now collected by more than 31,200 U.S. servicemen, most of them stationed in the Saigon area.

That action is calculated to save about $21 million a year.

King Corey is shown with his lovely Junior Queen Donna Williams, four, who receives the crown from Teen Queen Hope Friedman, during pageant ceremonies. His selection as king was the second time Mr. and Mrs. Younger have seen one of their five sons win the honor. In 1959 his brother Danny was crowned the Junior King. He is the grandson of Mrs. Pearl L. Maxwell, and the late L. T. Maxwell, 1120 East 11th. Mrs. Maxwell has been spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Younger, at Fort Myers, and was on hand to see King Corey receive his Crown and septer. Beef Cattle Slaughtering May Pay Off

Information from a recently published economic study indicates a beef cattle slaughtering plant might be profitable in a 10-county area in northeast Missouri. The study was a project of the Office of Industrial Development Studies of the University of Missouri.

Charles L. Cramer and Glenn Grimes, University agricultural economists, conducted the research. Their findings show a slaughter supply in the area of 327,833 head annually. The kill capacity is 62,475 head per year.

The economists point out that the supply would be somewhat reduced if the slaughter capacity of a neighboring Iowa and Illinois county was considered. However, a significant part of slaughtering operations is now done in plants "that probably will need to be replaced in the near future."

In addition to a good supply of slaughter cattle, the northeast Missouri area has other assets necessary for such a plant. Those assets include transportation facilities, labor supply, and adequate electricity and natural gas supplies.

Grimes and Cramer, in the published report of their study, state that in addition to the potential for a new plant in the northeast area of the state, new plants will need to be built in other areas of Missouri.

Included in information gathered by the economists is trends in the industry, resources needed for a beef slaughtering plant, and major locational factors.

The study was sponsored by the State Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, and the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station.

Copies of the published report, Beef Slaughtering Opportunities in Missouri, are available. Requests should be addressed to: Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, Jefferson Building, Jefferson City, Missouri 65101.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Polluted rivers and streams have become a major problem for the United States, and one that will eventually cost the country billions of dollars to solve. Almost one-fourth of the nation's muncipalities empty untreated wastes into the nearest stream, says The World Almanac. In addition, another 31 per cent give only primary treatment to wastes before disposing of them.

Killing Grubs Helps To Control Moles

Moles invade lawn and garden areas in search of grubs. Kill the grubs with a toxicant and the problem of mole damage is solved.

Any one of several chemicals will do the job if you apply them early in the spring — preferably before mid-May.

Chemicals which completely eliminated mole damage included aldrin, dieldrin, and heptachlor applied at both 2 and 3 lbs. per acre rates (active ingredient). Chlordane did the same with a 5-pound rate, endrin with 3 pounds, and DDT at rates of 25 pounds.

In areas where moles feed heavily, damage will cease with treatment. Moles are not directly affected with insecticides but will leave the area when the grubs were killed.

Hot Meals Possible On Trips

Lorene S. Wilson, consumer marketing specialist, University of Missouri.

When reading the mail the other day, I came across this fascinating story that just might "fill the bill" for you as you travel. We know you will be traveling and you may want to try "something different"!

"It's now possible to have a fully cooked hot meal, while you take a long trip", reports one of the country's most imaginative home economists. The secret is securely wrapping meat, vegetables and bread in double folds of heavy duty alumimum foil, then attaching them to the exhaust manifold of the car."

For years, mothers on the move have known the trick of warming baby's bottle by this method but a hot, ready-to-serve meal cooked under the hood is something new and different. This is the way to proceed."

"Calculate the distance of your trip in miles; convert to number of hours you'll be on the road. Then you can figure how much time you will have to cook on the road and plan your menu from there. Quick cooking chicken is good for short trips and pot roast turns out well on longer journeys."

"For a 200 mile jaunt a 2-3 pound pot roast cooks nicely. Start with a roast not over 2 inches thick, a package of onion soup mix, and a can of drained mushrooms. Put the pot roast on a large piece of extra heavy duty aluminum foil, sprinkle with the soup mix and arrange mushrooms over top of roast. Wrap the roast, folding edges together twice to make a tight fold. Wrap in two more sheets of foil to protect the food from engine fumes."

"Carefully secure the foil-wrapped roast to the exhaust manifold with a wire coat hanger and you're on the way."

"Make your first stop after traveling 100 miles to turn the roast, because the engine of a car doesn't heat as evenly as the oven in your range at home."

"Potatoes and carrots can be cooked this way, too, but need some parboiling (or you can use canned carrots and potatoes). Boil medium size potatoes 5 minutes, carrots for 10. Season, then wrap in 2 thicknesses of heavy duty foil and heat with the roast during the last half hour of the trip."

"Be sure to keep a pair of oven mitts in the glove compartment to turn the roast and vegetables and for unwrapping the bundles when ready to serve."

"Take along foil-wrapped rolls to be warmed on the manifold also. Crisp raw vegetables cut into finger-sized lengths, foil-wrapped and kept crisp in a cooler make a fresh easy-to-serve salad."

"When the end of the trip comes and all in the car are hungry, pick a spot to stop and eat. Remove the roast from the engine, let it cool a few minutes, unwrap and carve. All you need for the perfect picnic feast are paper plates and utensils to serve your intriguing victuals."

Sounds fascinating, doesn't it? No doubt, most women may have some difficulty in locating the "exhaust manifold" so I'd suggest that Mom get hte meal ready and then let Dad cook!

Fed Cattle Percentage Expanding

"The percentage and number of cattle going through feedlots before slaughter have been expanding rapidly in recent years", a prominent livestock feeding official declared. Charles Phelps, Hastings, Ia., president of the National Livestock Feeders Association added, "Fed cattle marketings in 1966 were 9 per cent more than in 1965, and 12 per cent more than in 1964, according to the USDA".

Phelps said, "In the year just past, fed cattle constituted about two-thirds of the total commercial slaughter, and fed cattle slaughter is expected to continue high in 1967. At the same time, average weights of fed steers and heifers have been running well above a year ago".

The National president explained that these higher weights have created more beef and continue to hold fed cattle prices down. "With the numbers of cattle on hand and to be fed this year, the only alternative for improved prices is for the industry to move fed cattle to market at lighter weights", Phelps said.

The National Livestock Feeders Association is currently engaged in a nation-wide campaign to impress these facts on the industry and to encourage the members to recognize the problem.

To demonstrate the average weight situation, Phelps related figures on all steers sold at 7 major markets in the week ending Feb. 17. This year, 1967, the average was 1,149 lbs. In the corresponding week of 1966, the average weight was 1,130 lbs.; and in 1965, it was 1,111 lbs.

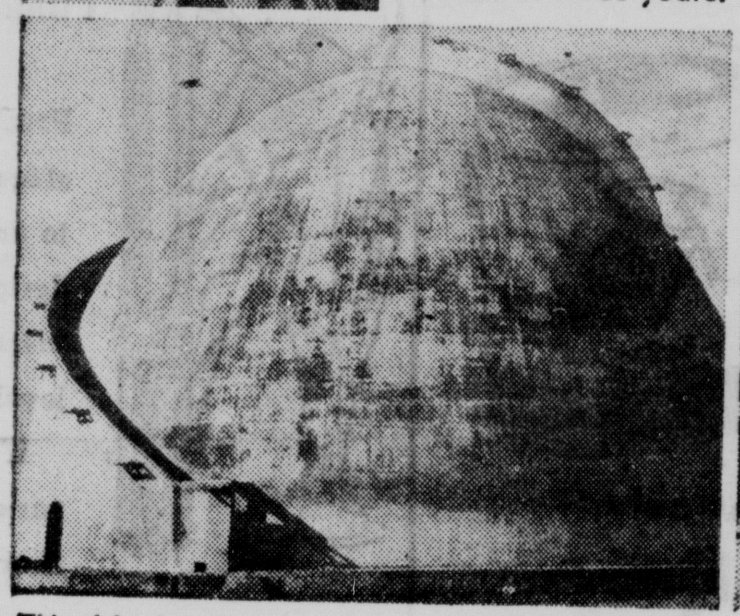
This year, the average weight was 38 lbs. per head over 1965, or 3.4 per cent higher. "The comparison simply means that from the same number of cattle, beef production was stepped up by 3.4 per cent just from added weight", Phelps explained.

"Not only is beef production higher", Phelps said, "but the demand in the trade for heavier carcasses is not nearly as elastic as that for medium weight beef which has its prominent outlet through retail stores".

Crisis in India

Where Food Is a Luxury

A 38-year-old Indian who looks 70 has nothing to eat but grass. A starving woman, at left, shows the pounded roots that serve as her food. Children line up in one fortunate village for a charity meal of milo and milk, at right. All bear testimony to the tragedy of India's starving millions, result of drouth, overpopulation, and poor agricultural management. Pictures here were taken in India's Bihar State, where rain has not fallen in three years.



This globe-domed granary, built by the British in the late 1700s, can hold a capacity of 5,000 tons of grain, but has never been full. Typical of India's inability to grow sufficient food grains, the granary now has about 1,800 tons of emergency supplies of grain.

A starving, blind farmer sits quietly, waiting for death to relieve his body of hunger pangs and aching joints. At right is Kamli Dussadh, whose husband died because he ate nothing for 10 days. His widow and three children are on a steady diet of grass, weeds, roots and berries.

Word 'Spice' Stirs Vision Of Romance

The very word spice, stirs visions of romance and high adventure . . . violence and intrigue. Picture a dusty camel caravan laden with spice bales slowly plodding across burning windswept sands, or see a frail little trading ship buffeted by tempest - tossed waters on its perilous voyage from India to Araby with a precious cargo of spice. For the possession of the little bits of bark and seeds and fruit, bloody wars were fought, great trade empires rose and fell . . . new lands were discovered. Perhaps more than any other single factor, the struggle for spice molded the course of history.

True spices are products of aromatic tropical plants (cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger, cloves, pepper, etc.). Herbs come mostly from leaves of temperate-zone plants (sage, marjoram, rosemary, oregano, etc.).

Food "fashions" change! If you don't believe it, just ask your grocer about the quantity of spices the homemaker uses today. He will tell you that sales of spices and herbs has been on a continual increase since the beginning of the post-war era; a marked increase in the past ten years.

From checking cookbooks of the past, I am convinced the use of spices goes in cycles. Much emphasis was placed upon them in the eighteenth century and during the "Gay Nineties," and during the 1925 to 35 period little attention was paid to spices.

Since that period, however, there has been a constant increase in their use. Starting with about 1947, there has been an extraordinary growth in consumer demand for spices in general and most especially oregano, thyme and bay leaves.

And, what accounts for the new interest in spices? The increasing popularity of foreign cooking; travel by Americans in ever increasing numbers to the food capitals of the world; and the general trend to out-of-door living and cooking are all perhaps contributing factors.

The skillful use of spices is the "signature" of a really good cook! And, . . . you are using more spices and herbs today than your mother used.

Spices are among the most important tools in the hands of the homemaker. The "seasoning" can make the difference between an exciting meal and a dull one and distinguish the "expert" cook from the amateur.

Spices are expensive and some are even scarce items so take care to retain their quality.

Heat destroys both the flavor and aroma of spices so keep your spice rack or cabinet as far away from the stove as possible.

Always keep containers tightly closed.

Did you ever have paprika lose its pretty red glow? You failed to protect it from the light. Buy in small quantities.

Spice Flavor Can Be Lost By Exposure to Air, Light, Dampness, and Heat

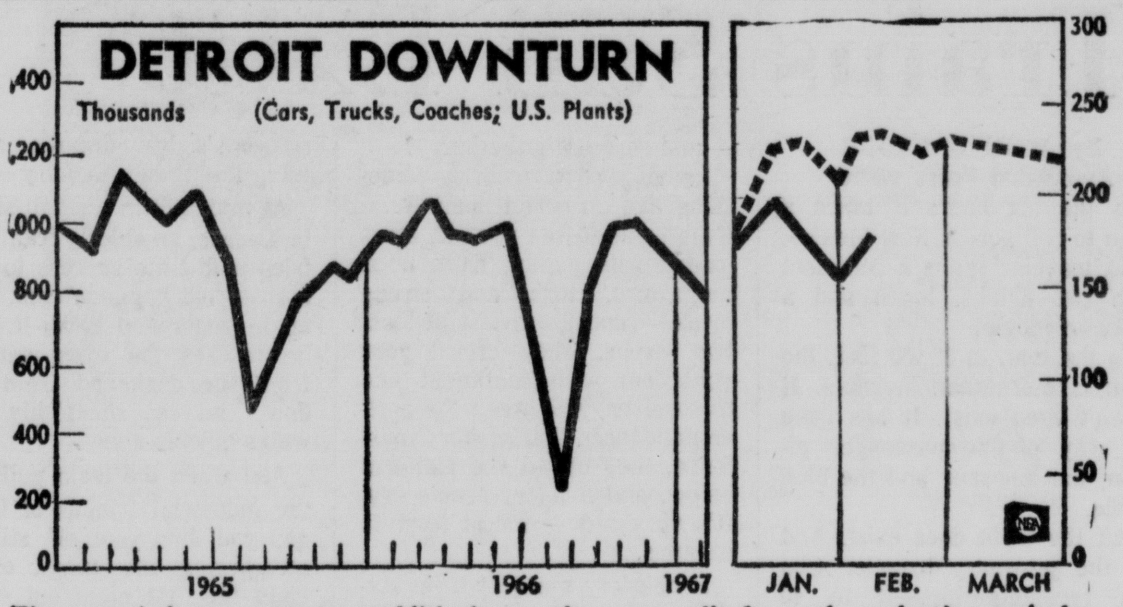
Remember that the flavor and aroma of spices come from oils and essences locked up in cell walls. Sooner or later these evaporate. How soon or how late depends largely upon the care given them. Keep spices tightly covered. Keep them away from the stove or other warm spots, and, of course, keep them dry.

Set Strawberry Plants Out Early

Strawberry plants should be set as early in the spring as the soil can be worked. It is almost impossible to set too early in this state. Even hard freezes after the plants are set will do no harm.

A new planting of strawberries should be started by transplanting rooted runners plants produced the previous season. It is best to buy certified plants, which are disease free, vigorous and perfectly domant.

The yield of strawberries depends upon the amount of growth made by the plants during the previous summer. The crop is determined largely by the leaf area during the previous fall. In order for a plant to develop a large leaf area, it must become established as early in the season as possible. Runner plants which are formed late during September and October frequently fail to produce fruit the following year.



The auto industry pattern established over the years calls for peak production early in the year and a sharp downturn after mid-year. This year, however, shows a variation with output already down.

Trains Still Exist

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Writer

In the six hours it takes a train to roll across New Mexico, a jet traveler spans a continent with two drinks, lunch and a first run movie.

To the man at 35,000 feet, the train is more than invisible. It doesn't even exist. It has gone the way of the passenger pigeon, the dinosaur and the blue whale.

But the train does exist. And for the jet-weary traveler who can reconcile himself to 40 hours between Los Angeles and Chicago, it offers a chance — rare these days — to think, to dream, to pause in the perspective of men against mountains and canyons and the night.

True, the train is something less than the luxurious caravans of the Thirties. It no longer offers haircuts and hairdos, tub baths and showers, an on-board library or a uniformed boy with bouquets of carnations and roses for the passengers.

True, the stations themselves are faded images of a former glory. Even Union Station in Los Angeles is sticky with spilled soda pop, and the patio barely recalls the glittering entrances of movie stars.

But a train today has an intangible glitter of its own. Time and contrast are the luxuries it offers.

It may be a champagne dinner in the Turquoise Room of the Super Chief, or breakfast in a City of Los Angeles dome car, or it may be a quiet drink in your stateroom. Or it may be the reds and oranges of Arizona and New Mexico, recalling some prehistoric sea. Or it may be a purple sunset over the California high desert, or the endless beige ocean of Kansas strength of the Mississippi. Indian war party on the crest of grain, or the gray, moving strength of the Mississippi.

Maybe it's daydreaming an Indian war party on the crest of a ridge. Maybe it's a little city girl looking at the vast tableland and asking, "What happened to the cities?"

Maybe it's a 4-year old boy remembering the furtive mealtime rush of a jet plane and catching on to the gentler philosophy of a train, saving his soda pop with the promise, "I'll finish it tomorrow."

And maybe it's the mere fact that tomorrow you'll be where you are tonight — on the train — and so, what's the hurry?

Leaving on a train is something like an ocean liner. Relatives come to see you off, arms loaded with candy, fruit, nuts, magazines, toys and strong drink — enough to last at least two weeks. They crowd your stateroom with sentiment and themselves. And when the porter announces that visitors must leave, they crowd the platform below, and a lot of people cry. It's very sad — for at least 15 minutes.

People cry more at train stations than at airports. Maybe it's because leaving on an airplane is like hanging up on the telephone. You can soon call back if you want to. But in a train you'll be going to a lot of strange places like Dodge City, Kan., and La Junta, Colo., and there is the feeling you'll be gone for a long time and out of touch.

Perhaps the long-distance train is in dire need of help in the East where it is destined to become a sort of high-speed subway between city centers. But west of Chicago, the train is in its own country.

People don't forget trains. They will likely remember an overnight mail run from Chicago to Denver, but never recall which airline they took to Cincinnati.

They travel more now, but remember it less.

In the West, railroads have something besides a trip to sell. They have pleasure for the eye and the mind in the endless landscape, carved by wind and rain out of sandstone and granite, and marked by trails that brought man and his history to the wilderness.

The train borrows from the land it rolls through, from the great tanned plains of Texas, the bleak surprise of the Great Salt Lake, the tortured climb up a mountain and the cautious dash down the other side. The engine winks in the night to one lonely light from one lonely house on one lonely mountain peak. And it calls around blind curves to no one on the other side.

For the passenger at the window, each stop means something different. At Gallup, N.M., an Indian boy and his dog watch from a hillside as the train slips into town. They don't see the small hands waving from inside. In Arizona, the train pauses between dashes in front of an old burned-out adobe, where the neatly laid out and empty stock pens speak of someone's lost dreams, something less than a century old.

At midnight in a small station in Kansas, an elderly train hand tries with little success to push a rusty old baggage cart, gives up in anger and kicks it. Then he catches the eyes watching from the darkened train window, waves sheepishly and walks quickly away.

And when the train pulls into the industrial fringes of Chicago, you find yourself still remembering the magic of the train the first night out of Los Angeles. Long after you should have been asleep, you lay there in your pajamas and watched the massive silhouettes of the Sierra Nevada mountains glide softly past, cold and black against a silver-blue sky.

High overhead, you remember, the running lights of a jet plane flickered by, and inside the passengers were probably stubbing out their cigarettes, and fastening their seat belts, and looking anxiously out of their windows for signs of earth.

And now you have a sense of how much they saved in time, and how much they missed.

Hopes For Career As Seamstress

By Dee Ann Kasak
Striped College 4-H Club

Clothing has been my main project in the seven years I have been in 4-H. I believe I have learned to sew very well in this time. I am prepared to take on any type of sewing that can be put before me and will try to do my best in putting it together.

All the mistakes I have made in sewing have taught me a little bit more and I do not consider them a failure, but a success in teaching me.

Knowing how to sew has saved me and my family money because I can sew cheaper than buying the clothes for the family. My parents buy all the necessary articles needed in my sewing and I do my very best in making the article and wearing it.

In the last two years I have been able to sew without very much assistance at all and am very proud of my work.

In the future I would like to sew for other people as my job because I love it so and I think it would be interesting with all the different people I would meet.

Jive-Talking Lawyer Is Arrested In Death Probe

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Dean A. Andrews Jr., a jive-talking lawyer who told the Warren Commission that Lee Harvey Oswald consulted him on a few minor legal matters, is the second person arrested in the Kennedy assassination probe here.

Andrews, 44, was indicted for perjury late Thursday by the Parish grand jury.

The indictment came as a three-judge criminal district court wound up the third day of a preliminary hearing which will decide if Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has enough evidence to hold Clay L. Shaw for trial on a murder conspiracy charge.

Andrews said he wasn't surprised by the indictment. "I laid 8-to-5 on it and I will pick the money up," he told an interviewer.

He was arrested when he appeared at the criminal sheriff's office. He posted a $1,000 bond and was released.

Andrews is an assistant district attorney in suburban Jefferson Parish. He was suspended from the post only hours before the indictment.

Dressed in a dark suit, Andrews — wearing dark glasses as he constantly does, day or night — went before the grand jury for the second time Thursday.

His first appearance was March 9, before that he was subpoenaed to appear in Garrison's office.

The indictment said Andrews committed perjury Thursday "wilfully and unlawfully" by testifying under oath statements which he "well knew were false and untrue and all of which were related to matters under investigation, to wit: a conspiracy to murder John F. Kennedy."

Andrews said, "I testified as I could to the best of my knowledge. Apparently there is a conflict of opinion as to what I testified about."

Asked if he had made any false statements, Andrews replied: "Absolutely not."

Q. Can you tell us about the indictment?

A. As you know, Dist Atty. Garrison has under investigation an alleged plot that started here in New Orleans to assissinate the late John F. Kennedy. I have no knowledge of such a plot and I know no people in it.

Q. Why were you brought into the investigation?

A. That's a good question. Apparently they seem to feel that I have a key that can unlock certain locks. I have no key. I don't even know where the locks are."

In addition to telling the Warren Commission in 1964 that Oswald came to his New Orleans law office several times, Andrews also testified that following the Kennedy assassination he received a telephone call "and a voice I recognized as Clay Bertrand asked me if I would go to. . .wherever it was that this boy Oswald was being held - and defend him."

Garrison has charged that Clay Bertrand is an alias used by Shaw and that Shaw, Oswald and David W. Ferrie, who died last month, conspired to kill the president.

Andrews received his law degree from Loyola University here. He is married and the father of several children. He told the Warren Commission that he was an ordinanceman in the Navy.

The commission asked Andrews if he had considerable doubt about Oswald being the assassin.

He replied: "I know good and well he did not. With that weapon, he couldn't have been capable of making three controlled shots in that short time. . .This boy could have connived the deal, but I think he is a patsy. Somebody else pulled the trigger."

Andrews has been an assistant district attorney in Jefferson Parish since 1964, continuing, however, to practice law in New Orleans. Jefferson Dist. Atty. Frank Langridge said he suspended Andrews because of unfavorable publicity he was receiving and not because of any wrongdoing.

POTTED PLANTS in St. Petersburg, Fla., didn't please everyone in the neighborhood. At least one neighbor complained that the toilet containing the geranium in the front lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Burnett was a blight on the neighborhood. City officials investigated and found nothing illegal about the display.

Large Doses Of Medicine Are Harmful

Audra Robertson, emergency preparedness specialist, University of Missouri.

Many people think of poison as something that will cause instant or agonizing death. Actually, a poison can be any substance that, when used improperly, produces bodily harm by chemical action. Therefore, any medicine, ordinarily beneficial, can become poisonous if taken in unusually large doses.

Common household chemicals, safe, when used properly, become dangerous when harmful amounts are absorbed by inhaling, swallowing, or through the skin. While results are not always fatal, they can be crippling.

There are potential properties of household cleaning agents,

There are potential poisons hidden in cupboards and shelves of every house. The poisonous properties of household cleaning agents, such as lye and ammonia, are clearly marked with the danger sign. But unsuspecting items, such as aspirin, furniture polish, shampoos, and model airplane glue, can become fatal if they are misused or carelessly handled.

Barbituates in the form of sedatives and sleeping pills are common medicine chest occupants. Children who see nervous adults run to the pill box several times a day, think that they can do the same thing, and often the results are fatal.

Candy laxatives are sometimes considered the answer to a mother's prayer but, unless she is very careful about storing them, she may find herself praying for the life of a severely poisoned child.

And just in case you think this is unimportant, let me add that each year some 500,000 young children accidentally swallow medicines and common household products, many of these children require treatment for poisoning and some are fatal.

Many adults also often need treatment because they have accidentally taken the wrong medicine or an overdose of some drug.

Danger is present when medicines and drugs are accessible to children, or when labels are missing, torn or not readable. Keep medicines and drug products in a medicine chest or cabinet that can't be opened by small children, or on a high shelf, away from fixtures a child can climb on.

Store them in their original containers. Keep labels in good condition so they can be read. And always read the label before using any preparation. Follow directions. Dispose of unused prescription drugs when they are no longer needed. Clean medicine cabinet often and discard all old medicines and those of unknown or doubtful nature.

Poison Prevention week is the 3rd week in March. However Poison Prevention should be observed every day.

By the way, a first aid kit containing essential medicines should be available for emergency living. Contact your County University Extension for other suggestions.

Huge Bill For Publicity

EDITOR'S NOTE — The U.S. government's big public relations and information programs cost taxpayers more than a million dollars a day. How is it spent? Here's a full report by an Associated Press team on a public — but seldom publicized — phase of federal operations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government spends more of the taxpayer's money to tell and show him what it wants him to hear and see than on its legislative and judicial branches combined.

The government expends about $425 million a year on its public information, news, views and self-pleadings, compared with $353 million spent this year by Congress and the judiciary.

And the $425 million is more than double the combined outlay for news gathering by the two major U.S. news services, the three major television networks, and the 10 biggest American newspapers.

Much of the expenditure, which has risen steadily through successive national administrations, is devoted to convincing Americans (with their own money) that what the government does is for their welfare.

The quantity, variety and scope of the intelligence churned out by the publicity apparatus is staggering. It can tell you what the turkey market looks like for 1967; that over half the women and one fourth of the men over 40 have varicose veins; the vital statistics of the nation's economy; the latest wrinkles in the "war on poverty;" it provides household tips and advice on the use of pesticides; produces films, TV programs, radio tapes and an unceasing blizzard of press releases; employs public information officers to answer, and sometimes not to answer, newsmen's questions. In short, it spews forth mounds of material ranging from the highly interesting to the seldom interesting, from the useful to the esoteric, from the illuminating to the foggy.

Manning the sluice gates of this stream of self-revelation are at least 6,858 federal employes occupied full or part time.

These figures emerged from a wide-ranging Associated Press survey, agency by agency and office by office, of one year's federal spending to inform or influence.

The government publicity industry seeks the fullest possible exposure for its output. But it tends itself to imitate an iceberg, far more immersed than visible. The Associated Press statistics were obtained only by prolonged digging.

The survey showed that the biggest domestic publicity network is maintained by the military, with about 3,000 employes in this field and a budget of at least $32. 3million.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is next with 300 employes and a tab of $11.5 million.

Other large operators include Congress — for ballyhoo and news releases — $9.9 million; Department of Agriculture, $8.9 million; Department of Health, Education and Welfare, $7.8 million; Atomic Energy Commission, $6.1 million; Office of Economic Opportunity, $2.4 million.

In contrast salaries for the White House press secretary and his 10 assistants total a comparatively modest $170,000. Yet it is here most of the big news decisions are made.

The list ranges clear down to the Committee on the Purchase of Blind-Made Products, which gets by on $11,076.

In all, traceable spending by Congress and government agencies for publicity and information services works out at $98. million.

But sums spent by the individual branches and agencies of government are dwarfed by the slice of taxes laid out for public relations by companies holding government defense and space contracts.

These firms can charge the government for public relations just as they do for other general management costs. One estimate is that the taxpayers directly pay at least $200 million a year for such press agentry on behalf of private companies.

An aerospace industry source said the public relations cost to the taxpayer for the top 10 companies in his field may run more than $90 million annually.

'another huge, almost-buried item is the cost of government printing for informational or public relations purposes. The annual government printing bill is $500 million. It's estimated that one-fourth of this, or $125 million, could fairly be charged to information and publicity.

The rest covers such costs as stationery, annual reports and legislative bills.

Government agencies will come up readily with such abstruse information as how many cases of Maine sardines there are on store shelves on a given date, or how much is spent on the poor of Barry County, Mo.

It's a different matter when they are asked how many employes are engaged in their public relations programs and how much it costs. The Associated Press study turned up few offlcials willing or able to be specific.

One exception was Carlton E. Spitzer, director of public information for health, education and welfare. He said he had exactly 892 employes and a budget o f$7.8 million.

When it was noted that some of his colleagues were less forthcoming, Spitzer remarked: "I think it's inane to start ducking around."

More typical were the Post Office, Commerce and Labor departments, which offered only guesses.

Among the foggiest was the Defense Department, home of whirring computers and precise cost analysis. It professed almost utter ignorance of the scope of its public relations setup when asked for specifics.

Eventually, the figure of close to 3,000 emerged as the total of public relations employes for the entire military establishment. The figure represented the sum of some estimates and a few known numbers. Nobody in the Pentagon would even approximate how much money the military spends to tell its story around the world.

How were cost figures arrived at for departments which didn't provide any?

In 1963 a House Government Operations subcommittee did a survey — it was never published but was made available to The Associated Press — on public information programs.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., had the help of the General Accounting Office, and after months of searching it nailed down some solid cost figures.

Watch Your Garden Grow

2,402 young people in Missouri carried Gardening as their project in the 4-H program in 1966. They plant a garden and watch their garden grow. It is fun, exciting and also educational. They gain a keen insight into nature and develop a better understanding of the basic principles of science relating to plant growth. They also acquire knowledge and skills necessary for managing a well planned vegetable garden. The 4 - H members taking Vegetable Gardening as a project contribute to better family health by producing essential nutritious vegetables for use throughout the year. And in some of the projects they learn to market horticultural products.

Vegetable gardening is divided into three projects. Project 1— "Watch Your Garden Grow" is for young people 10, 11, and 12 years of age. In this project they grow one leafy vegetable, lease one root vegetable and one fruit vegetable such as tomatoes. The second project is "Growing Vegetables For Family Food and Fun." This is the project to produce the family vegetable supply and it is for young people 13 years of age or over. The third project is "Growing and Marketing Fresh Vegetables." It is for those 14 years of age or over. Each of the three projects would have an adult leader for the particular project.

In Project I the parents need to provide and help select a portion of the family garden for the member to grow the three vegetables he selects. They should provide assistance in planning and care of the three vegetables, but do not do the actual work. In the second project the parents responsibilities should be to assist the teenage 4 - H'er with planning, planting, maintaining and harvesting the garden. This should be a cooperative effort. In Project 3 the parent's responsibilities would be to provide acreage needed to grow the vegetables, assist in obtaining equipment and finances to initiate the project, and assist in finding a market.

Horticulture provides many interesting and challenging areas of employment, whether you prefer in-door or out-door work. Salaries are excellent in this highly competitive field which offers a variety in the number of unusual self-employment opportunities as well as to work for others.

Some of the better seif employment career opportunities in horticulture include the operation of floral shops, nurseries, orchards, garden center stores, and ground maintenance services. The marketing of horticulture crops offers many opportunities for persons interested in sales work related to horticulture commodities.

Other career possibilities include teaching and research positions in colleges and universities or perhaps serving as a county agricultural agent or specialist. Work with private concerns also offers considerable challenge and opportunity in sales, technical service, and research.

Yes, gardening is fun for the young people and proves to be very interesting for the leaders and parents. And then too, it may become a career for these young people.

Girl Explains Benefits Of Her 4-H Work

By Gloria Jean Maxwell
Eldorado 4-H Club

In the past seven years I have learned many things. I have learned to improve myself and my appearance. I have learned the many traits of responsibility of caring for my project results and my animals.

I have enjoyed the work along with the fun. I enjoy working with my projects and trying to improve myself and them in any possible way.

In Dairy and Horsemanship, I learned to care for my animals in the correct ways. In Dairy I received the trophy for Top Dairy Female Guernsey of 1966 and also one purple and two blue ribbons. I enjoy working with my dairy animals.

I have also participated in a few local shows and learned the many cares of a horse. I have enjoyed the club work and I plan to continue as long as I can.

I have participated in many projects and have gained much in my daily life. I enjoyed the work and also to take the bad along with the good. In the few years I have been a 4-H member, I have learned good sportsmanship, ways to improve myself, and ways to care for my projects. I plan to improve myself in the future.

Attend State Board Meeting of Sorority

Attending the State Board meeting of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, International Sorority, aboard the River Queen in St. Louis, were five members of Rho Tau Chapter, Sedalia. They were: Mrs. Richen Price, immediate past president of the State Council; Mrs. John Maxwell, State Council secretary; Mrs. J. C. Braden, local president; Mrs. William Hall and Mrs. Gary Cooper.

Mrs. John Maxwell, Rho Tau Chapter, Sedalia, was nominated for State Council vice-president. The election will be held at the State Convention, April 14-16 in Columbia.

Mrs. Gary Cooper, a board member of Missouri Girls Town, Mountain Grove, Mo., requested the State ESA Council consider furnishing a room in the new wing of Girls Town and the Council approved the proposal as a state philanthropic project.

Adult Termite Recognition Is Outlined

Reproductive adult termites have yellow-brown to black bodies and two pairs of long, whitish, opaque wings of equal size. They differ from the reproductive forms of true ants which have two pairs of transparent wings of equal size. Termites have thick waistlines. In contrast, ants, which are often mistaken for termites, have thin waistlines.

Large numbers of winged reproductive termites emerging or swarming from the soil or wood may be the first indication of the presence of a termite colony. The presence of their discarded wings is very good evidence of a well-established colony nearby. These discarded wings often are found on the floor beneath doors or windows where termites have emerged within a building and have been unable to escape. They are attracted by strong light and they gather about windows or doors. Pairs of these reproductive termites try to return to the soil to find a suitable location for starting a new colony.

If you should suddenly find termites in your home do not become alarmed and think treatment is necessary tomorrow. Select a reputable exterminator or look yourself to determine the extent of damage and locatons of the colony. Take your time—don't panic.

You may pick up a good bulletin on the prevention and control of termites in buildings at the University Extension Center.

Early Spring Planting Time For Potatoes

Potatoes should be planted as early in the spring as the soil can be prepared. In Central Missouri this usually occurs between March 20 and April 1.

Because of hot dry summers only the early varieties of potatoes, Irish potatoes are grown in Missouri almost entirely as a spring crop.

Plant northern-grown certified seed rather than home grown seed. The truly certified seed carries a blue tag on which is printed the state seal, the signature of the state inspector, and the name and address of the grower.

Seed potatoes should have started to sprout but the sprouts should not exceed a quarter of an inch in length.

Desirable seed pieces should weigh 1 to 1½ ounce (size of an egg) and contain at least one healthy eye. There should be as little cut surface as possible When possible delay cutting the seed until immediately before planting.

The seed pieces are planted 12 inches apart in the rows. Since tuber formations under ideal conditions take place about 4 inches under the soil surface, 3 to 3½ inches is probably the proper planting depth. Some soil will be thrown over the row when cultivating.

Business Evaluation

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Businesses may get a better tax break than they expected.

The House of Representatives approved during the week a liberalized version of President Johnson's request for restoration of the seven per cent business investment tax credit. And it provided for accelerated depreciation allowances.

It was estimated that the House bill, if passed by the Senate, would mean an additional saving of $400 million to $500 million for corporate taxpayers.

The House adopted a bill that generally would allow taxpayers to claim the investment tax credit for items ordered during the suspension period, which began last Oct. 10, but weren't delivered or placed in service until on or after the March 10 reinstatement date.

The bill also provides that a building started and partially completed during the suspension period still could be eligible in part for fast depreciation writeoff.

The tax credit, originally enacted in 1962, lets a business subtract from its otherwise final tax bill up to seven per cent of its new investment in equipment.

Accelerated depreciation, enacted in 1954, allows a business to deduct from taxable income larger amounts of its investment in buildings in the early years of their useful lives than in later years.

These tax breaks were suspended as a means of helping curb inflation when the economy was rolling along at boom pace.

Now that business has slowed, the administration feels that incentives for expansion are again needed.

William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told Congress during the week that the economy was definitely slowing down "but I don't mean we're in a recession."

In an appearance before the House Banking Committee, he said the current levels of business inventories were the most troubling element in the economic picture.

He added that he foresaw a modest pickup in the economy after the excessive inventories are worked off.

The Commerce Department reported that the increase in business inventories slowed sharply in January. The $950-million rise in January brought stocks of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers to $136.52 billion. The increase in December was $1.71 billion.

Martin told the committee he supported Johnson's proposals for restoration of the investment tax credit and enactment of a six per cent surcharge on income taxes. He said the tax increase will be necessary because of the anticipated $12-billion deficit in next year's federal budget.

Housing starts declined sharply in February after rising for three consecutive months. The Commerce Department reported that private starts last month were at an annual rate of 1,089,000, down 5.1 per cent from 1,282,000 in January.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production dropped substantially during February for the second straight month. The board's index fell to 155.9 per cent of the 1957-59 average from 158 per cent in January and 159 per cent in December.

Unemployment in mid-February held steady for the third successive month at 3.7 per cent of the labor force.

The jobless total increased to 3,183,000 from 3.16 million in January while total employment rose to 72,506,000 from 72.16 million.

Automobile production for the week was estimated at 163,700 passenger cars, up 3 per cent from 158,403 the previous week but down 18 per cent from 199,676 a year ago.

Car sales in the first 10 days of March fell 25 per cent to 193,025 from a record 256,004 a year earlier. Chrysler posted a sales gain of 6.8 per cent while General Motors was off 33.8 per cent, Ford was down 25.4 per cent and American Motors was off 9 per cent.

Steel production during the week declined 2.5 per cent to 2,464,000 tons from 2,538,000 tons the previous week.

Extension Club Notes

Roll call was answered with a house cleaning hint.

Mrs. Lohan Siegel gave the lesson on the arrangement of pictures and picture frames. Mrs. Willie Turner reported the donation to the Children's Theraphy Center, and also read the poem "Thanks for the Recognition Tea" from Miss Opal O'Briant.

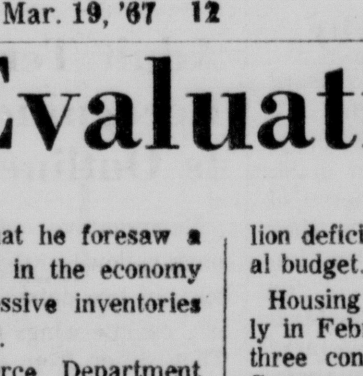
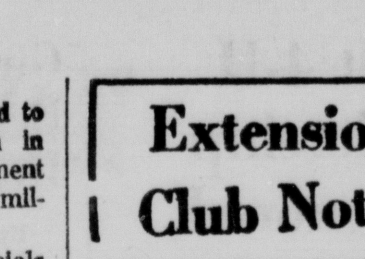
WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The salaries of congressmen have changed an average of once every decade. Three times Congress has reduced its members' compensation—each time the economy was depressed, says The World Almanac. When George Washington was president, Congressmen received $6 for each day of attendance plus $6 for each 20 miles of travel to and from sessions. Presently, they receive $30,000 plus travel and expense allowances.

"We Won't Forget the Part the Land Bank Played!"





1917... There was a war on. Dad was too old to go. I was too young. Congress passed a law creating the Federal Land Banks to help farmers pay for their land.

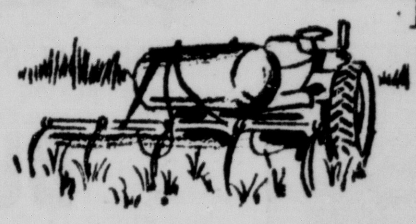
1918... Dad bought 80 acres with the help of a Federal Land Bank loan, obtained through the local Land Bank Association.

1922... Hazel and I got married. Eighty acres wasn't enough to support two families, so Dad and I went to the local Land Bank man again — we got another loan and bought another 80 acres.

1933... The great depression — business in a turmoil. We were managing somehow and were raising a fine family — Tom, our oldest, and our two girls. Through our local Land Bank Association we arranged to refinance our loan to cut the payments down.

1936... Drought and crop failure — with the outlook pretty dreary. The Land Bank permitted us to pay only the interest due and defer the principal portion of our loan installment.

1943... Tom was in the Army, one of the girls was home, the other in college. Dad passed away last year.



1955... That original 80 acres had turned into 240, not counting Tom's place purchased with the help of a Land Bank loan. We were farming with chemicals... to fertilize the land, to kill bugs, to control weeds.

1961... Bought a new house. Modern farming takes a lot of machinery and a lot of money. Over the years the Land Bank has provided the money — to keep abreast of the newest developments.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY OF THE FEDERAL LAND BANK SYSTEM

1917 1967

1967... Hazel and I have had a good life — we raised a fine family — we have six wonderful grandchildren — and we own a good farm. The Federal Land Bank and the local Land Bank Association certainly played an important part in our success.

World News In Retrospect

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The week brought hints of big things to come — though not necessarily a quick peace — in the campaign to rid South Vietnam of Communist fighting forces.

In a speech at Nashville, Tenn., President Johnson said he planned to send unspecified "top-flight military personnel" to assist Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U. S. commander, "in the intense operations he will be conducting in the months ahead."

The President said that in addition to his weekend conference with South Vietnamese leaders in Guam, he would meet representatives of all nations fighting on the U. S.-South Vietnamese side in Washington on April 20-21.

At the same time, he announced the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge as ambassador to Saigon, and the appointment of Ellsworth Bunker, 72, who negotiated settlement of the Dominican Republic crisis, to succeed him. Lodge's deputy, William J. Porter, also resigned. He'll be succeeded by Eugene M. Locke, now ambassador to Pakistan.

The United States, said the President, is determined to "stay the course" until "an honorable peace can be negotiated."

Meanwhile, both the White House and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy denied that the President and the New York democrat traded swear words in a Feb. 6 confrontation on Vietnam policy.

The meeting followed published reports that the senator had received a North Vietnamese peace feeler during a recent trip to Paris. Kennedy denied he brought home such a feeler.

The senator has advocated halting the bombing of North Vietnam and then making an open appeal to Hanoi for peace talks.The White House view is that past bombing pauses brought no softening of Hanoi's position, and that there is no reason to believe the Kennedy plan would work.

On the battlefront, the enemy hit the U. S. air base at Da Nang with Soviet-made 140mm rockets, the heaviest weapons so far used by the Communists, and wounded 19 Americans.

In midweek, official statistics disclosed the death in action of 175 Americans and the wounding of 892 in a seven-day period. Two American planes were shot down, bringing the total admitted lost since the fighting began to 647.

In a New Orleans court, Perry R. Russo, 25, an insurance agent, testified that in September 1963, he heard Lee Harvey Oswald and two other men plotting the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

Russo named the other man as David W. Ferrie, a former airline pilot — who has since died — and Clay L. Shaw, a New Orleans businessman. Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has charged Shaw with conspiring to have the president slain. Shaw says he never met Oswald or Ferrie.

The court ruled after the four-day preliminary hearing that Shaw must stand trial on the charge.

In Washington, the body of Kennedy was transferred from a temporary grave in Arlington National Cemetery to its permanent resting place 20 feet away. Also transferred to the new site were the bodies of two Kennedy children. One, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, died in early infancy. The other was stillborn.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., denied before the Senate ethics committee that he improperly used a large part of $450,000 in political contributions for personal expenses.

Dodd insisted that much of the money was not intended by the donors to pay for campaigning, but took the form of tax-free gifts which he could use as he pleased.

Chairman John J. Stennis, D-Miss., said the committee would prepare a report for the Senate as quickly as possible, but that it would take "some weeks, at least."

Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba made what sounded like a declaration of independence from Moscow. Singling out Soviet trade relations with anti-Communist Colombia, he said that anybody who does business with such governments undermines the Castro guerrilla movement in Latin America.

Castro added that his revolution "will follow its own line; this revolution will never be a satellite of anybody."

Bearing in mind that Cuba's economy depends heavily on sugar exports to the U.S.S.R., some Havana-watchers opined that Castro was just talking. There was no reaction from Moscow.

Another Communist national leader, Mao Tse-tung, was reported to have turned Red China's 2.5-million-man army loose on foes of his cultural revolution.

Reports in Hong Kong said soldiers were being poured into southern and southwestern China to put down uprisings.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, visiting Moscow, was snubbed by Soviet officials he wanted to meet. He said the Kremlin refused to permit the interviews because Nixon is no longer in American public life.

Commented Nixon: "A government without an opposition is apparently not willing to recognize the opposition in another country."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

More U. S. presidents were born in Virginia than in any other state. Eight chief executives—Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Taylor and Wilson—were Virginians. The state with the second greatest number of native-son presidents is Ohio with seven, says The World Almanac. Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, McKinley, Taft and Harding were born in Ohio

In New York's Harlem, long the political stronghold of Adam Clayton Powell, Republicans named Lucille Williams, a comely, 50-year-old Negro grandmother, to run against him in a special election April 11.

Powell, an 11-term Democratic veteran, was ousted by the House for various shenanigans. He is trying to regain his seat by court action. But win or lose in court, he's expected to score an overwhelming triumph at the polls.

Politician - preacher Powell had vowed to return from his vacation retreat on the isle of Bimini to the Harlem church where he is pastor on Palm Sunday. But on Friday he announced he had changed his plans. Powell is subject to arrest in New York City for contempt of court. He said he feared that any attempt to arrest him would touch off a riot.

A public prosecutor in Aachen, West Germany, filed manslaughter charges against nine officials of the company which produced the tranquilizer Thalidomide.

The prosecutor, Heinrich Gierlich, said about 5,000 children were born deformed in West Germany alone after their mothers used Thalidomide during pregnancy.

In Kansas City, Mo., Dr. Edward L. Crosby, executive vice president of the American Hospital Association, forecast that the average daily cost of hospital care, now $44, will soar to $57 or more by June. He cited increased cost of supplies and labor.

Jungle Drums Silenced By New Transistor Radios

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Africa's jungle drums —once the only means of long distance communication on the Dark Continent-are seldom heard these days. They've been silenced by the modern transistor radio.

In remote jungle villages Africans now tune in to their favorite African station, or to Cairo, London or the Voice of America.

Like some insidious bug, the transistor radio has wormed its way into cities and primitive tribal areas, hitherto isolated from local and international politics.

Today most African governments place their internal and external radio services high on their priority list. The radio has become an essential part of the ruling party's political machinery. Black leaders need no longer undertake long, arduous journeys to meet the people.

From the comfort of an air-conditioned studio he can thump home the ruling party's political doctrines, knowing that radio waves will carry his words to multitudes hitherto unreachable.

High-powered radio transmitters are enabling black African leaders to project their personality and influence far beyond the borders of their own territory into countries where no self-respecting tribal chief would be without an all-wave transistor radio.

From Cairo come programs in a dozen African languages boosting the image of the United Arab Republic's President Gamal Nasser to the four corners of black Africa.

Tanzania, which includes former Tanganyika and the island of Tanzibar, both under Red Chinese influence, beams regular propaganda to the black masses in the white-ruled territories of Mozambique, Rhodesia and South Africa.

They hope to foment massive black uprisings in the white-dominated southern states. Red Chinese technicians are hastily completing a new 100-kilowatt transmitter which will beam propaganda to every black state.

Even the Spanish, whose only possessions are a tiny West Coast island called Fernando Po and the two small mainland territories of Rio Muni and Spanish Sahara, beam popular music and propaganda to African states.

A HISTORY OF 4-H IN MISSOURI is to be published, according to Frank Graham, standing, University of Missouri extension youth project leader. He, Robert S. Clough, left, and Clyde H. Duncan look over some of the material collected for the book. Clough, responsible for doing much of the research, has finished that part of the job. The material has been given to Duncan who will do the writing. Clough, former long-time leader of the extension 4-H club program, now retired from the University, devoted about five years of part time work gathering material for the book. Duncan, a retired University associate agricultural editor, is a National Charter 4-H Club member. Among books he has previously written is Straight Furrows, a story of 4-H Club work. The history of 4-H in Missouri will cover the period from 1914, the start of boys and girls club work, through 1964.

Fear Spread Of 'Jungle'

By DAVE SMITH

NEW YORK (AP) — It was in New York in 1954 that ex-schoolteacher Evan Hunter described the city's classrooms—already crowded with the angry children of the poor and increasingly the arena for teen-age savagery—as "the blackboard jungle."

Today the fear is growing that the jungle is spreading, threatening to obliterate the education of many, along with all that education means to their hope of a better future.

On Tuesday, 79 teachers at Junior High School 98 in the Bronx resigned, accusing the New York City Board of Education of failing to alleviate overcrowding, overwork and student assaults upon teachers.

In an astonishingly rapid and widespread display of sympathy, more than 1,000 teachers from all over the city rallied the next day, echoing the complaints from "98 Bronx," promising protest pickets and urging school boycotts, teachers' union strikes and mass resignations.

School officials expressed dismay, stressed their claims that they have tried to ease the lot of teachers and then announced — as boards of education must, several officials suggested — that they would deal firmly with the rebel teachers, that they had "no alternative but to accept" the resignations.

An Associated Press survey of school officials, teachers, parents and even students revealed an ironic similarity in the views of all parties to the bitter dispute: There appears to be no single master villain anyone can name, the same complaints about school conditions feed the wrath of all combatants, and everyone agrees on who stands to suffer the worst — the kids.

Says a Puerto Rican mother of a 98 Bronx student: "My girl sure ain't learning a thing when those teachers aren't in school, but sometimes I think she ain't learning much anyway. Not when some of those kids start tearing up the classes."

Ken Allen, a teacher at the nearby Bronx High School of Science, said at Wednesday's massive teacher rally: "We're demanding psychologists and psychiatric help, more supervisors and more civilians in the schools to help with the disruptive students."

Seelig Lester, superintendent of the 12th District, in which 98 Bronx lies, commented: "If I had them, I'd assign them. I just don't have them."

And a 98 Bronx boy: "I'm with the teachers. I think they need more protection. There's this girl in my class that's always yelling dirty words, and it always breaks everything up."

When Hunter wrote the "Blackboard Jungle," it was considered chiefly a Manhattan phenomenon. The most crowded of the city's five boroughs, it had long been the first stop and final home of immigrants, Southern Negroes and Puerto Ricans who have come to make up much of the city's population.

As the population has soared, the city's disadvantaged neighborhoods — with language problems, high joblessness and welfare costs and rising crime rates — have spread, beyond Harlem and Spanish Harlem to Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx.

The Board of Education announced on Monday that for the first time in city history, Negro and Puerto Rican pupils were in the majority in the public schools — 50.2 per cent citywide, as compared with 31.7 per cent a decade ago.

Dr. Nathan Brown, executive deputy superintendent of schools, said the figures "were no surprise," adding that the increasing ethnic topheaviness "makes it more difficult for us to provide the kind of integrated education that we would like to provide for every section in the city."

While Manhattan, at around 70 per cent, still held the lead in Negro-Puerto Rican school population, the Bronx had 45.6 per cent as of the October 1966 count.

And 98 Bronx itself is 77 per cent Puerto Rican and 19 per cent Negro.

Built to hold 1,598 students, 98 Bronx currently has about 2,000 enrolled and 200 more scheduled for next September, with a teaching staff of 126.

Its principal, Dr. James L. Mandell, says: "This is not a terror or fear school." There have been 13 assaults in this school year, he says, "and all can be characterized as minor, requiring no medical attention."

Then he adds: "Even one is too many, of course, but 13 assaults out of an enrollment of 2,000 doesn't seem excessive in this city."

Mandell says teacher absenteeism has risen rapidly in his school in recent months, to roughly twice the city average, and that this has thrown extra work onto those teachers who do report for work.

Blackboard Jungle BJT GAL 3

Besides assaults, the other major complaint of the resigned teachers was of "coverages" — being required to take on extra classes, at no extra pay, when regular teachers were absent and substitutes were not available.

And the complaints were not confined to 98 Bronx. At Wednesday's protest meeting, led by officials of the United Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, teachers from more than a dozen other schools throughout the city charged officials with bad faith in observing the contract, in not providing substitutes, in imposing coverages on already-burdened teachers, in not adequately punishing assault cases.

Teacher after teacher stressed a common theme: That a disruptive minority robs the cooperative majority of a chance to learn.

Charles Shebar, an English and social studies teacher who said 75 teachers at Junior High School 136 in the Bronx were also ready to resign, drew cheers and prolonged applause when he read from an impassioned statement.

He said: "The most obvious and saddest result of this neglect is the presence of a group of disruptive children for whom there are no services provided. These students assault other children, disrupt classes, destroy school and student property, assault and defy teachers and make it impossible to instruct the vast majority who are ready and anxious to learn. They need help which our very overcrowded, understaffed school can't provide. We cannot continue under these conditions."

A statement by the city superintendent of schools, Bernard E. Donovan, in which he ordered the teachers' return to 98 Bronx, expressed a concern identical to that of the rebels.

Said Donovan: "Our pupils can ill-afford the loss of a single day, especially in a disadvantaged area. Public statements by the United Federation of Teachers describing the school as 'terror-ridden' and as a 'jungle school' reflect adversely and unjustly on the vast majority of our teachers as well as upon the children whom we are all trying to teach."

Early Spring Best Time To Kill Weeds

Early spring is the best time to kill weeds in your lawn. The application of chemical is much easier than using the hoe and more effective. There will be some weeds next year when the other seeds germinate. Be prepared to spray each spring.

2-4,D with Silvex is the safest and most effective weed killer to use in your lawn. Follow the directions closely and watch the drift from the spray or sprinkler. Do not use the same sprayer you will use later for insect control.

To Try, Anyway

Woman Barber To Make Russian Men 'Handsomest'

By JOHN WEYLAND

MOSCOW (AP) — This country's leading barber is a woman who says her aim is to make "Soviet men the handsomest in the world."

Tamara Motorina's customers wait up to four hours for one of her sculptured haircuts at the Petrovka 18 barbershop in downtown Moscow.

They include a cosmonaut, star hockey players, doctors, high ranking officers and academicians — the middle-aged as well as the Soviet smart young set.

Mrs. Motorina, an attractive blonde divorcee, is one of the many women barbers in this country. She took first place at last year's biggest barbering competition against both women and men.

Barbering in general and Mrs. Motorina in particular have gotten favorable publicity lately. The profession is being rehabilitated after a long period of neglect.

Soviet Russia, a newspaper put out by the Central Committee of the Communist party, recently ran an article which proclaimed, "The overwhelming majority of people would like to be attractive. There is nothing illegal about that."

The newspaper, apparently for the first time, spoke respectfully about barbering and defended men's interest in having their hair cut well.

This was a far cry from the Stalinist times of unkempt tieless workers with caps pulled down on their shaggy heads.

Soviet Russia said the desire to be attractive "is evidence of the growing living standard in our country." It called barbering an honorable branch of the national economy and urged better equipment and preparations, like lotions and hair sprays.

Mrs. Motorina was singled out as an example of what a barber should be. Readers were told customers go to her barbershop "to encounter art."

Snipping away deftly on the head of a young doctor, Mrs. Motorina said her favorite haircut is short — close to the head with a part. She works mainly with a razor, disdaining mechanical clippers, and uses a special technique with dryer and spray to get every hair in place.

Reasoning In Choice Of Market

Lorene S. Wilson, consumer marketing specialist,
University of Missouri.

Perhaps you have not given thought to the reasons why you shop a particular supermarket.

The 13th annual "Study of Supermarket Shoppers" by Burgoyne Index, Inc. lists several reasons for your choice. This study points out, for the first time in history, low prices on groceries were named first by the largest number of respondents as the most decisive factor in their choice of a supermarket.

Over 30 percent of the votes were for low food prices. Quality and freshness of meat, which had led all previous surveys, received only a little over 21 percent of the votes.

Convenient location was most important to 12 per cent of the voters; quality of fresh fruits and vegetables and variety and selection of groceries followed with 11 percent. And, cleanliness and attractiveness of the store ranked 6th with 10 percent of the votes.

This study indicates today's food shoppers are more positive in their wants, likes and dislikes.

Many new food products are now being test marketed in various areas. For instance freeze-fried instant coffee. Frozen ready-to-eat sugar cookies — chocolate chip nut fudge, oat meal raisin and vanilla in one pound to one pound two ounce packs are priced at 49 cents. For the young crowd, there is Italian pizza with thin crust packaged four 5 inch pizzas to a 12 ounce package selling for about 65 cents.

The working homemaker will welcome a two pound frozen meatloaf packaged in a foil type loaf pan which can go directly from freezer to oven.

An instant chocolate pudding for children, comes in a two unit package — a yellow and brown plastic cup in the shape of a story book character's head and a one ounce packet of pudding mix. The children are instructed to unscrew the head, fill half with milk, add the mix and shake until the head is quiet, about 20 seconds. This item retails for 49 cents. Ten refill packets of the pudding mix sell for 69 cents.

Frozen milk concentrate should be available in 1967. It is prepared by adding water, shaking and serving as with other frozen concentrates. The addition of an enzine, lactase, is said to prevent crystalization which has previously caused delays in marketing the frozen milk concentrate.

Also new in dairy departments is a new low calorie dairy product which isn't butter and it isn't cheese, but has the qualities of each. Although butter like in appearance and taste, the new product spreads directly from the refrigerator, yet does not get too soft to spread well at room temperature. It stays creamy when placed on hot cakes, waffles and corn-on-the-cob, blends readily into batter and has good moisture holding ability. A big plus is that it contains only about 60 percent as many calories as margarine, mayonnaise or butter.

March 1, 1967 was the effective date of regulation on meat content of poultry soups. On this date, poultry soups must contain at least 2 percent poultry meat.

So you see there'll be no chance for monotony in 1967 food markets.

Learning By Doing In 4-H Work

By Dale Wilson
Quisenberry Hustlers 4-H Club

My 4-H Club experiences have given me an opportunity to "learn by doing" in a number of different and exciting projects. Since I live on a farm I have had a livestock project each year, but have also carried additional projects such as Bicycle Safety, Rope work, Small Motors, Electricity and Ceramics.

Feeding and caring for my baby beef, ewe with lambs and my pigs have been my responsibility to enjoy along with judging and showing on the county level. During my six years in 4-H I cared for three steers, eleven ewes, fourteen lambs and fourteen pigs.

My parents helped me financially until now, when I can about meet the financial obligations needed in the projects with profits received when livestock is sold.

I have spent lots of time this past year watching my market pigs grow, hoping they would put on enough pounds to be Blue Ribbon winners. The greatest accomplishments of this project were realized in the show ring at the County Livestock Show when the judge handed me a blue ribbon and when I learned that I had used good enough livestock management to make some profit from the project.

The Rope work Project has tied in with the Livestock projects as it is necessary to use rope often in handling stock.

In Electricity I and II, I have learned to make minor repairs and to construct small electrical equipment; most important to "respect the power" for safety at all times. Electricity with its many uses is time and labor saving at a reasonable cost.

The Bicycle Safety project was interesting for me as I rode my bike to school. I learned how to take care of the bicycle, and make minor repairs as well as the rules of safety.

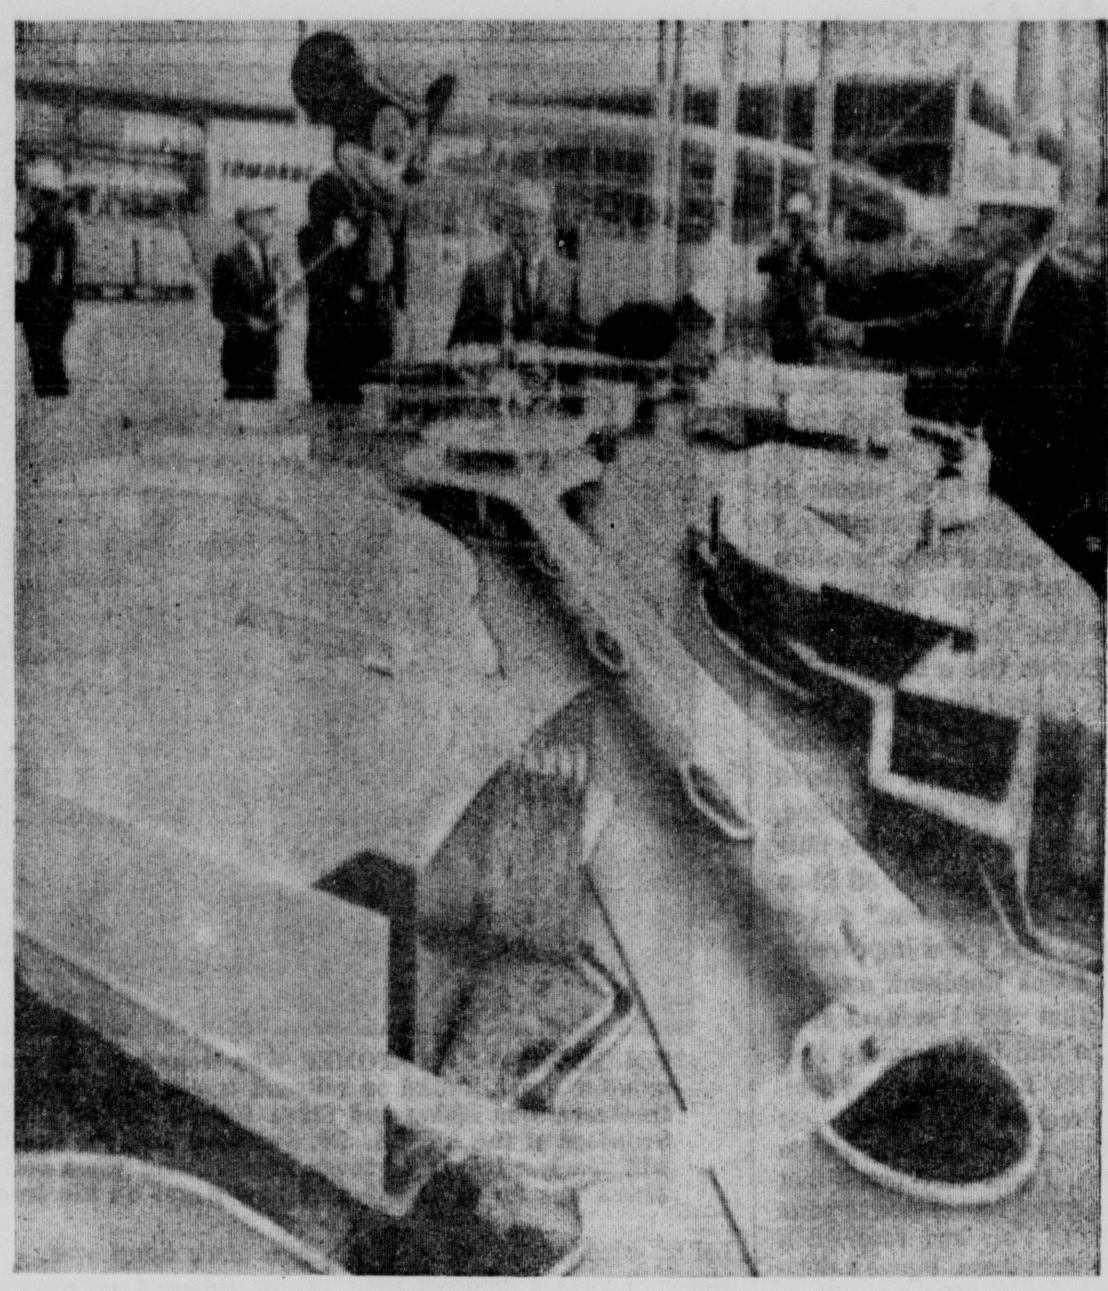
I have taken ceramics with the county group the past two years. This gave me a chance to learn how to make beautiful pieces with my hands that could be used as gifts or in our home.

The wide variety of 4-H club projects gives boys and girls an opportunity to make plans for their careers. The leadership training experiences at the local and countywide meetings are valuable to our future lives. I had the privilege of attending the 4-H Citizenship Short Course in Jefferson City this past summer to learn more about our State Government and how to become a better American citizen. Also, I met other young people from many parts of Missouri. I think 4-H Club camps give members opportunities to learn, work and play together.

I am grateful for all the help and encouragement given me by the County Agents, Community Leaders, Project Leaders and by my parents.

In Electricity I and Electricity II I have made minor repairs, such as replacing electric cords on appliances, replacing plug-ins on cords, replacing switch plates, etc. I have also assembled one trouble lamp and two test lamps. The trouble lamp was exhibited at the Achievement Day exhibit in 1965 and in 1966 I exhibited a test lamp, receiving blue ribbons on both articles.

FLOWER of the television world he may be, but the equipment TV personality Johnny Carson wears here serves a definite purpose. It's a sunbonnet sun reflector for enhancing a midwinter sun tan.



ANAHEIM, Calif.— Roy Disney (C), brother of the late Walt Disney, shares the spotlight with Mickey Mouse as Disneyland unveils a model of its $3 million addition to the all new $20-million Tomorrowland. Construction of the project, which will be opened this summer, goes on in the background as Disney shows the model. (UPI)

Condensation Avoided By Crawl Spaces

To avoid condensation in a basementless house built over a 2- to 4-foot excavation (crawl space), the crawl space must be dry. Moisture can condense in the crawl space or it can rise through the floors and condense on windows.

To prevent dampness within a crawl space: Grade the lot correctly for good drainage; use wide overhangs and/or gutters and down-spouts to eliminate rain seepage; lay moistureproof cover (i.e., polyethylene film 4 or 6 mils thick) on the ground of the crawl space to stop capillary rise of moisture; provide foundation vents to allow escape of moisture from the crawl space; if ground cover is used, only a minimum amount of ventilation is needed—four 8"x16" vents for a house up to 1,400 square feet (provide an additional vent for each additional 350 square feet); where floor insulation is used, install a vapor barrier either directly above it or between the subfloor and the finish flooring. The vapor barrier will prevent excessive miosture from the house traveling downward into the cold crawl space.

4-H Projects Help Youth In His Work

By Bruce Shirky
Striped College 4-H Club

I joined 4-H in 1962 because my friends were joining. I enrolled in Woodwork I and started on my project. I made a bootjack and a bird house, for which I received red ribbons at the County Achievement Day. I made an exhibit tray for which I received a blue ribbon.

My first demonstration was on "How to Use a Ruler." That year I entered the County Woodwork Judging Day and I received a red ribbon. I wondered why I didn't get a blue ribbon, but it was explained in one little sentence: "If you get all blues it wouldn't be any fun," and so the next year I had improved a little. I took Woodwork again in 1963. That year I made a knife rack, a bird feeder, and a footstool. My bird feeder and footstool received blue ribbons, and my knife rack a red one, and in addition I was very proud that my footstool was chosen to go to the State Fair and received a blue ribbon there. I gave a demonstration on "How to Clean Boots" as a grooming demonstration. I was on the Wildlife Committee in our local club and we had a panel discussion on Missouri Animals.

Up to this time in Woodwork we needed quite a bit of assistance, but every year I learned more and the third year we didn't need as much help. I hadn't really appreciated 4-H up to now. 4-H is more fun if you get in and work, and participate in everything you can.

In 1964, I was enrolled in Woodwork again and this year also included a Horsemanship project, with a shetland pony for a project. I made a road sign, book ends, and a sleeve board. I received a blue ribbon on all of these. On my judging I received a red ribbon. At Achievement Day I entered the grooming contest and also gave a demonstration. I received a red ribbon in grooming and a blue for my demonstration which was on "How to Clean and Care for a Saddle." I gave this demonstration three times, and after this, I knew that from now on I was going to enter anything I could.

I was also in the County 4-H Horse Show. I won nine ribbons there, two blue, five red, and two whites. I was very proud that one of my blue ribbons was for "horsemanship." I was on the Cleanup Committee in our local club that year.

In 1965 I took Horsemanship, Rope work, Photography and Knitting. Though Knitting may sound like a funny project for a boy, I became interested in it that winter when I was ill for a length of time and had to be quiet. As my mother was leading a knitting project at that time she taught me to knit, this proved a task for both of us as I am left handed. However, we mastered it and my hatband received a blue ribbon at Achievement Day and my house shoes were given a red one. My main project this year was rope. I made a Knot Board and a Splice Board which both received red ribbons, and a rope halter which received a blue ribbon. I gave a demonstration at the County Achievement Day. By luck, I got to go to the District meeting and received a blue ribbon there.

Last year I took five projects, Horsemanship, Ceramics, Foods IV, Photography II, and Junior Leadership. I was lucky enough to receive the honor of going to the Jefferson City Short Course, and meeting the Governor. Most of this year, for me, has been spent breaking an Appaloosa colt in my horsemanship project. I had quite a time at first, but he broke out all right and I am very proud of my colt.

All things considered, nothing has helped me along the way any more than 4-H. I only wish I had done more in my first two years. I think that 4-H, if you put in a little work, rewards you many times over.

At present I am more or less undecided as to what career I am to follow, but I am pretty sure it will be Animal Husbandry. I hope to attend the University of Missouri when I graduate from high school.

Best Seeding Dates For Alfalfa, Pastures

The object should be to make alfalfa and pasture seedings as early as possible in the spring, without the newly emerged seedlings being caught by a killing freeze.

The date of seeding varies throughout the state. The first two weeks in April is the time to start in Central Missouri.

Later seedings would have a lesser chance of getting established before hot and drier weather sets in.

Packaging Adds Appeal For Honey

Honey is one of the oldest and most healthful sweets known to man. Today's new ways of packaging and processng honey make it even more appealing to the taste and more convenient to use.

Forms of Honey

Liqud or extracted honey is honey removed from the comb. About 75 per cent of the crop is sold in this form.

Comb honey is placed in jars as it comes from the hive. Only about 5 per cent is sold in this form and is usually carried as a speciality.

Cream or spread honey is extracted honey that has been crystalized into minute crystals which give it a creamy texture.

Dried honey is a new product to watch for in local markets. Developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture research engineers, this new product may become popular with bakers, candy makers and home cooks. Not only can the free-flowing granular form be measured and handled more easily than the natural sticky one, it also has possibilities as an ingredient in packaged baking mixes. Dried honey has nearly the very same flavor as the original. Storage tests indicate that it may be stored for a year at room temperature without loss of flavor or quality. It reconstitutes easlly when water is added.

Flavors of Honey

Flavor, aroma and color of honey vary with the kind of flowers from which the bees gather the nectar to make the honey. In general, very pale colored honeys are mild and delicately flavored, while darker honeys have a more definite, tangy flavor.

Clover honey is mild and delicate in flavor and light colored. Alfalfa honey is also mild and light colored. Honey from goldenrod and aster bloom range in color from extra light amber to amber and has a stronger more zestful flavor than clover. Buckwheat is the darkest table honey produced. It has a dstinctive, strong, rich flavor.

Most of the honey found in retail stores is a blend of different floral types. By blending, producers and processors keep their honey brands as uniform as possible in color and flavor. Clover is the predominant flavor found in most of the blended honey.

Grades of Honey

Standards for grading have been set up by the Federal government. You may buy graded or ungraded honey in retail stores. The grades are:

U. S. Fancy or U. S. Grade A.
U.S. Standard or U.S. Grade C

Honey can be kept almost indefinitely under proper storage conditions. Store liquid, comb, and chunk honey in air tight containers at room temperature. Honey butter and creamed honey should be stored in the refrigerator.

Enjoy this delectable sweet honey while supplies are heavy!

Jackie's Other Book Jacqueline Kennedy has okayed another "authorized" book of her days in the White House. Mrs. Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer has been commissioned to update a book she wrote in 1961 to include all of Mrs. Kennedy's White House days. Because of the furor over William Manchester's The Death of a President, the publisher isn't saying what kind of approval rights Mrs. Kennedy has, whether it will be serialized in magazines, or even when it will be published.

Crime Does Pay Home burglars are proving every day that crime does pay. To make sure your house isn't robbed, experts suggest the following: when away for a full day or more, inform neighbors as well as the police; have someone take papers, milk, and packages off the doorstep; put away entry aids such as ladders; plug in light controls that turn lights on at dusk and off in the morning; use burglar alarms—and take out burglar insurance.

Monty Wins Another One Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery is about to score a diplomatic coup for Great Britain. In May the Egyptians plan to mark the 25th anniversary of the World War II battle at El Alamein, and Egypt's President Nasser has extended a very warm personal invitation to Monty to be his guest during the celebration. This may mark the first thaw in frigid British-Egyptian relations.

Cold Tips With the common cold making its last big offensive of the season, here is a tip on how to avoid the sniffles: add moisture to the air. In cold weather most homes are superheated, and the air is so dry that the body's germ barrier of moisture in the throat quickly evaporates. Keep humidifiers running or put pans of water on the radiators. And turn down the heat at night. Many persons sleep with their mouths open, and in a superheated room their throats become bone-dry.

Busy Fiddler The voices of the Jolly Green Giant, Charlie the Tuna, and dozens of other tv-commercial characters belong to Broadway star, Herschel Bernardi, who has helped make "Fiddler on the Roof" a long-run musical. Bernardi cuts 500 spots a year, selling everything from cold remedies to candy.

Odd Job Big, brawny Dick Radatz, who's a pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, has gone into an unusual side line—giving facials to women! Although Dick's wife Sharon has been doing most of the facials so far (while Dick spends his time signing up new employees for the business), the huge hurler emphasizes that he is capable, if necessary, of working on the ladies' faces himself.

Dick Radatz

John Wayne's Bracelet John Wayne is sporting a gold bracelet these days—but this doesn't mean he's a sissy. The wristlet was given him by a Montagnard tribesman during his recent trip to South Vietnam. It makes him a member of the tribe. The only way Duke can remove the bracelet is by cutting it off, and he values the token too much to do that. The problem: how to hide it during some of his film roles when a gun is supposed to be his only "costume jewelry."

Big Star The biggest new comedienne is Totie Fields. One critic says: "Dressed in yellow, she looks like a pregnant 500-pound canary." Her weight may be one secret of her success. Totie explains: "People can relate to me because the whole world is fighting a losing battle with weight. One look at me, and they're my people. I throw out such lines as: 'I've been on a diet for two weeks—and all I lost was two weeks.' "

He's Heard It "People try to tell me jokes," says Leopold Fechtner, a bespectacled New York photographer, "but usually they don't even get past the opening line before I can finish it for them." A collector of gags, he has 60 bound volumes of them, all cross-indexed, plus a library of 1,000 gag books dating back to 1877. His collection is probably the biggest in the world. How did he begin it? "As a photographer, I thought the easiest way to get people to smile for the camera was to tell them a joke," Fechtner explains. "So I bought one book—and then from there . . ."

How to Keep from Having a Nervous

This noted writer reveals a secret of tranquility that Joan Crawford and Paulette Goddard also discovered—but which Marilyn Monroe didn't

I WORKED for many years in the nerve-racking atmosphere of Hollywood and, later on, in the equally frantic environs of Broadway. But I have yet to visit a psychoanalyst or even take my first tranquilizing pill.

This is due, I'm sure, to having stumbled across a treatment for unstrung nerves a long time ago. The treatment costs much less than a single session with an analyst and is a quicker tranquilizer than any of the so-called miracle drugs.

This medical discovery of mine took place one summer when my husband John and I were in Europe. I had remained in Paris while he had gone to London on business. He planned to take a plane back on a certain day.

Those were the early years of plane travel when any flight was a hazard. The plane was due at 5 p.m. at an airport about an hour from our hotel. So 6 o'clock found me in our suite waiting for John.

But he didn't come. Never mind—possibly traffic from the airport was heavy. Six-thirty came; still no John. Beginning to be apprehensive, I called the reception desk and asked whether it was usual for the flights from London to be late. I was assured that, as a rule, the planes arrived on schedule.

It may only have been imagination, but I sensed that the reception clerk shared my alarm. At any rate, he said he would phone the airline. While waiting for his report, I began to visualize any number of catastrophies. I could almost hear John's airplane smacking the waters of the Channel.

Finally I called the reception desk again. The receptionist said that he had been trying to get the airport but the lines were jammed—possibly flooded with other calls of the same nature as mine.

His line of reasoning only increased my fears. I now began rapidly to disintegrate, to feel I'd never see my husband again. Had I been a smoker, I would have spent the following hour lighting one cigarette after another. But I don't smoke. Also, I don't drink—else I'd have ordered up a double martini or two. I was alone in Paris; there was no friend with whom I could share my alarm. Should I call up the American Embassy?

While deep in thought, I found my gaze fixed on a piece of needle point I had bought at the Galerie Lafayette. I picked it up, still in a daze, and started automatically to work on it, my hands shaking so violently that it was hard to get the stitches into line.

Little by little, it began to seem very important that the row of small crosses should be straight. I was forced to steady my hand, to concentrate on the needle—in and out it went . . . the line began to straighten . . . good . . . now the little crosses were uniform.

Almost hypnotized by that row of even stitches, I reached a point where it was necessary to change to another color of yarn. It must be just the right nuance . . . not too light . . . not too dark.

I found the proper shade, went on with a blotch of yellow that would soon turn into a daisy, and was going great guns when I was rudely interrupted by John walking in. He said that his plane had been delayed in taking off from London —after which he had enjoyed a perfect flight.

Without realizing it, I had conducted a successful experiment in the control of nervous tension. That piece of needle point did duty for years. I can't remember when, or if, it ever got finished, which is just as well because the pattern was pretty banal, and I came to look down my nose on it as a work of art. But as therapy it never failed.

During the 1930s I went to California, where I spent 18 years in the scenario department at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It was a period when MGM dominated the entire Hollywood scene because of the genius of Irving Thalberg, who headed the organization.

Irving was so great a perfectionist that we often used to work on a movie script for as long as five years. Most of the time was spent waiting for conferences with Irving, whose duties, both as executive head of the great studio and as inspiration to a waiting staff of more than 100 authors, were staggering.

Sometimes a writer would be forced to wait for months before Irving was available for a conference. Such periods were frustrating, and, sitting outside Irving's office, other writers used to chafe with impatience or gradually disintegrate through boredom.

I, however, put my previous medical discovery to good use. But because needle point required too large an assortment of yarn, I took to knitting. While waiting for conferences on a script I wrote for Jean Harlow titled "The Red-Headed Woman," I knitted a scarf which, when you consider the time I put in on it and the $3,500-a-week salary I was being paid by MGM, could have been valued at about $85,000. But as long-range therapy it was worth that sum.

There were two other girls on the old MGM lot who had stumbled onto the therapeutic value of handiwork—although I'm sure they had done so as unconsciously as I had. They were Joan Crawford and Paulette Goddard.

The most common complaint of any film actress is that acting occupies a very small portion of a day's work. The majority of time is spent in waiting: waiting for huge, clumsy lights to be arranged, for cameras to be adjusted, for make-up to be freshened, for costumes to be changed, for endless technical details. Nothing ages a girl so much as boredom. It dulls the eyes, brings on wrinkles, and deadens the spirit.

But today both Joan and Paulette look years younger than their age. Can this partly be due to the fact that during long periods of boredom on studio stages, Paulette did acres of needle point and that Joan, during World War II, knitted enough socks to outfit a regiment? (One can only wish that poor little Marilyn Monroe, instead of getting hooked on sleeping pills, had become addicted to needle work or sought tranquility in a pair of knitting needles.)

Any sort of manual activity can be a substitute for needle work. I can cite the experience of a friend of mine who some time ago lost her adored husband of many years. It was one of those losses so tragic that it would have been understandable had she taken to drink.

For many years she had been a pampered wife living among the most exciting people of both her own country and Europe. She had had no other occupation than that of being hostess for her famous husband. At the time of his death it was appalling to think of what her future might be. She was totally unequipped for loneliness.

Her friends came forward with suggestions. She had always been a witty letter writer. Why couldn't she write professionally? Or take up decorating as a career? At any rate, see an analyst!

To all this advice, our friend had very sound objections. "I'd be only an amateur writer," she said. "As to the decorating business, it's already too full of women who have no equipment except their own imagined good taste."

As for an analyst, she explained that she had found an excellent substitute. She had discharged her servants and was doing all her own housework. She took the occupation very seriously, made a very precise schedule for dusting, scrubbing, vacuuming, and ironing. It was a schedule from which nothing short of doomsday would ever jolt her.

The schedule not only assured her physical and mental health but enabled her to do away once and for all with the servant problem. And she saved much more money on servants' salaries and food than she could ever have earned as a phony professional.

There is, of course, a great deal of housework being done in America by overburdened wives, but, in the majority of cases, it is done inexpertly and produces as much confusion, frustration, illness, and fatigue as does idleness. But it is easy to keep house efficiently by adhering to a schedule. A job that doesn't have to be rushed is never tiring, and with its accomplishment comes a glow of well-being that's practically a beauty treatment.

If you take to handiwork instead of to an analyst, it will not only save you the wear and tear of self-pity—it will also save the high-cost of therapy.

It has long been my ambition to hear of a case where an analyst has said to some patient, "I will now tell you good-bye, dear lady, because you won't have to come back here any more."

After all, analysts like to keep busy, too. ◆

FURNITURE: NEW HAPPENINGS

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

THE LINES were drawn at the recent home-furnishings market show in Chicago. It's Mod (direct from Carnaby Street) and Traditional vying for popularity. In between was the contemporary look, conceived aesthetically, without a trace of kookiness.

Traditional English pieces continued strong with less emphasis on last year's Jacobean look, more on delicate Queen Anne and Chippendale styles. Perennial French, more elegant than ever, remained undisturbed in its popular appeal. Furniture inspired by the Italian idiom was unexpectedly everywhere, recognized by its classic architectural elements.

As for the Mod look, making its transitional debut from the fashion world to the home-furnishings millieu, all signs were go! Op, pop, and shiny vinyl characterized the look, injecting snap and zest into the whole picture for this season.

Outdoor furniture came in from the cold —with rattan mated to slate, leather, and wood. New finishes abounded. Accent pieces were glowing in vibrant reds, ivory, greens, and blues. Blonde furniture seemed to be making a comeback. A "dare-you-to-tell" finish, Tartan-Clad from 3M, on many pieces successfully simulated wood grain through a photographic process. Most revolutionary of all was the high incidence of wood-grain plastic components used to form expensive-looking sculptured framing for chests, dressers, and headboards.

Fabrics boggled the imagination with velvets, fake furs, corduroys, and vinyl taking front-row center. The color scheme in upholstery showed gold and green still predominating with deep pink and oyster-white making headway. Punchy black-and-white combinations were seen almost everywhere in contemporary lines.

The optimistic impression of this season's offerings: furniture manufacturers are showing a keen awareness of women's fashions, of problems in apartment and home living, of the needs of a mobile America, of how new materials can enhance comfort and enjoyment. •

The Church Speaks On FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Mass media, of course, exert a vast power in the shaping of public opinion.

What people think on questions of public concern is often influenced by what they read in a newspaper, hear over radio and television, or see at a neighborhood movie. In some cases, these are the chief sources for information on which people make moral, social and political decisions.

It is no wonder, then, that the Church took a long and searching look at the instruments of social communication during the recent Vatican Council. And while affirming a strong belief in freedom of the press, the Council emphasized a moral obligation inherent to such freedom.

"An open and timely revelation of events and affairs," a Council decree said, "provides individuals with a grasp of them which is sustained and considerably detailed. As a result, men can actively contribute to the common good and all can more easily foster the development of the whole civic community."

The Council's decree, however, points out that mis-use of the power of the mass media can be devastatingly destructive. "Slanting" or managing of the news to prejudice the public in favor of a particular point of view, the decree declares, should be scrupulously avoided by those who control the media.

"Each man," the decree asserts, "should strive to form and to voice worthy views on public affairs." To do this, it adds, "requires discriminating reading and viewing as a background to forming and voicing worthy views." Providing such material, the decree concludes, is the moral obligation of all mass media.

"Rightly used," the decree says of all mass media, "they can bring solid nourishment to the human race." But if they are to be properly used, "it is absolutely necessary that all who use them know the norms of morality and apply them faithfully in this field."

If you are engaged in the mass communication field . . . or feel the influence of mass media in the shaping of your own views . . . you'll want to read our new pocket-size pamphlet dealing with the Council's discussion of this vital question. We'll be happy to send you a copy free and without obligation.

Bringing Up Baby®

Hints Collected
by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of Five

EARLY ADVENTURES

Great day when your little adventurer pulls himself up for the first time. But getting up is easier than backing down. At first he'll probably hang on to the playpen, crib-rail or whatever, for dear life. After you come to the rescue a few times, to ease him down gently, he'll get the idea and soon try a plop-down on his own. When he finds the plop really doesn't hurt, he'll practice his "pull-ups" with relish.

Appetite incentives. Gerber Strained or Junior Dinners are just the thing to make your baby's appetite rise to the occasion. These tasty combinations of vegetables, cereal and meat are deftly blended for meal-appeal. Like all Gerber Baby Foods, they're specially prepared to bring out their good flavors and help preserve precious food values.

Cream of Chick 'n' Pea Soup
1 jar Junior Vegetables and Chicken
½ jar Gerber Strained Peas
½ cup whole milk
Salt to taste
Combine ingredients, heat and serve.

Teething tale. Your baby's appetite may wane a bit at troublesome teething times. Favorite foods are in order then. Extra cuddling and comforting help in the soothing division. Frequent sips of cooling Gerber Fruit Juices are most welcome...Gerber Teething Biscuits, extra-hard and waffle-surfaced, will give baby the biting satisfaction he wants and needs. You'll be surprised at how much they help.

Safety patrol. As your baby gets more skillful in standing, make doubly sure that anything possibly harmful is not reachable. Examples: (1) If your inquisitive one does a pull-up via the coffee table, a darting hand could light on a cigarette lighter. (2) In the crib, an overhead mobile should be high enough to be out of harm's way. Gerber® Baby Products, Box 33, Fremont, Michigan.

Easter Eggs on Parade

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ It's the season for eggs to take on lovely pastel tints or to don coats of regal, old-world beauty and show off their elaborate designs and striking colors. It will merely take moments—and little skill, using a cake decorator and tinted frostings—to adorn eggs made from cakes, chocolate-coated candies, and frozen desserts.

Frozen Cherry Easter Egg

3 pts. vanilla ice cream, softened
1½ cups chopped candied red cherries
¾ cup chopped toasted filberts
¼ cup finely chopped flaked coconut
3 tablespoons maraschino cherry syrup
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
1 env. (2 oz.) dessert topping mix, prepared according to package directions

1. Mix into the softened ice cream the cherries, filberts, and coconut; then a blend of the syrup and extract. Pack mixture into a 1½-qt. melon mold, which has been rinsed with cold water and drained. Cover and freeze until firm, about 3 hours.

2. Invert the mold on a chilled plate. Dip a clean towel in hot water, quickly wring it almost dry, and wrap it around the mold for a few seconds; lift off mold. If mold cannot be lifted off immediately, repeat. If necessary, set in freezer before frosting.

3. Frost the egg with the whipped dessert topping. Decorate using a cake decorating set (aerosol cans of tinted frosting with decorating tips) or your favorite decorating frosting and pastry bag with decorating tubes. Pipe frosting onto frozen egg in an attractive design (see photo). Garnish with whole candied red cherries. Set in freezer until ready to serve.

10 to 12 servings

Easter Egg Bread

½ cup warm water (105°F.-115°F.)
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
1 cup regular all-purpose flour
⅓ cup water
¾ cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs (½ cup), well beaten
3¾ to 4¼ cups regular all-purpose flour
6 colored eggs (uncooked)

1. Soften yeast in the ½ cup warm water in a bowl. Stir the yeast and mix in the 1 cup flour, then the ⅓ cup water. Beat until smooth.

2. Cover bowl with waxed paper and a towel; let stand in a warm place (about 80°F.) until doubled, about 1 hr.

3. Cream butter or margarine with lemon peel and juice. Mix sugar and salt; add gradually, creaming well. Add beaten eggs in halves, beating thoroughly after each addition.

4. Add yeast mixture and beat until blended. Add about half of the remaining flour and beat thoroughly. Beat in enough flour to make a soft dough. Knead on floured surface until smooth.

5. Put dough into a greased bowl; turn dough to bring greased surface to top. Cover bowl with waxed paper and a towel; let rise in a warm place until doubled.

6. Punch down dough; divide into thirds. Let rest about 10 min.

7. With hands, roll and stretch each piece into a roll about 26 in. long and ¾ in. thick. Loosely braid rolls together, and on a lightly greased baking sheet or jelly-roll pan shape into a ring, pressing ends together. At even intervals, gently spread dough apart and tuck in a colored egg. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled.

9. Transfer coffee cake to a wire rack. If desired, spread a confectioners' sugar frosting over top of warm coffee cake. 1 coffee cake

Pickled Eggs

Cut Pickled Eggs into halves lengthwise and serve with a platter of sliced ham; or cut into crosswise slices and use to garnish appetizers, salads, and main dishes; or finely chop and sprinkle over salad greens which have been tossed with an oil-vinegar dressing; or tuck a jar into the picnic basket.

1½ doz. hard-cooked eggs, peeled
1 medium-sized onion, sliced
1¾ cups white vinegar
¾ cup water
3 tablespoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
5 peppercorns
1 whole clove
¼ teaspoon dill seed
Piece of ginger root

1. Combine onion and remaining ingredients in a saucepan; bring to boiling and simmer about 5 min.

2. Put the eggs into two 1-qt. jars; pour half the vinegar mixture over eggs in each jar. Cover jars, cool, and refrigerate at least overnight to develop flavor. (Eggs may be kept in refrigerator up to 2 weeks.)

PIN-WORMS A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Child-Rearing Myths?

By THOMAS AFFELDT, M.D.
Director, Adolescent Program, Forest Hospital, Des Plaines, Ill.

A CONFUSED MOTHER brought her six-year-old son to my office. "He can't learn to read," she said. "He just sits there staring at the book. But I'm sure he's bright."

As a child psychiatrist, I suspected what might be wrong. This family had accepted one of the child-rearing myths so common today. The particular myth they believed in was that parents must not quarrel or display anger in front of their children for fear of "traumatizing" or psychologically damaging them.

I explained to the distraught mother that as a result of their mistaken attitudes the boy was afraid to show any feelings of anger and aggression. And learning—particularly reading—demands aggression.

"Before we can expect his school work to improve," I told this worried mother, "we will have to show him that aggression can be harmlessly released. It might help him if he saw you and your husband disagree occasionally."

The parents were skeptical and perhaps a little shocked, but no more so than many of my patients who have enthusiastically embraced popular myths of child-rearing that circulate over coffee tables and at parties. These theories may seem liberal and enlightened, but, followed too closely and too literally, they can cause severe emotional trouble.

A common cause of anger in a youngster is hostility toward brothers and sisters. Jealousy, resentment, disappointment, and rivalry are bound to crop up from time to time among children reared together. Wise parents let their offspring vent these feelings in natural ways.

A good neighbor of mine, for example, rarely intervenes when her boys burst into occasional fights or shouting matches.

"Naturally, I make quite sure that no one really gets hurt. But I realize that some fighting really can be a good thing," she told me. She is right. Her boys are the closest of friends.

I recently treated a teen-age girl who was extremely depressed by intense guilt over jealousy of her sister. Her parents not only frowned on any quarreling between the girls but blocked off other outlets as well. They absolutely forbade the teen-ager to watch any violence on television, for one thing, under the mistaken popular notion that tv brawling can cause juvenile delinquency.

I have found that youngsters release many hostile feelings through tv programs. As I told these parents: "Don't try to shield your daughter from every 'bad' influence. You'll do more harm in the long run by being overprotective in such matters as these."

On the other hand, some parents are too eager to treat their children as adults. At a block party recently, a young father bragged to me about the "family council" system he and his wife used. Like some other parents I have encountered, they ran their home as a "democracy" with each member casting a "vote" on all major decisions.

This seems fair enough—but it isn't—to the child, at least. A child is not a small adult. Consequently he should not have to assume adult responsibilities. I have known youngsters who have been expected to "vote" on where the family will live, whether the youngster will go to a public or private school, even whether there should be a new baby!

These decisions are far beyond a child's emotional capabilities. His security comes from having parents act like parents—giving him direction and making family decisions, with the ultimate authority resting in the father.

All parents are confident they are rearing their children in the best possible way. Yet superconfidence is perhaps the greatest mistake of all. It is important to be flexible—to recognize a myth and forsake it without feeling guilty about having embraced it.

This open-mindedness is as important for the parent as for the child—whose "problem behavior" reflected the myth in the first place. ◆

Those "Supercalifragilistic" Brothers

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

ONE DAY an impoverished song writer named Dick Sherman walked into the office of a Hollywood music publisher to show him a new song he had just composed.

The publisher glanced over it and made some suggestions on how it could be improved.

"Hey, these are good ideas," Dick said. "We should be partners."

"Why not," said the publisher.

And so they formed a team. The extraordinary part of the story is that the publisher also happened to be Dick's older brother Bob!

Together, the two went on to become one of the most successful writing teams in Hollywood. The 13 songs they wrote for the movie, "Mary Poppins"—and that includes "Chim-chim-cheree" and "Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious"—made it the biggest moneymaker in the history of Walt Disney Productions and earned the two brothers an Academy Award.

If musical talent is hereditary, the boys can credit a good deal of their success to their dad, Al Sherman, who wrote such hits as "No, No, a Thousand Times No!" and "Me Too!"

"It was Dad who in 1950 suggested we pool our talents," Bob says. "We did a few songs together, then Dick was drafted for the Korean War. Afterward, we decided to try it on our own. We were never very close as boys, and we never got along too well even during the early 1950s."

The brothers' big break came when they sold a song titled "Tall Paul" to Walt Disney. The partnership suddenly switched into high gear, and soon they were selling songs to such well-known singers as Fabian.

In 1960 Walt Disney signed them to an "almost exclusive" contract which gave them three months off each year to write songs for others.

Since then they have created 88 songs, including the highly successful "Let's Get Together" for Hayley Mills. Dick has even taken a small stab at acting. As a surprise for his family, he sat in as a musician in a small band during one of the scenes in "The Happiest Millionaire." This is the Shermans' newest Disney musical.

"We not only like what we are doing, we like the men we are doing it for," Bob Sherman insists. "Walt Disney was considerate. He never asked us to write anything we hadn't wanted to do. More important, we used to fight a lot with each other. Now we realize how much better off we are working as a team."

And Dick says, "We were mutually hostile until we realized that we needed each other. In retrospect, I don't think either of us would have really enjoyed our success if it had happened to only one of us."

Although the Shermans have expensive homes, they still don't believe their luck will last.

"Just the other night I had a nightmare," Bob told me. "I dreamed the studio refused to release 'The Happiest Millionaire' and Dick and I were out of a job. I kept yelling, 'How much can I get for my Oscar?' until my wife woke me to calm me down."

Said Dick, "Maybe it isn't so bad to be unsure of yourself. That way we'll keep working harder."

The Secret Of Catching Bass

For 22 years Bill Plummer fished bass the hard way . . . but studied their habits . . . how they love weeds . . . and devour every frog they can get.

Finally Bill tested simulated frogs of every color, shape, size and material he could find . . . but even perfect replicas when motionless were so unnatural in water as to prove useless. Every lure Bill used . . . even so-called "Weedless" ones . . . fouled or snagged in weeds . . . until he invented his own weedless hook . . . diagram below shows why.

Then he found the answer . . . he combined a sponge rubber body and long trailing, thin triple-jointed hollow rubber legs with his weedless hook. This frog changed Bill Plummer's fishing life and can yours. Here's how.

Twitches Of Rod Drive Bass Crazy

Bill rushed with his frog and his weedless hook to the nearest weed covered lake. Once cast, the frog sat with just its eyes above water. When Bill twitched the rod tip, the frog's legs kicked backward in exact imitation of the real thing.

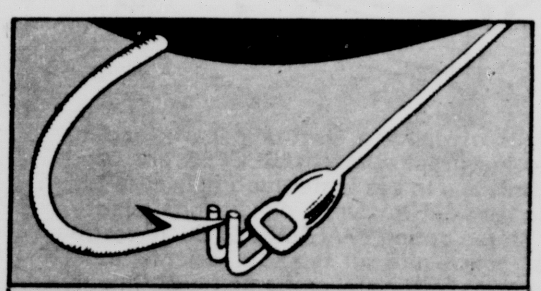
Here was a lure that looked, acted moved . . . felt so natural to bass it proved irresistible. Bill could make it sit motionless on a pad . . . move s-l-o-w or fast . . . on or below the surface. With a twitch of rod tip he could make it look frightened, hurt . . . anyone could do the same.

He could move that lure through the heart of weed "jungles" as safely as if it lived there.

Bill Plummer sculptured one body after another out of sponge rubber to get the precisely right shape, size and weight for perfect casting . . . worked on hook arrangement to get perfect weed guard action with positively no interference with the hook after the strike . . . solved the problems of action and buoyancy . . . tested powers of his frog.



Why Frog Casts Safely Into Thickest Weeds

1. "Side arms" extend down on either side of hook point . . . eliminate "open gap" usually found at hook point on weed guards.
2. Bulb deflector "hops" frog over stumps and branches.
3. Resilient flexible wire keeps guard aligned, wards off obstructions.

Frog Irresistible To Bass

He'd inch his frog ahead . . . suddenly sweep forward . . . make his frog slip quietly off the pad into the water . . . race across the moss . . . looking terrified —and the bass struck without caution.

Bill would make his frog dart . . . jump . . . dive . . . struggle in water as though drowning . . . jump temptingly along the surface. He'd catch bass when his buddies would come home skunked. With his frog, Bill began to catch all the bass he wanted . . . throw back all bass under four pounds . . . in New England before his frog Bill rarely caught bass over four pounds. Now he began to catch bass twice as big as before. He was able to fish in places huge bass hid. He'd boat and release bass after bass.

One Fisherman Tells Another

After newspapers wrote two and three column stories of the Frog, after magazines wrote multi-page articles on it and radio and TV interviewed Bill about it, thousands of fishermen wrote Bill about his Frog—forced him to quit his job as flying instructor . . . just to manufacture frogs for other fishermen.

From all over reports came in of astonishing catches . . . bigger, more bass caught than ever before . . . fishing in weeds made easy as a game . . . even for beginners for whom it was frustration before.

"Best all-round surface lure I used." —"Weedguard superior to any on market"—"Since my first frog more than doubled my catch of big ones'."

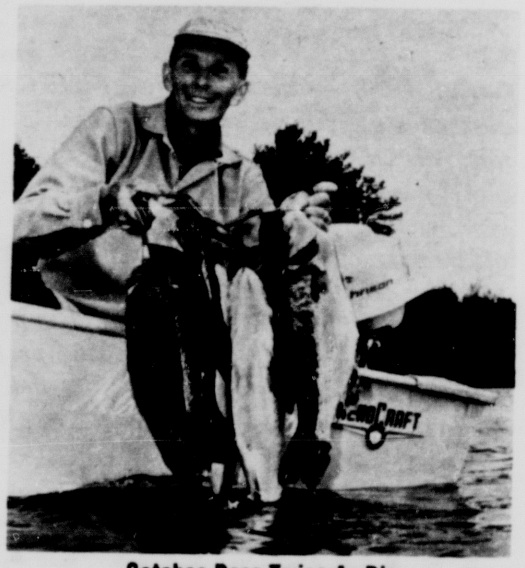
What This Means To You

Simply this. No longer need you helplessly fish edges of weeds, when bass are not venturing out . . . waste untold hours fishing countless acres of barren water . . . lose valuable tackle in weeds you're not equipped for . . . be content with puny bass, with a fraction of your limit or even getting skunked simply because you can't safely go after bass in shelter of weeds, pads and moss.

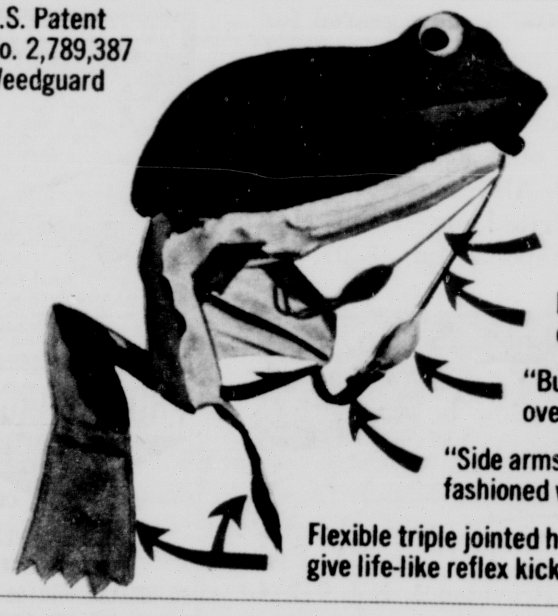
What Frog Did to Bill Plummer

1. Creel census men of Massachusetts Fish & Wild Life Commission sent photographs of his catches to papers who published Bill's picture and 2 and 3 column stories.
2. Radio and TV Stations interviewed Bill about his frog's giant catches.
3. Outdoor Life ran a 4-page article on frog and Bill — featured on front cover. Sports Afield ran 6 editorial pages...Fur-Fish-Game ran 6.
4. General Motors filmed him using his frog, showed it on 200 TV stations.
5. Thousands of fisherman heard of frog, ordered it — forcing Bill into business and out of his job as flying instructor . . . then users reported fabulous catches using Bill's frog and method..



Catches Bass Twice As Big

Bill Plummer using frog below now catches bass like lunkers shown . . . on average twice as big as before.



Now you can fish into center of weeds . . . over submerged logs, through matted bush, in underwater thickets, through weeds, grass, pads . . . make frog crawl . . . race . . . dive . . . sit motionless . . . dart away—use obstacles to help you that used to hurt you—overhanging branches . . . half submerged logs and rocks . . . moss and weeds so thick you can't see the water. Now you can catch bass as never before . . . bigger bass, more often.

Amazing Trial Offer

Try Bill Plummer's frog at our risk. Fish in worst weed trap area you know . . . where bass have been caught but you've been skunked or caught practically nothing . . . over logs, around rocks, through matted weeds. Unless delighted, return for no cost. You must catch more bass, bigger bass, more different kinds of game fish, more often . . . must have more fun fishing where bass are . . . in the weeds . . . or no cost.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

A teen-ager in our neighborhood had a very successful party last week—27 out of the 12 guests she invited showed up.

—Herm Albright

The couple drove their new car out of the salesroom and proudly rode down the highway. Suddenly the car came to a jolting stop. Behind the couple, trucks, autos, and buses piled up in an accordion collision. Dozens of irate drivers surrounded the startled couple in their new car and demanded to know why they had stopped so suddenly.

"We were just testing our safety belts," the owner explained.

—Frances Benson

Then there was the young groom who complained: "All my wife can do is thaw foods. Why can't she be more like my mother and open cans?"

—James Shurluck

The family overslept and their six-year-old daughter missed the school bus. Her father, though late for work, agreed to drive her to school if she would direct him.

They drove down the street for several blocks before she directed him to turn. Then they continued on for many more blocks before she indicated another turn.

This continued for 15 minutes. Finally they reached the school—which the father was amazed to find was only a short distance from their home. He asked his daughter why she had directed him by such a circuitous route.

"That's the way the school bus goes," she explained, "and it's the only way I know."

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—When I broke my arm I came up with an idea. I make most of my own clothes, and save the leftover scraps of material. I found enough scraps to make slings for my arm that matched my dresses. These were much less noticeable and neater looking.—RUTH

(Share your homemaking ideas. Send them to POLLY, care of this newspaper.)

DEAR POLLY—My aunt removed the backing from a number of pretty ties, washed them and then pressed them flat. She cut these pieces in various shapes and stitched them together. She created a most unusual and beautiful afghan.
—SUZANNE

DEAR POLLY---I paste Polly's Pointers on a 3x5 index card and file them under different headings. Wouldn't a duplicate collection of Polly's Pointers make a handy gift for a new bride?---MRS. E. V. T.

DEAR POLLY—To display prize ribbons, take a stuffed animal and pin the medals and ribbons all over it. This could also be done on a pillow.—MRS. C. M. B.

DEAR POLLY---Our puppy kept sticking his paws into his water bowl and often tipped it over. To prevent this we filled a cigar box with sand and hollowed out a place in the sand for the doggy bowl. No more spills.---ELAINE
